CORRUPTION CHARGED BY HOPKINS IN OHIO RELIEF

Roosevelt Directs FERA Chief to Take Over Handling of Federal Funds There on Allegation of Political 'Shakedown.'

'LET CHIPS FALL WHERE THEY MAY'

'Incontrovertible' Evidence to Be Given to State and County Prosecutors — Gov. Davey Makes Denial.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Acting on Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins' charges of "corruption" in the Ohio relief administration, President Roosevelt today directed Hopkins to "assume entire control" of spending Federal relief funds there.

The campaign committee of the Ohio Democratic Governor, Martin L. Davey, Hopkins contended, had conducted a "shakedown" of firms doing business with the State Relief Administration.

Davey replied with a denial of Hopkins' charges and a dare that he come to Ohio and face a prosecution for "criminal libel." Davey added: "It must be that he has completely lost his head."

In making public a letter to Davey, Hopkins said the "evidence" collected by his investigators would be presented "immediately" to the Attorney-General of Ohio and to county prosecutors.

Has President's Backing.

Behind him he had a letter by the President, asserting that the administration would not permit the relief population of Ohio to become "the innocent victims of either corruption or political chicanery," and ordering Hopkins to go into the whole situation and "let the chips fall where they may."

In his letter the relief chief told Davey there was "incontrovertible" evidence that his campaign committee had solicited "in excess of $5000" from firms doing business with the Relief Administration.

"The frank purpose of this shakedown, because it can be termed fairly by no other name," Hopkins said, "was to help pay off the deficit of your campaign and the expenses of your inaugural.

"The further apparent purpose was to make some of the officers of the Relief Administration solicit these funds in order to retain their jobs."

Controversy Over Funds.

Two weeks ago Davey said the Ohio State Relief Administration was "inefficient" and asked that Hopkins step in. At the same time he said Ohio could not put up the $2,000,000 a month Hopkins required as its relief contribution.

Hopkins retorted that Davey wanted him to "pay the whole bill," refused to take over Ohio relief, and reiterated that Ohio would not even get money for the last half of March if an additional $1,000,000 was not supplied.

When Ohio made available the March money, Hopkins released another $2,000,000. A like sum, bringing the total Federal grant for March to $8,000,000, is due next week.

Davey nevertheless renewed his request and there were rumors of a "compromise." Hopkins commented grimly today that "this is the complete answer to any such talk," and said Charles C. Stillman, a regional director, "will be in Columbus in the morning" to take charge as Federal Administrator.

He declared the State Administrator, W. A. Walls, had "no Federal status," and that he believed the Ohio Legislature now would be "more likely" to vote additional relief funds. He said, however, there was a "possibility" state funds would be administered separately.

Text of Roosevelt Letter.

The text of the President's letter: "My Dear Mr. Hopkins:

"I have examined the evidence concerning corrupt political interference with relief in the State of Ohio. Such interference cannot be tolerated for a moment. I wish you to pursue these investigations diligently and let the chips fall where they may.

"This administration will not permit the relief population of Ohio to become the innocent victims of either corruption or political chicanery.

"You are authorized and directed

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 16.—William S. Jacobs, proprietor of a string of pretentious gambling houses and saloons here, was arrested today at his home o na Federali indictment pending in St. Louis, charging him and three others with conspiracy to violate the laws of the United States and shipment of liquor into a dry state.

A fugitive warrant was served on him by Chief Deputy Marshal Henry Julian of Little Rock. Jacobs, ill with a cold, gave bond of $5000 before United States Commissioner C. Floyd Huff Jr., who was called to the gambler's home to approve the surety.

The bond was returnable before Federal Judge Davis in St. Louis Monday, when Jacobs' co-defendants also were scheduled to appear for arraignment. They were Beverly Brown, "Gully" Owen and William Molasky, officers of Brown-Owen, Inc., one of the largest wholesale liquor houses in Missouri, with offices in the Mart Building, St. Louis.

HEIRESS TO SEEK DIVORCE FROM PRINCE MDIVANI

Former Barbara Hutton Admits in London She Has Instructed Lawyer to Start Proceedings.

HER FORTUNE PUT AT $42,000,000

Received Large Share of Woolworth Five and Ten Store Earnings—Wed in June 1933.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 16.—Barbara Hutton Mdivani, Woolworth heiress, disclosed tonight she had started proceedings to divorce Prince Alexis Mdivani.

The American Princess, who only two days ago denied any rift and said she planned to rejoin her husband within the fortnight, announced that she had instructed her lawyer to start action for a divorce.

Tonight the heiress remained in seclusion in her hotel suite, with her maid and masseuse as sole company.

Only the statement that divorce proceedings had been inaugurated was given out, although the maid said, "She is apparently very upset. She seldom leaves her room."

The heiress came to London alone Thursday, she explained, "instead of tagging after" her husband to Spain.

At that time the only hint she gave of a break with her husband was her statement that she intended to lead her own life because, she said, "that's the kind of girl I am."

Tonight the Prince was reported either in Barcelona or en route there in company with his sister, Mme. Sert, the wife of the Spanish painter.

Frequent Reports of Rift.

Princes Mdivani is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin L. Hutton and heiress to a large share of the Woolworth five-and-ten-cent store millions.

The marital status of the two in June, 1933. There were two ceremonies. The first a brief civil one was on June 20 followed by an elaborate religious service two days later at the Russian Orthodox Church. There were 800 guests. Jeweled crowns were held over the heads of the bridal pair.

Less than a year after the marriage her father was steaming toward London to counsel the Princess in a rift that had developed between her and her husband. Since then reports of an estrangement have cropped up frequently, and have been almost as frequently denied.

Last November the pair celebrated the Princess' twenty-second birthday with a lavish, all-night party in Paris and next day the Prince said: "I hope every one will now realize we are happily married and love each other."

Shortly afterward, however, they were traveling in different directions, the Princess toward New York and the Prince toward India.

Gone "To Shoot Tigers."

"He's just gone to shoot tigers or something—that's all," the heiress explained on her arrival here, "and I've come to spend the holidays with my parents."

She added that it was "ridiculous to say she objected to his spending a lot of time playing polo."

Under the terms of their marriage contract the American girl retained control of her fortune, which was estimated in January of last year at $42,000,000.

Prince Mdivani, who belongs to an Asia Minor family that has married extensively in America, is a son of the late Prince and Princess Zakhari. His father was an aide-de-camp and General at the court of the Czar of Russia. The title of Prince does not denote high nobility in Russia.

Prince Alexis' first wife was the former Miss Louise Astor Van Alen, from whom he was separated by divorce in 1932.

Mr. and Mrs. Hutton, parents of the princess, were said at their home to be cruising off Florida in their yacht, the Lady Irene.

WORK-RELIEF BILL FACES THREAT OF TWO-BILLION CUT

Senator Adams Thinks $4,880,000,000 Total Is Too High, Might Endanger Federal Credit.

LEADERS CONFIDENT THEY CAN BEAT HIM

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The administration, encouraged by its success in quelling the Senate rebellion over the McCarran prevailing wage amendment to the $4,880,000,000 work-relief bill, confidently prepared over the week-end for a battle, to begin tomorrow or Tuesday, over the amount of the appropriation—whether it shall be reduced to $2,880,000,000 and, incidentally, whether the basic theory of relief is to be changed. The McCarran amendment was rejected late Friday and a compromise wage plan approved.

Senator Alva Adams, Colorado Democrat, who usually supports the administration, is author of the reducing amendment. He will be actively seconded by Senators Byrd of Virginia and Copeland of New York, also Democrats, as well as by several old line Republicans. The gravity of the threat may be deduced from the fact that Adams' amendment was lost in the Appropriations Committee only by a tie vote, the division being 10 to 10.

Even among Senators who will yield to administration pressure and vote to retain the larger figure, there is a powerful undercurrent of sympathy for the Adams proposal. There may be unexpected defections to the rebel ranks.

Senator Adams' Views.

This sympathy arises mainly from the conviction that the appropriation will seriously imperil the Government's credit, that the Roosevelt "security wage" plan is costly, rigid and arbitrary, and that it will invite millions to go on relief who have hitherto managed to take care of themselves.

Senator Adams said to the writer this afternoon: "The cost of Federal relief last year was $1,069,000,000. With that sum, we gave relief to 18,000,000 persons, including 1,225,000 who were put to work on the scale of wages prevailing in their respective communities. The Federal Government carried 72 per cent of the total burden of relief.

"One of my principal objections to the present bill is that it puts relief on a wage basis. The amount to be given will not be based on the recipient's needs but on his job. Thus, if you have a wife and four sick children, you get $50 a month, and if I am a healthy bachelor I also get $50 a month. It's just not the way to administer relief.

"According to the President's own admission, the whole thing is a gamble. He says, in effect, that this is the last straw, that it must break the back of the depression. But suppose it doesn't—what then? A second 'last straw' would certainly break the back of the Government's credit.

"During the debate on the McCarran amendment we were told by Administration spokesmen that it would add $1,500,000,000 to the amount of the appropriation and that such an addition would destroy the national credit. If that is true, it is not difficult to foresee what would happen if we spent $4,880,000,000 and then found ourselves faced with the necessity of spending that much more.

Senator Sees a Line.

"There has been a lot of extravagant talk in the past—especially during the Hoover administration—about endangering the Government's credit. Why, when La Follette and Costigan proposed to spend $300,000,000 for relief, they were told it would ruin the Government's credit. Since that time, of course, we have spent many times that sum, and our credit is still good.

"But undoubtedly there is a line which we dare not cross, and I am convinced we are approaching it. In fact, the Administration admits it. Then, I say, why put all our eggs in one basket? I'm in favor of keeping something in reserve.

"That isn't all. We now have approximately 7,000,000 unemployed men who are not on relief. They have been told that charity is degrading, and doubtless many of them have been actuated by pride

GERMANY RAISES ARMY TO 500,000, SAYING OTHER POWERS FAIL TO DISARM

PLANE IN FOG TELLS BY RADIO COMPASS SHIP IS BELOW IT

Exact Position Established During 4-Hour Test Flight With New Type Device.

By the Associated Press.

OAKLAND, Cal., March 16.—The Department of Commerce experimental precision flight plane soared through blinding fog over the Pacific today and its crew was able to determine its exact position merely by looking at a quivering needle on an instrument board.

Returning here from a test flight of more than four hours, members of its crew said they were "elated" at the performance of the new type radio compass they were testing with view to making ocean aerial navigation more or less automatic.

Figuratively the plane was able to follow radio waves sent out by ordinary ship, shore and broadcasting stations. By watching the compass needle the crew was able to tell exactly when the plane passed over a ship 12,000 feet below, but the flyers saw neither the ship nor the surface of the water. The air cruiser's ultimate goal is a flight to Honolulu.

The old type of radio compass requires a "directional beam" for operation and a pilot must remain close to the line of wireless pulsations or lose track of the signals.

U. S. INCOME TAX RETURNS 29 PCT. ABOVE LAST YEAR'S

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 16. — The Treasury reported tonight that income tax returns for the first 15 days in March showed an upturn of 29 per cent over the comparable half month of last year. The receipts were $191,358,909 as compared with only $147,794,894 last year.

On the basis of these preliminary returns, income taxes of about $300,000,000 are predicted for the month, as compared with $232,000,000 collected in March of last year. It was said at the Treasury, however, that these figures could not be used as final guide, because of the delay in getting clearances of the remitted sums.

Income tax payments, regardless of the form in which they are made, are cleared through the Federal Reserve banks by collectors of the various districts, and reach the Treasury only after several days following payment. Returns made on the deadline, midnight, March 15, will not show up in the reports for several days. Estimates are $1,051,000,000 for the present fiscal year.

MOSCOW SNAPS UP 'HOT DOGS'

Trial Sale is Successful and Production is Increased.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, March 16. — The Lariok, or State Kiosk Trust, announced today an immediate increase in the production of hot dogs, which made a successful appearance here under the literally translated name of "Goriachie Sobaki."

On the suggestion of an American "specialist" employed in the trust's bakeries, 150 sandwiches were placed on trial sale in a downtown kiosk. They were immediately snapped up by the public. A production now of 5000 daily is planned to spread the sale to other cities.

JOBS OPEN, JOBLESS DANCE

Call for 50 Workers at Dallas, Only Nine Show Up.

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., March 16.—A number of unemployed persons swung through an old-time square dance in the City Hall auditorium today while waiting for a demanded increase in rations. The group declared a "camp" had been established "right here" until full relief grants were restored.

On the same floor with the dancers a member of the PWA staff declared he was having difficulty getting laborers on relief projects. He said he asked for 50 workers today and that nine showed up.

ENGLAND CUTS SPEED LIMIT

30 Miles an Hour Is New Rule in Urban Areas as Safety Move.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 16.—A nationwide urban speed limit of 30 miles an hour will be put in force in Great Britain at midnight tomorrow, and in London disguised men and women speed cops will begin work. They will wear plain clothes over their uniforms.

The step is a Government move to stem motor fatalities, which have averaged 20 daily.

PURCHASE BY CITY OF LACLEDE STOCK DISCUSSED BY HAY

STATUS OF COMMON SHARES IS CHECKED

Apparently They Have Been Pledged in Various Financial Transactions, Counselor Is Told.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, March 16. — The possibility that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, through its control of the top holding company in the utility structure built up by Harley Clarke, might authorize the City of St. Louis to buy the common stock of the Laclede Gas Light Co. has been discussed by Charles M. Hay, City Counselor of St. Louis, with RFC officials.

The Laclede company is an operating unit under control of Utilities Power & Light, which is in turn controlled by the Public Utilities Securities Corporation. It is this latter corporation that the RFC now dominates through possession of stock pledged by Clarke as collateral for a loan originally obtained from former Vice-President Charles G. Dawes' Central Republic Bank & Trust Co., Chicago.

Status of Laclede Stock.

Stanley Reed, general counsel for the RFC, told Hay that he was investigating the status of the Laclede common stock. Apparently, Reed told Hay, voting power of the stock still remains with Utilities Power & Light. Although Reed added that this was not definitely established, inasmuch as his preliminary investigation showed that the Laclede stock had been pledged in various financial transactions.

This was the opinion of Chairman Jesse Jones who suggested in the course of a brief talk with Hay that possibly all the RFC had obtained, by assuming control of Public Utilities Securities, was "a shell," that the elaborate holding company structure had been "gutted." But Jones was quick to add, Hay said, that this was only an "impression" inasmuch as he had not had an opportunity to study the new relationship of the RFC to St. Louis' gas system.

"I have been assured that the RFC will co-operate as fully as possible," Hay said. "I believe that we can look for some very interesting developments, particularly in view of the administration's expressed stand against holding companies."

Confers With I. C. C. Man.

Hay conferred today with Walter M. W. Splawn of the Interstate Commerce Commission, who is largely responsible for the present form of the Wheeler-Rayburn holding company bill. He discussed with Splawn the possibility of Government control of natural gas pipe lines uned title III of the bill and indicated after the conference that he probably would return to Washington to present evidence of St. Louis' struggle to obtain an adequate supply of gas before the committee that is holding hearings on the Wheeler-Rayburn measure.

Hay left for St. Louis tonight. The Natural Gas Committee of the St. Louis Board of Aldermen, headed by Michael Scott, also in Washington to urge that the Government aid St. Louis in obtaining natural gas, departed earlier in the day.

"We've been pouring so much priming in the pump," he said, during a committee hearing, "that the people are drinking the priming and the pump hasn't hit a lick."

CAPONE COMPROMISES WITH U. S. ON TAX

He Agrees to Pay $220,980 on Income From 1924 to 1929 Inclusive.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 16.—The Government reached an agreement today with Al Capone, one-time Chicago gang lord, on the income taxes for the evasion of which Capone was sentenced to prison.

The settlement was for $220,980, a compromise of the original claim of $386,406 representing taxes and penalties for the years 1924 to 1929, inclusive.

Michael J. Ahern signed the agreement for Capone, now incarcerated in the Federal prison on Alcatraz Island. The Government was represented by Elden McFarland of Washington, a special representative of the Internal Revenue Department.

No appeal may be taken from the agreement. Collection is to be made by the local Collector of Internal Revenue.

The Government already has a lien on Capone's summer residence on Palm Island, between Miami and Miami Beach, Fla. Friends said Capone originally spent $100,000 for the home, which has an estimated present market value of between $50,000 and $60,000.

The Florida home, occupied by Capone's family during his absence, is the only property which the Government has discovered on which to levy, McFarland said. "I doubt if there will be any haste in acting to collect the tax," he said. "The property will probably be worth more in a year or two and perhaps by that time Capone will be able to make a cash settlement."

FEDERAL AGENT WOUNDED BY MOONSHINER IN RAID

Treasury Department Officer Leads Party in Pursuit When Gun User Escapes.

By the Associated Press.

LEESBURG, Va., March 16.—George Kirkpatrick of Fairfax, Va., a Federal officer in the alcohol tax unit of the Treasury Department, was seriously wounded this afternoon in a raid about 10 miles from here. A moonshiner wounded him with a shotgun and escaped.

Capt. W. I. Sayles of the Treasury Department is leading a party hunting for the man who shot Kirkpatrick.

Kirkpatrick, with three fellow officers, came on a still in full operation. A lookout gave the alarm and a man rose from behind some barrels a short distance from the still and opened fire. Kirkpatrick fell at the second shot. The moonshiner backed from his position, firing all the while. He turned and ran, fired again, and then escaped as the other officers attended their wounded comrade.

19 YEARS OF PROHIBITION ENDS AS ARKANSAS BILL IS SIGNED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 16.—After 19 years of prohibition Arkansas went legally wet today when Gov. J. M. Futrell signed the Thorn package liquor sales bill and its companion enforcement measure.

Liquor will go on sale in the State as soon as the State has completed its administration machinery, which is expected to require about a week.

Many citizens, however, were celebrating the addition of this State to the wet ranks by imbibing beer of 5 per cent alcoholic content and wines ranging up to 21 per cent content, which went on sale today.

CABINET ALSO ISSUES DECREE FOR ENFORCED MILITARY SERVICE

INSISTS IT IS FOR DEFENSE ONLY

Declares Compulsory Drill Order Is Reply to Doubling Conscription Period by France—"Supplementary Laws" Later.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

BERLIN, March 16.—The German Government, declaring Germany no longer obligated under the Versailles treaty, today announced the increase of its regular army to about 500,000 men.

(Under the Versailles treaty, signed at the conclusion of the World War, Germany's armaments are sharply restricted and its standing army is limited to 100,000 men.)

Simultaneously Chancellor Adolf Hitler, denouncing rearmament in Europe, disclosed that the Cabinet, in decreeing compulsory military service throughout the Reich, acted in direct answer to the French move increasing the term of army conscript service to two years.

The Cabinet's decree provided that Germany's future peace time army shall consist of 12 army corps of three divisions each, or 36 divisions in all. It will number, according to semiofficial estimates, from 325,000 to 480,000.

(A dispatch from London said Hitler told Sir Eric Phipps, the British Ambassador, that the German army would number 500,000 men.)

Insists Intent Is Peaceful.

Hitler insisted that Germany's intentions were peaceful but national safety demanded an increased army.

He cited rearmament throughout Europe, assailed violation of the Versailles pact on the part of other Powers and said "under these conditions Germany had to take the necessary measures to put an end to her defenselessness."

Returning from Berchtesgaden to shepherd the "big army" decree through the secret early morning meeting of the Cabinet, the Chancellor issued an impassioned appeal to the German people, saying Germany was compelled to take its military fate into its own hands.

"When Germany laid down her arms and submitted to humiliating conditions in 1918," he said, "she hoped to serve humanity. . . . only because Germany expected that general international disarmament would follow in the wake of Germany's disarmament was she willing to destroy her vast military equipment. No real pacification followed, yet Germany fulfilled all the inter-allied conditions."

Equality Claim Renewed.

Germany, Hitler said "had the right to ask that the others disarm" because she herself was disarmed and because the "Versailles treaty obligated the others to disarm."

Other European nations, however, "disregarded our pleas," the Chancellor continued, "and the world resounded again with cries of war."

He recalled Germany's willingness to enter discussions of pacific plans, "defeated by other nations," and said "The equality promised us in December, 1932 (when other Powers decided to recognize Germany's right to theoretical equality provided an acceptable treaty was negotiated) was also rendered illusory."

"The new (Nazi) Government, therefore, found itself unable to continue in the League of Nations and in the disarmament conference."

Protesting that "the German Government had but one moral and national aim: to safeguard the world's

'LIBERAL' BLOC IN HOUSE ADOPTS 16-POINT PROGRAM

Puts Federal Control of Credit and Currency First —Group Said to Include 34 Members.

FOR GUARANTEEING FARMERS A PROFIT

Abolishing of Tax-Exempt Securities, Higher Levies on Wealth Are Other Proposals.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—A 16-point legislative program calling for assurance "that economic and social justice shall be accorded all of the people," was adopted unanimously today by the new House "liberal" bloc.

Despite attempts by party leaders to discourage the movement, the bloc said more members were present or represented by proxy at its meeting today than attended the initial session a week ago. The 34 representatives who were present agreed to alternate the chairmanship at each week's meeting between members who nominally belong to the four parties represented—Democratc, Republican, Progressive and Farmer-Labor.

The Program Adopted.

The bloc's program follows:

1. Federal regulation of credit and currency.
2. Abolishment of the issuance of tax-exempt securities.
3. Increased inheritance, income and gift taxes on a graduated basis.
4. Refinancing of farm debts on a long-term basis at 1½ per cent interest.
5. Reduced interest rates on home loans.
6. Guarantee to farmers of the average cost of production plus "a reasonable profit."
7. Limitation of the hours of labor in industry.
8. Insurance to labor of "its inherent right to bargain collectively."
9. Public works appropriations "in amounts adequate to provide employment for those in need of employment at a wage sufficient to maintain a decent standard of living."
10. Adequate Federal aid to education.
11. "Government ownership of all natural resources and monopolies vested with a public interest."
12. "De-profitizing" of war.
13. Avoidance of "foreign entanglements."
14. "Adequate provisions for the payment of sickness, old-age and unemployment benefits."
15. Protection of freedom of speech and the press.
16. A liberalization of House rules.

Not Anti-Roosevelt.

Those who attended the meeting emphasized again that they were not opposing President Roosevelt, but that their program was designed primarily to assure enactment of some legislation which so far had not appeared on his program.

One measure to which the group gave indirect sanction was the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing bill, which would set up a three billion dollar revolving fund for the refinancing of mortgages over a long period and at 1½ per cent interest.

After the meeting, Representative Lemke (Rep.), N. D., explained that he had on file with the clerk a petition to force a vote on that bill. He said he had 125 of the necessary 217 signatures "and the rest will go on next week."

Representative Kvale, Farmer-Labor, of Minnesota, presided over the second meeting. Those listed as being present or represented by proxy, were:

Democrats—Wallgren, Zioncheck, Knute Hill and Martin Smith of Washington; Maverick of Texas; Hoeppel, Scott and Costello of California; Dunn of Pennsylvania; Hildebrandt of South Dakota; Ryan of Minnesota; Keller of Illinois; Wood of Missouri; Binderup and Luckey of Nebraska; Carpenter of Kansas.

Republicans—Burdick and Lemke of North Dakota; Maas of Minnesota; Stefan of Nebraska; Gilchrist of Iowa; Lambertson of Kansas; Marcantonio of New York; Engel of Michigan.

Progressives—Schneider, Boileau, Amlie, Sauthoff, Hull, Withrow and Gehrmann of Wisconsin.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL AND MME. EDOUARD RENARD,

WORK-RELIEF BILL FACING THREAT OF TWO-BILLION CUT

or self respect. This bill would make it easy and respectable for them to come in. It is an invitation to cut a piece of cake.

"Twenty-seven per cent of the Negroes in the country are on relief. In the larger cities the percentage is more than half. Does anyone suppose they are getting an average of $50 a month? Of course not—the average is much less than $25 a month, yet they have managed to get along on it."

Final Vote This Week.

As chairman of the Appropriations Committee, Senator Carter Glass is nominally in charge of the measure and ordinarily would be its chief defender. As a matter of fact, he has indicated that he may support the Adams amendment. If he does, his attitude is likely to influence some of his colleagues. There is no Senator whose opinion on Government finances commands so much respect in the Senate. During yesterday's debate he asserted that a 10 per cent fall in the price of Government bonds would "break 90 per cent of the banks in the country."

Nevertheless, the administration's success in defeating the McCarran amendment by a vote of 50 to 38, after it had once been carried by 44 to 43, has made the leaders confident of their ability to repel all attacks. That opinion is shared by observers. A final vote on the bill is expected by Wednesday or Thursday.

Attempts will be made to saddle the measure with bonus and inflation riders, but they will not get far. An effort to increase the appropriation to $10,000,000,000 will be made by LaFollette but will receive scant support.

Huey Long has gone back to Louisiana and will not return for a week. That means that the man who has given the administration more trouble and caused it more worry during the last week than all the rest of the opposition combined will be gone until after the bill has been passed.

What Long Is About.

Huey has gone down to serve as counsel for the State Public Service Commission in an action to reduce the telephone rates. If he succeeds, the company will be required to pay his fee. The members of the commission, who decide the issue, were elected on a ticket named by him.

Last month, when he was in Baton Rouge investigating the reported plot to assassinate him, he stopped in at the commission's quarters long enough to act as its counsel in a case which resulted in reducing local electric rates three cents a kilowatt hour. For that the electric company paid him a fee of $5500. He lost the check out of his vest pocket so many times on the return trip to Washington that one of his bodyguards finally took charge of it.

Incidentally, it was during the same Louisiana visit that he told his radio audience, in response to a question, that "before I get through the public utility corporations will pay off the mortgage on my home." He was alluding to his $40,000 mansion in New Orleans, concerning which someone had made caustic inquiry.

The whole Roosevelt legislative program has been blocked for nearly two months by the fight over the work-relief bill, with the principal conflict raging around the McCarran amendment. Its passage next week will open the way to many important bills, embracing such controversial issues as NRA and AAA extension, social security, "pink slip," food and drugs, banking, holding companies, railroad reorganization and the 30-hour week.

The Senate today, responding to Mr. Roosevelt's request, voted to continue the Federal Relief Administration another year but deferred action on a proposal to extend the PWA two additional years until Monday.

Senator Glass submitted the two amendments to the Senate. The amendment adopted extends the life of the relief administration to June 30, 1936. But when Glass offered the proposed two years continuation of PWA, Senator McNary, Oregon, the Republican leader, suggested consideration be postponed until more members were on the floor.

Two Amendments Eliminated.

The Senate today also eliminated two amendments designed to curb the President's power. One by Senator Steiwer (Rep.), Oregon, approved by the Appropriations Committee, would have required Federal public roads, rivers and harbors, reclamation and public buildings projects to be undertaken at the direction of the respective Government departments having jurisdiction over them. Senator Pittman (Dem.), Nevada, who led the opposition, said it would result in "endless conflict." The effect of its elimination is to give the President a free hand in delegating the agencies to supervise the works program. Notice was served by Minority Leader McNary, however, that he would move to reconsider the action next week.

The other amendment, killed without a roll call, would have required that all sanitary work projects be let by contract. It also had been approved by the Appropriations Committee at the suggestion of the Master Plumbers' Association.

PLANES SEEK SEVEN IN AFRICAN JUNGLE

French Colonial Official and Party Missing in Cannibal-Infested Swamp.

By the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, March 16. — An unconfirmed report by the Agence Belga from Leopoldville, Belgian Congo, said tonight an airplane containing the Governor General of French Equatorial Africa, his wife and five others had been found in a village of Belgian Congo.

The plane was located, the dispatch said, in the Village of Ikenge, Coquilhatville Province, District of Tshuapa.

BRAZZAVILLE, Middle Congo, March 16.—Six airplanes swept back and forth across the Congo's jungles today in search of Edouard Renard, Governor - General of French Equatorial Africa, his wife and five companions, who crashed somewhere in the jungle district.

Grave fears were felt for the lives of the seven since the district is swampy and known to be infested with cannibals. Four military and two commercial planes were ordered to keep up the hunt in the hope that the party may have landed in some clearing and still be alive.

A native of Holland, Mme. Renard was the widow of Michael Winburn, wealthy American soap manufacturer and philanthropist and Paris society leader. She married Renard in Paris Oct. 10, 1933.

The big plane in which the party set out on an aerial tour of inspection was last heard from at 10 a. m. yesterday, when it reported by wireless that it was flying through thick fog, buffeted by storms.

The five companions of Renard and his wife, all of them French army officers, were Maj. Bonninbue, chief of the Governor-General's military staff, Pilot Capt. Gaulard, commander of the French Equatorial Africa aviation unit; Adjutant Ditte, Radio Operator Guitard and Mechanic Sonnit.

26 MINERS IN JAIL, DEFIED INJUNCTION TO CANCEL STRIKE

Members of Rival Union of United Mine Workers Held Guilty of Contempt at Wilkes-Barre.

By the Associated Press.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., March 16. —Defiance of an injunction which orders termination of an anthracite mine strike brought jail sentences today for 29 union leaders.

Judge W. A. Valentine, who issued the injunction, held the men guilty of contempt of court and ordered them "forthwith committed to Luzerne County prison unless and until they comply with said order of the court or manifest a willingness to comply" with it.

The strike was called Feb. 2 by the United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania, rival of the old union, the United Mine Workers of America. It is directed against the Glen Alden Coal Co., a major anthracite producer in the Wyoming Valley. The new union says the company countenanced violence and assaults upon its members at Wilkes-Barre colliery. Dynamitings, shootings and other violence are attributed to the strike and the union rivalry.

A railroad bridge and several homes were dynamited tonight and police said the mine strike caused them.

All But Three in Jail.

Sheriff Kniffen said all but three of the union officers are in jail and capiases have been issued for two, Victor Martuza and Zigmund Terutis. The third, Stanley Edmonds, is a hospital patient.

Judge Valentine's order rebuked lawyers representing the strike leaders. It said "The case presents the unusual spectacle of members of the bar (who state that the order should be obeyed and that they have so advised their clients) not only appearing as counsel for the respondents, but rendering them every possible aid to avoid compliance with such order, notwithstanding counsels' oath of fidelity to the court."

The proceedings were conducted without disorder and the prisoners were divided into groups and taken to the county prison in automobiles.

Up to Union Members.

The union officers testified at the contempt hearings more than a week ago that only the members themselves could obey the court's order to rescind the strike call. They said, however, they would not attempt to influence such action. Thomas Maloney, president of the union, told Judge Valentine that a Supreme Court affirmation of the injunction would not alter his attitude.

State police and deputy sheriffs guarded the courthouse in anticipation of a demonstration.

The injunction is based on alleged breach of contract, the company contending that the men, in accepting employment, ratified the agreement made by the coal operators and the United Mine Workers of America in 1930. Leaders of the new union insist on the right to strike and deny it breaks any contract.

Hitler Increases German Army to 500,000

peace," Hitler said: 'In a historically almost unprecedented manner, we brought about political and military sacrifices, yet to our regret the rearmament of the rest continued apace.

"Thus Soviet Russia alone has a peace army of 960,000 men. Similar measures have been taken by other nations."

The French Government's acton in introducing two-year compulsory military training, Hitler said, was the last warning that Germany henceforth must look out for itself.

Declaring "there is no longer any purpose in keeping the German people in ignorance of what the Government is doing," Hitler asserted "Germany wishes to safeguard her territorial integrity and command international respect as a co-guarantor of peace."

Goebbels' Announcement.

The announcement of the increase in the army, coming just six days after Minister of War Hermann Wilhelm Goering's forthright admission that Germany had an air force and intended to keep it, was made by Minister of Propaganda Paul Joseph Goebbels. Goebbels summoned foreign correspondents to the Propaganda Ministry, giving them an hour's notice, but no indication of what he had to announce.

It was the first time since the Nazi "blood purge" of June 30, 1934, that the correspondents had been called to the Ministry, and Goebbels received them in the same room where he told the story of the shooting of Nazi leaders.

Entering the room with the 20-page document containing Hitler's statement and the Cabinet's decree in his hands, Goebbels went straight to the point. As Goebbels read the announcement, Propaganda Ministry and Foreign Office attaches stood about him and Schutz Staffel (picked Nazi guards) men guarded the doors.

Rejoicing in Berlin.

The date of calling the first men to the colors, the ages of the classes and the period of service all have been left to the discretion of Gen. Von Blomberg, subject to Hitler's approval, it is stated.

All Storm Troop leaders are in session at Oberammergau and leaders of the Stahlhelm (war veterans) were gathered in a hastily-summoned session in Berlin.

Wild applause and singing greeted Goebbel's reading of Hitler's appeal and the three paragraph decree over the radio at the Sportspalast, where the Propaganda Minister had been scheduled to speak on another subject. Everywhere in Berlin there was rejoicing.

Thousands gathered in front of the brightly illuminated chancellery yelling for Hitler and singing the national anthem at the tops of their voices, while extra newspaper editions appeared with headlines in red announcing "historic hours."

At the chancellery Hitler and Konstantin von Neurath, Foreign Minister, received the Ambassadors of France, England, Italy and Poland, officially informing them of the new action and later Goering, Von Blomberg, Von Neurath and Goebbels were closeted with Hitler.

Hitler's Return Kept Secret.

Hitler's sudden return to Berlin from Berchtesgaden was carefully concealed from the public. Hitler left Bavaria yesterday afternoon and conferred far into the night in the chancellery. The Cabinet meeting was called for 1 p. m. The entire plan had been drawn up in advance so that the Cabinet meeting was comparatively short.

When Hitler announced his decision to put the Reich back among the world's big army nations, official sources said, the Cabinet rose and cheered.

Afterward, led by Gen. Werner von Blomberg, Reichswer Minister, the Ministers gave three "heils" for Hitler and Von Blomberg, briefly assured Hitler of the army's loyalty.

The Propaganda Minister announced that Hitler would remain in Berlin for tomorrow's memorial services honoring Germany's 2,000,000 war dead, then would return to Bavaria to spend another week.

"Heroes' Memorial Day."

The nation's World War dead will be honored in the most spectacular military demonstration in Germany since 1918.

Designated as "heroes' Memorial day," tomorrow will be observed throughout the country with memorial church services, parades by the regular army and veterans' societies and Nazi formations.

Germany's new air force will take part for the first time. Military formations in every city and village will stand at attention to hear a broadcast by Gen. von Blomberg.

Press Enthusiastic.

The German press, which has bitterly denounced the new military measures taken by France, acclaimed Hitler's declaration as "recovery of Germany's honor."

"This is the German nation's great day," the Korrespondenz, organ of the Nazi party, said, declaring the German people at last freed from "the ignominy which has oppressed them for 16 years."

"We believe that this day will herald a new era of peaceful cooperation among European peoples," it said.

The press in general had charged France with "dealing the last blow to disarmament," and accused it of attempting to torpedo the forthcoming security negotiations between Hitler and Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, who is scheduled to visit Berlin March 26 and 27.

FRANCE CONSULTS OTHER POWERS

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 16.—The French Government tonight telegraphed its diplomatic representatives in all countries which signed the Versailles treaty immediately to consult the governments to which they are accredited concerning Germany's action in reinstituting compulsory military service.

War was openly discussed in the Chamber of Deputies at midnight by the Government opposition when Premier Flandin was forcing through his two-year military service plan, to which Hitler today gave defiant reply.

The Socialist Deputy, Leon Blum, warned against "Napoleonic plans of offensive strategy of 1913 and 1914" but assured the chamber that if Germany attacked, "all the workers of this country would rise like other Frenchmen" for defense.

A few hours before Hitler announced that his army would be supported by conscript service, Foreign Minister Pierre Laval, it was learned, had planned to go from Paris to Moscow to talk of an Eastern Locarno pact.

Edouard Herriot, former Premier, took the situation so seriously last night that he threatened to resign unless the two-year service provision was approved. The Parliament did approve it. Herriot said there was absolutely certain information about German rearmament "which, if you knew, not one of you, not even in the extreme Left, would hesitate to vote what is asked of you."

France's two-year service, with reduction of the age limit to 20 years and an increase of professional soldiers, is expected to keep the army up to 600,000 men, and the air force to 35,000, which Marshal Petain said Germany would equal before long.

British Cabinet Members to Discuss German Action Today.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 16.—A meeting of the Cabinet sub-committee on disarmament was called for Sunday to consider the German action. The meeting was called after Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary, who returned to London from South Wales, where he delivered an address last night, studied the report to the Foreign Office made by the British Embassy in Berlin.

A full meeting of the Cabinet, it was indicated, may be called Monday.

Sir Eric Phipps, British Ambassador at Berlin, telephoned the Foreign Office after an interview with Hitler and Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath. It is said authoritatively here that Hitler told Sir Eric Germany would have an army of 500,000 men.

This means, said a spokesman, that Germany has tossed overboard her entire case for military equality and has gone in for outright superiority.

It was admitted that Hitler's bearing on plans for the proposed visit of Sir John and Anthony Eden to Berlin. They had planned to leave Berlin. They had planned to leave for the German capital a week from tomorrow, after the previous postponement on account of Hitler's "cold." One of the chief proposals which the British Ministers expected to discuss in Berlin was the release of Germany from the military clauses of the Versailles treaty in return for her simultaneous acceptance of the armaments conventions and security agreements of Eastern Europe and return to the League of Nations.

Today's developments were viewed in some diplomatic quarters here as virtually destroying any chance for the success of the British mission.

Italy Withholds Views Pending Three-Power Conference.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, March 16.—Italy, France and England were in consultation tonight concerning what action should be taken on Germany's abrogation of the military clauses of the Treaty of Versailles, an Italian spokesman said. Hitler's decision was regarded as a direct defiance of the statement issued following the conversations here in January between Foreign Minister Pierre Laval of France and Premier Mussolini that Italy and France would not recognize any unilateral violation of existing treaties. That statement was aimed at Germany. The Government spokesman said that until the reaction at Paris and London was made know here, Italy could not announce its official views. There seemed to be doubt that any positive action could be taken, excepting possibly a diplomatic protest at Berlin.

Hitler's announcement, it was said, was not a complete surprise, since Germany's rearmament had been known for some time and today's statement changed the situation only slightly.

The Franco-Italian communique following the January conversations in Rome said: "The Italian and French Governments, recalling the declaration of Dec. 11, 1932, with reference to equality of rights, are in accord in recognizing that no country can modify by a unilateral act her obligations with regard to armaments; and that in the case of this eventuality they will consult each other."

It is by virtue of this declaration that Rome and Paris entered into consultation tonight. A similar statement was made in London following the Flandin-MacDonald conversations.

President Calls in State Department Officials.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—President Roosevelt summoned State Department officials to his desk shortly after word of the German rearmament declaration reached the Capitol. Both Secretary Hull and Under-Secretary Phillips on leaving the White House would say only that general matters had been discussed.

Senator Borah of Idaho, ranking Republican on the Foreign Relations Committee, saw nothing in the German move for the United States to "get excited about."

"Those whom he most sympathized with are the taxpayers of Germany," Borah added. "There seems to be a determined purpose upon the part of all Europe to bury their people under armaments.

"Whatever else happens or doesn't happen, one thing is certain —the masses of Europe will be impoverished that much more."

The military clauses of the Versailles treaty, which impose general restrictions including a standing army of 100,000 men, were made a part of Germany's separate peace treaty with the United States.

SENATOR VANDENBERG ASSAILS SECRETARY OF LABOR PERKINS

Says She Should Not Deport Author Strachey, When Own Aid "Defies Constitution."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, criticised Secretary Perkins today for proposing the deportation of Evelyn John Strachey, British writer, and at the same time permitting her assistant, Edward F. McGrady, to "defy the Constitution."

In a formal statement, Vandenberg said: "Before Madame Secretary of Labor deports Comrade Strachey for alleged subversive lectures, she should set her own house in order. She should avoid the inconsistency of leaving her own Assistant Secretary McGrady unmolested in the next office after his Boston speech advising labor to so organize as to 'make it unhealthy for a Judge to defy you' and calling United States Judges 'stupid' when they choose the Constitution in preference to the New Deal.

"It is a poor rule which does not see red both ways. At least it may be said for Strachey that he has taken no oath to sustain our institutions and draws no salary therefrom."

SCHULER'S TOTAL FOR BONDS $2500 IN FOUR YEARS

Former Public Administrator's Charge on This Item Half What Sheehan Collected in Seven Months.

INCUMBENT CALLS IT 'CONTINGENT FUND'

He Does Not Indicate Disposition of Any Surplus —His Commissions Thus Far Put at $18,722.

Anton Schuler, former Public Administrator, told the Post-Dispatch yesterday that he charged a total of about $2500 for premiums on bonds in the four years he was in office, preceding Walter F. Shehan, incumbent, who was shown by the Post-Dispatch Friday to have collected claims totaling $5391.50 for bond premiums on 128 estates in a period of seven months.

Schuler said he spent the $2500 for bonds and reimbursed himself on the basis of actual expenditures for premiums, including that on his blanket bond of $100,000. As in the administration of Public Administrator Sheehan, former Probate Judge Charles W. Holtcamp approved Schuler's claims.

The law requires a public administrator to provide a surety bond on taking office. The amount of the bond for Sheehan was $100,000 fixed by the Court, and the premium, according to Sheehan, was $500. It was to reimburse himself for this premium that Sheehan, in office two years and three months, made claims against 128 estates finally settled of $4891.50 in excess of the premium.

Judge Arnold's Protest.

As soon as Probate Judge Arnold, who took office last Jan. 1, discovered this system, he called Sheehan before him in chambers and challenged Sheehan's right to make such charges. After considerable discussion, Judge Arnold told Sheehan he would not approve such allowances in future. Since that time, about the middle of last month, Sheehan has not submitted claims for bond premiums.

Sheehan's Statement.

In a prepared statement given to other newspapers by Sheehan, after disclosure in the Post-Dispatch, the Public Administrator was quoted as saying the "surplus from the bond fees is placed in a contingent fund to pay premiums on any special bonds that may be required and offset losses sometimes accruing in handling some estates." He did not say whether any money remaining in this fund at the end of his term would be refunded to the estates or what disposition would be made of it. He refused yesterday to give a copy of his prepared statement to the Post-Dispatch and also refused to be questioned on any point contained therein.

If there is any authority in the statutes for a Public Administrator to reimburse himself ten-fold from estates for any expenditures made in his administration of an estate, Probate Judge Arnold has been unable to find it.

Section 221, Revised Statutes, 1929, does say an administrator may claim "a reasonable cost for a surety company bond, if the court deems it just and proper under all the circumstances connected with the estate to allow cost of such bond."

Court Has Discretion.

It was upon Judge Arnold's interpretation of this statute that he stopped Sheehan. As interpreted, this law gives the Probate Court discretion to permit the Public Administrator to reimburse himself out of the estates in his charge for his actual outlays for bond premiums, but only to the extent which he has incurred the expense. This allowance is not as compensation for any extra service but for an expense he incurs in the administration of estates. He is therefore only permitted to reimburse himself on this account for what he actually paid out. He may not take $10 when he has only been compelled to pay out $1.

The records of the estates administered by Sheehan do not show that Judge Holtcamp, who approved his settlements, allowed his overcharges for bond premiums on account of any services he performed in those estates. On the contrary, they show the allowances were for expenses actually incurred.

Check Revealed Practice.

Old attaches of the Probate Court say that Judge Holtcamp never had the estates and public administrators checked to determine the annual charges they made against estates for bond premiums. Shortly after Judge Arnold took office he had this done to enable him to determine whether claims of Public Administrator Sheehan were fair and just. Hence the discovery of Sheehan's claim of $5391.50 to reimburse himself for the $500 bond premium.

But the statutes do take care of the Public Administrator. He is allowed "all reasonable charges . . . and as full compensation for his services and trouble a commission of 5 per cent on the personal property and on money arising from the sale of the estate." In the 128 cases checked by Post-Dispatch reporters, covering seven months, the estates amounted to $374,455. The commission of 5 per cent on this amount would be $18,722. It is out of the 5 per cent commission that he is supposed to maintain his office and pay himself a salary. He pays no rent on his office in the Civil Courts Building.

CORRUPTION CHARGED IN OHIO RELIEF BY FEDERAL CHIEF

forthwith to assume entire control of the administration of Federal relief in the State of Ohio."

Letter from Hopkins.

A letter from Hopkins to Gov Davey said:

"This is to inform you that pursuant to the order of the President the Federal Emergency Relief Administration will take over the administration of Federal unempolyment relief in Ohio effective at once.

"It has come to the attention of this administration by incontrovertible evidence that your campaign committee shortly after your election, proceeded to solicit money from the men and business firms who sold goods to the Ohio Relief Administration.

"The frank purpose of this shakedown, because it can be termed fairly by no other name, was to help pay off the deficit of your campaign and the expenses of your inaugural.

"The further apparent purpose was to make some of the officers of the Relief Administration solicit these funds in order to retain their jobs.

"Incontrovertible Evidence."

"The evidence of this corruption is, I repeat, incontrovertible. Investigators on behalf of this administration have secured the signed and sworn confessions of the men who solicited the funds; and the names of the men who paid in to the fund which your committee raised.

"These affidavits show definitely the sources of an amount in excess of $8000 which was thus raised by this corrupt solicitation and paid in to your campaign committee.

"This evidence, of course, not only established the utter unfitness of some of the men who are now in high position in the relief administration; but it demonstrates the necessity of safeguarding the expenditure of Federal funds in Ohio.

"There Is No Alternative."

"Under the circumstances there is no alternative for this administration but to take over immediately the responsibility of directly administering the Federal funds available for Ohio relief.

"You may be sure that this will be done at once and that nothing will be permitted to cause delay in providing for Ohio's needy unemployed.

"You must also understand, and understand clearly, that this action will not relieve the State of Ohio and its local subdivisions from continuing to contribute its share of the funds necessary to care for the needs of your citizens.

"Let me say further that the evidence which has been secured by this investigation will be available at once to the Attorney-General of Ohio and to any of the county prosecutors who may determine what, if any, criminal prosecutions should follow."

Davey Dares Hopkins to Stand Libel Suit in Ohio.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., March 16.—Asserting that Harry L. Hopkins was making a "very serious charge" concerning the Ohio Relief Administration, Gov. Davey today "dared" Hopkins to come to Ohio and "stand suit for criminal libel."

Davey declared that it was impossible that the Ohio administration had anything to do with the matter Hopkins referred to. "It must be that he (Hopkins) has completely lost his head," Davey added. "If they have taken over relief, I am very happy.

"I believe that, as sure as I live, relief can be run on a business-like basis and that we could save at least $2,000,000 monthly and not deprive a citizen of anything that he is entitled to."

Davey said that he had considerable evidence concerning "silly expenditures."

Gov. Davey said he knew "absolutely nothing about the financial affairs of the Democratic State Committee."

Hopkins said he had evidence that Gov. Davey's campaign committee had conducted a "shakedown" from firms doing business with the State Relief Administration.

Stating that the Democratic State chairman alone could speak on campaign finances, Gov. Davey said: "My lack of knowledge in matters of this kind is exactly the same as the President's lack of knowledge of how Mr. Farley raised the money to make up the deficit in the financial affairs of the National Committee."

The Governor repeated that in his judgment the Ohio relief setup "is very wasteful, very inefficient and many times inhuman."

Francis Poulson, chairman of the Democratic State Executive Committee, in a statement said: "Of course, the Democratic State Committee had a substantial deficit after its strenuous campaign for the national, State and judicial candidates. . . . Of course, we accepted contributions to meet this deficit." None of the State candidates, he said, had any knowledge of the affairs of the Campaign Committee. He concluded: "I accept the full responsibility and have no apologies to offer."

Attorney-General John W. Bricker, Republican, said he would investigate the Ohio relief situation if Government officials requested such an inquiry and if the Legislature authorized it.

Ohio is the third State, and the second with a Democratic Governor, in which Hopkins has intervened. As evidence of the importance he attached to his action, he consulted the President earlier in the day although he already had authority to take over relief in any State where he considered administration unsatisfactory.

Oklahoma relief was taken over to stop Gov. William Murray from issuing relief checks bearing his name but State administration later was restored.

Bank Returns Delayed.

The returns of the banks have been delayed, owing to dealings with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which has complicated the process of estimating their taxable holdings.

All the returns listed are on personal property. The assessments on real estate are fixed by the Assessor, who in making up this year's assessments on buildings used a new method, with cubic content as the basis of value, modified by other factors such as location and obsolescence. Some changes in office and apartment building assessments have resulted from the new method, some having been increased and some lowered from the figures fixed in former years by the estimates of district assessors, not all following the same methods of estimating value.

The Assessor's books will be open in his office at the southwest corner of City Hall, first floor, at 9 a. m., tomorrow. The lists may be inspected by property owners, and those wishing to protest against realty or personal property assessments may fill out blanks, and the City Board of Equalization will set a time for hearing them.

Equalizers Meet Tomorrow.

The city Board of Equalization will begin its sessions tomorrow morning in the Assessor's office, and will be in session four weeks. Assessor Ralph Coale is chairman, and the members are: Gerald B. O'Reilly, William L. Protzmann and James L. Barngrove, real estate men, and Irvin H. Gamble, lawyer. Ralph Panzer, secretary to the Assessor, is the board's secretary.

Assessor Coale has not given out a total figure on real estate assessments. He has made a rough estimate of an increase of $10,000,000 over last year's realty assessment figures, based largely on new construction and repair work. The 1934 assessment reported to the State Tax Commission was $930,896,350 on real estate and $75,638,430 on personal property, a total of $1,006,534,780. The Tax Commission made a 5 per cent cut in the realty assessment, and the revised figures were $884,351,533 real estate and $74,228,558 personal property, amounting to $958,580,091. To this the State Board of Equalization added $51,433,332 in railroad and utility assessments, making a taxable total of $1,010,023,423. The 1934 tax rate was $2.74 on the $100 of valuation.

WARM WEATHER CAUSES FORSYTHIA SHRUBS TO BLOOM

Cornelian Cherry Also Bursts Into Yellow Blossoms After 78-Degree Temperature.

A temperature of 78 degrees Friday brought the first shrubs and trees into bloom in St. Louis gardens. The shrub, forsythia or Golden Bell, especially where planted in a location to get full sun, was covered with yellow blossoms.

The Cornelian cherry, which grows to a heighth of 15 or 20 feet in tree form if pruned into that shape, also burst into bloom with clusters of tiny yellow flowers, a shade lighter than the forsythia.

Not so familiar as the forsythia and more likely to be caught by frosts, good specimens may be seen in Tower Grove Park along Magnolia avenue, and in Shaw's Garden. The botanical name is Cornus, and it belongs to the familiar dogwood family.

PAYS FINE OF $1000 IN $1 AND $2 BILLS

Dr. Sayman's Firm Pleads No Contest to Charge of False Claims on Products.

A bundle of $1 and $2 bills paid a fine of $1000 and $47 costs imposed upon the T. M. Sayman Products Co., 2117 Franklin avenue, by United States District Judge Davis yesterday on charges of misbranding and mislabeling its goods.

The company, through Dr. J. S. Brewer, a director, pleaded no contest to an information charging it, in 10 counts, with making "false and fraudulent" claims in its labels as to the therapeutic properties of "Dr. Sayman's Wonder Soap, Healing Salve, and Liniment."

The liniment was recommended in the labels for ailments ranging from aching teeth through painter's colic to ulcers and whooping cough, and the soap and salve for such conditions as blackheads, chapped hands, ivy poisoning and salt rheum. The remedies were described as equally effective against the ailments of man or beast.

"Dr." T. M. Sayman, of 5399 Lindell boulevard, 81-year-old founder of the company, which he established by hawking his products on street corners in a medicine show, was in court on crutches, due to an abdominal ailment.

After the fine had been entered, he joined Dr. Brewer and, unsmiling, the pair went to the clerk's office, where the bundle of bills was laid on the counter.

As a deputy finished counting the money, District Clerk O'Connor came out of his office and surveyed the stack of bills on the counter.

"Always glad to get small change," he said, as the receipt for the money was handed to Brewer.

William Kunitz, 4431 Delmar boulevard, Richason's partner, said he was in the front of the store when he heard the shot. He called an ambulance and accompanied Richason to the hospital. Richason lives at 4304 McPherson avenue.

INCREASE IN GIFTS FOLLOWS RISE IN U. S. INCOME TAX

COLLECTOR'S OFFICE RUNS OUT OF BLANKS

Levy on 1934 Transfers of Capital in St. Louis District Estimated at Nearly $1,000,000.

Federal gift taxes, on gifts of more than $5000, are expected to make a much larger showing in this year's income tax total of the St. Louis district than in previous years. The increase in gifts, and in taxes thereon, is believed to be due to the higher surtax rates charged this year, and to the fact that the gift tax rates will increase next year.

At the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue, in the Federal building, it was learned that the use of gift tax blanks was much greater than last year. The supply of blanks gave out, and more had to be sent from Washington. It was known also that returns on such blanks would show a great increase, and while no figures could be obtained, it was estimated that the gifts reported in this district, the Eastern District of Missouri, would yield nearly $1,000,000 taxes. There are no figures on last year's gift taxes, but for 1933 the total for the entire country was only $1,100,000, district figures not being given.

Officials' Explanation.

The increase in gift taxes, it was said at the Collector's office, may have the effect of lowering the regular income tax receipts somewhat. The increased surtax rates charged this year are believed to have caused wealthy persons to bestow gifts on their families to avoid the high surtaxes, and the higher rate on gifts next year was an incentive to make the gifts before the rise in the rate.

The donor, not the recipient, must pay the gift tax, but the receipient is taxed on any income he receives from the gift. The donor cannot deduct the amount of the gift tax from his year's income.

In computing the gift tax, the first $5000 of each gift is exempt. In addition, each donor is entitled to a specific exemption of $50,000 throughout his lifetime, which he may take in one installment or spread over a period of years. As an example, if a man divides $1,000,000 among his four sons, and takes his entire $50,000 exemption at once, his exemption amounts to the $50,000 plus $5000 on each gift, or $70,000, and he is taxed on $930,000. But if he makes a similar gift in a future year, there will be no $50,000 exemption, and he will be taxed on $980,000.

The Increase in Rates.

The gift tax rate scale starts at three-fourths of 1 per cent on the first $10,000 of net gift—that is, gift in excess of the exemption. The rate increases cumulatively with the size of the net gift. The tax on a $10,000 net gift is $75; on $40,000, $750; on $50,000, $1125; on $100,000, $3625; on $200,000, $10,125; on $600,000, $45,125; on $1,000,000, $92,125, and on $10,000,000, $2,312,125. Above $10,000,000, the rate is 33½ per cent, the highest rate imposed.

The gift tax rate for next year, on gifts made in 1935, will be higher, as to all net gifts of $50,000 and more. The tax on a $100,000 net gift will be $4200; on $1,000,000, $136,200; on $10,000,000, $3,312,450, and above $10,000,000, 45 per cent.

The income surtax is on net incomes of more than $4000, on a cumulative scale, rising as the amount of net income goes up. The surtax on $50,000 of income subject to this levy—called "surtax net income"—was $7700 for 1934, compared with $4960 previously. Further comparisons follow: $100,000 surtax net income—$28,000 current tax, $22.460 former tax; $200,000—$80,500 current, $70,960 former; $400,000—$189,500 current, $171,960 former; $750,000—$388,000 current, $356,460 former; $1,000,000—$533,000 current, $491,460 former. The surtax rate on that portion of surtax net income exceeding $1,000,000 is 59 per cent now, compared with 55 per cent prior to last year.

Income Tax Collections.

Income taxes collected in the Eastern District of Missouri for 1933 incomes totaled $16,155,527, on 80,751 returns from individuals, partnerships and corporations. Tax officials anticipated that the amount of tax would be less for 1934 incomes, on a greater number of returns. The tax in the district for 1932 incomes was $14,216,702.

Collections for the first quarterly installment of taxes on 1934 incomes were announced yesterday as about $2,416,000, plus an estimated $800,000 in mail remaining to be opened. At the same time last year, comparative receipts were about $2,426,000, plus an estimated $600,000 in unopened mail. Friday was the last day for making 1934 returns without penalty.

BLANKE-WENNEKER CANDY CO. AWARDED $85,000 DAMAGES

Supreme Court Affirms St. Louis Court Award; Property Was Taken for Street Widening.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 16.—An award of $85,000 damages to the Blanke-Wenneker Candy Co. of St. Louis, against the City of St. Louis, for property condemned in connection with the widening of Market street, was affirmed today by the Missouri Supreme Court.

The opinion, written by Judge E. M. Tipton, affirmed a judgment of St. Louis Circuit Court, overruling exceptions by the city to the report of the Condemnation Commissioners who appraised the benefits and damages in connection with the condemnation proceeding.

The commissioners awarded the candy company $85,000 for property taken for the widening, and $263,400 to the Blanke Brothers Realty Co., from which land occupied by the candy company building was leased. The award for the land was not involved in the appeal by the city.

The Blanke-Wenneker Candy Co. was placed in receivership by St. Louis Circuit Court in April, 1928, in a suit filed by a stockholder, after stockholders of the company had empowered the board of directors to discontinue the business of the company and liquidate it.

JURY DISCHARGED, STOOD 7 TO 5 FOR CONVICTING COUCH

State Says Ex-Convict Will Be Tried Again Following Disagreement at Second Trial.

The second trial of George Couch, former penitentiary cellmate of John Dillinger, for the murder of Patrolman Albert Siko last April 29, ended yesterday in a disagreement by the jury, which stood 7 to 5 for conviction. The State announced that Couch would be retried at any early date.

At his first trial last October, Couch was convicted and punishment was fixed at life imprisonment. He was granted a new trial by Circuit Judge Hogan because of prejduicial remarks by Assistant Circuit Attorney William B. Flynn in an opening statement to the jury.

The second trial opened last Monday, and the case went to the jury shortly before 10 o'clock Friday night. When no verdict had been reached at 10:50 a. m. yesterday, Circuit Judge Russell called the jury into court and requested the foreman, William M. Cunningham, a railroad clerk, 4412 Kossuth avenue, to report on the numerical division without disclosing details of the deadlock. Cunningham reported the 7 to 5 division, and expressed the opinion it would be impossible to reach a unanimous verdict. Judge Russell discharged the jury and declared a mistrial.

One Cause of Disagreement.

Disbelief that Couch, a paroled convict, would tell relatives and acquaintances he had shot a policeman in fleeing from a holdup, as State's witnesses testified, was one of the causes for the disagreement, Cunningham told Judge Russell and Prosecutor Flynn after the jury had been discharged. One of the four other jurors, who visited the Circuit Attorney's office, remarked "That was hard to believe; I wouldn't have told anyone if I had shot an officer."

The absence of Louis De Morè, Chicago taxi driver, who confessed killing Siko, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to life imprisonment and later paroled when evidence was developed to link Couch with the crime, was another cause for disagreement, Cunningham revealed. There was testimony that De More, who is 42 years old, bears a strong physical resemblance to the 27-year-old Couch. Several jurors preferred to judge that phase of the situation for themselves and were disappointed because the State was unable to present De More, Cunningham said. Flynn explained that, when De More was released last autumn, there was an understanding he would appear at the Couch trial, if neede as a witness, but that the authorities had lost trace of him. De More repudiated his confession, which he had said he had made because the dying Siko had identified him and he feared he would be hanged if he faced a jury.

The jurors holding out for acquittal doubted the testimony of George Schumaker, a State's witness, Cunningham said. Schumaker testified that George Couch came to his home, 1216 Seventh boulevard, at 2 o'clock in the morning of last April 30, several hours after Siko was shot, showed him Siko's revolver and told him he had to shoot a policeman from whom he fled after a holdup attempt.

Another Point of Doubt.

The failure of the State to more clearly corroborate Schumaker's statement that he made a telephone call to the home of a neighbor of Couch's sister on Cass avenue requesting George's brother, Russell Couch, to call for George, was another point of doubt in the minds of several jurors. Flynn told Cunningham the State had considered the point in preparation of the case, but learned that the neighbor receiving the call frequently performed such services and had no clear recollection of the particular call. Russell Couch, in his important testimony against his brother, told of going to the Schumaker home as a result of the phone message, but he was not definite as to who received the message.

Russell Couch, Schumaker, John Pohl, a companion of Russell Couch, and Arthur Whitter, brother-in-law of the Couch brothers, testified that George Couch discussed the shooting with them. Russell Couch, Pohl and Schumaker said the ex-convict showed them Siko's revolver, which was taken away from the officer by the holdup man and subsequently found in the Whitter home, 3513 Cass avenue, where George Couch was staying. Russell Couch, who did not testify at the first trial, told the jury he borrowed a loaded revolver from his employer last April 29 and gave it to George that evening. When George returned the weapon next day it contained only one loaded cartridge, Russell Couch testified. Russell said George was absent from their sister's home the night of the killing, and was corroborated in this by Whitter.

An Alibi Defense.

Couch's defense was an alibi. Patrolman Siko was mortally wounded while chasing a robber at 11:20 p. m., near Third street and Delmar boulevard. Couch testified that he went to church in Brentwood with his grandmother that evening, and was at his sister's home on Cass avenue at the time of the shooting. His sister, Mrs. Dorothy Whitter, who is now separated from her husband, testified that the defendant spent the night at home. The grandmother and the pastor of the church testified to his attendance at the services.

The defendant admitted under cross-examination that he perjured himself at his first trial. He stated at the first trial that he had not seen Patrolman Siko's revolver. His testimony at the second trial was that he saw the weapon in the possession of his brother, Russell. Louis E. Miller, defense counsel, suggested, "you did that to protect you brother."

Couch was paroled from the Indiana penitentiary, at Michigan City, last April 6 after serving 10 years and a month of a 25-year term for robbery.

Names of Jurors.

The jurors, in addition to Foreman Cunningham, were: John J. Burns, baker, 1422 Cleary avenue; Charles B. Morgan, sprayer, 2719 Armand place; August Goebel, butcher, 3517 Grace avenue; John Gronke, clerk, 2833 Magnolia avenue; William J. Hagerty, insurance salesman, 543A Fassen street; William Queenan, woodworker, 5836 Columbia avenue; Alexander, Riechmann, machine hand, 1310 Wright street; Joseph G. Paint was thrown into the homes of two employes of the Knickerbocker Garment Co., 1808 Washington boulevard, who are working despite the strike at the company, the workers reported to police yesterday. A half-pint can of yellow paint flung into the window of the home of Mrs. Mary Lorotta, 2525 Slattery street, caused $17 damage, and a can of red at the home of Miss Fanny LePore, 2533 Burd avenue, caused a damage of $15, it was reported.

$2500 CITY TAX EXEMPTION URGED BY REPUBLICANS

Program of Aldermanic Slate Also Proposes Permanent Registration, Smoke Abatement.

OPPOSES ST. LOUIS LEVYING SALES TAX

Ticket Headed by William Maffitt Bates Criticises Refunding of Municipal Bonds.

Exemption from city taxation of the first $2500 of assessed valuation of homesteads; permanent registration of voters, with identification by signature, and smoke abatement were among the objectives advocated in the platform of the Republican nominees for the Board of Aldermen, made public yesterday by William Maffitt Bates, candidate for aldermanic president.

"We believe," said the nominees, "that the taxes imposed on real estate are so exorbitant as to entail undue hardship and discourage the ownership of small homes. We believe that the first $2500 in assessed value of premises actually occupied by the owner as his bona fide home should be exempt from city taxes.

"We believe that the city could obtain natural gas if the administration sincerely attempted to do so, and that its inefficiency is largely responsible for the inability of the citizens to buy natural gas at a price within their means."

The platform asserted that destruction of the market here for Illinois soft coal would harm a portion of the city's trade territory and said that soft coal could be burned smokelessly. It suggested municipal steam plants to supply fuel in congested districts.

Opposes City Sales Tax.

Reporting a rumor that the city administration wished to enact a city sales tax, the platform expressed opposition to such a tax. It also opposed the pending bill to increase the State sales tax from ½ of 1 per cent to 2 per cent, and censured the Democratic State Representatives from St. Louis who voted for the higher tax, "despite the fact that the citizens of St. Louis will be compelled to pay 60 per cent or more of it, while only a fraction of their payment will be returned" to the city.

Cost of municipal government should be reduced, without impairing efficiency, to prevent tax increases and, if possible, permit tax reduction, the platform continued. It deplored the necessity of refunding $1,566,000 of city bonds recently, "after less than two years of Democratic administration — something that had never before been done in the city." It said that the administration had not been economical.

Condemnation of supposed employment of non-residents by the city and of purchase of supplies from and award of contracts to out-of-town concerns was expressed. It was alleged that many non-residents had obtained work in St. Louis, contributing to unemployment of residents and to the delinquency of taxes. Employment and relief should be denied to persons who have moved here since the depression began, except for payment of their transportation elsewhere, the Republican candidates insisted.

Dole and Democratic Jobs.

"While we favor relief," they went on, "we do not believe that a vote for the Democratic party should be the price of a dole, or that the payment of a dole requires the employment of such hosts of Democratic ward workers. We do not believe that any American citizen wishes to accept a dole, but on the contrary only desires an opportunity to earn his living. We favor the erection of municipal public works which will furnish employment to every citizen who is willing to work and cannot find employment in private industry."

Unification of local transportation agencies under one company, as advocated by Bates in a statement published in Wednesday's Post-Dispatch, was espoused by the platform. It also urged supervision of the transit system by a local commission and construction of a downtown subway.

Immediate elimination of grade crossings and completion of Municipal Auditorium, Memorial Plaza, the soldiers' memorial on that plaza, and of Union Station Plaza were urged, as was improvement and enlargement of the city eleemosynary institutions.

Certain Democratic members of the Legislature from St. Louis and "several prominent Democratic elective officeholders in the city" actually live in neighboring counties and maintain voting residences here, the platform alleged, without giving names. It declared the city could only be represented properly by bona fide residents.

Bates' Ideas Followed.

A number of objectives and viewpoints stated by Bates in the interview published Wednesday were adopted by his fellow nominees. These included:

Assertion that grants received by the city from the State and Federal governments would be exceeded by taxes paid to those governments, early improvement of the river front; restoration of adequate street lighting, to reduce traffic accidents; opposition to "fixing" of Police Court summonses for serious traffic offenses; opposition to special benefit taxes for improvements of general benefit and to assessment of abutting property owners for street widenings; upholding the principles of zoning and making requirements for amending the zoning law more rigid; rehabilitation of the blighted districts for residential purposes; extension and improvement of parks and playgrounds and establishment of outer parks.

If the public should desire to know the stand of the Republican nominees on other municipal problems, answers were promised. The platform praised Comptroller Nolte, Aldermanic President Neun, the 12 Republican Aldermen. It concluded: "We represent a reborn Republicanism returned to the principles of Lincoln and dedicated to the service of the Republic."

'Market Gunners', Who Shoot To Sell, Prove Big Problem In Protection of Wild Fowl

Birds Killed by Wholesale by Commercial Hunters—One Gun Captured by Agents Has 10 Muzzles.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The "market gunner" who shoots to sell ranks as a major violator of game laws intended to protect migratory water fowl and has been a tough problem to agents of the Biological Survey charged with enforcing the law.

Stanley P. Young, chief of the Game Management Division of the Survey, said that a large percentage of the 500 violators arrested in a nationwide drive were commercial hunters. Exactly what proportion of the total of arrests fell in this class he could not say but he cited case after case of wild fowl sold or offered for sale to his agents, with resulting fines and jail sentences.

In California, Illinois and Louisiana in particular the "market gunner" was a frequent violator, Young said. Several arrests were made during the past season in connection with commercial hunting clubs. In one such California club more than 500 ducks were found stored by the manager. Customers of the club paid $10 a day for the privilige of shooting and, if their bag did not come up to the limit of 12 allowed by the law, the club management made up the difference out of its cache.

A drive against night clubs, hotels and exclusive restaurants resulted in several arrests in California, according to Young. It was found that clubs and restaurants were offering game dinners to private parties for $3 and $4 a plate.

How "Market Gunners" Operate.

Young and his first assistant, F. P. Callaghan, in charge of game law enforcement, told how many of these "market gunners" operated. They fasten large home-made blunderbusses, some of them with 1½ inch caliber, and crammed to the muzzle with powder and shot, in a strategic position overlooking a sheltered feeding ground where wild fowl would be likely to stop. For several days they bait this area with grain, meanwhile forbidding all shooting at the spot. Then when the area is fairly covered with ducks, they touch off the blunderbuss. Two hundred or more birds are often killed or crippled at a single shot by such methods, according to Callaghan. Such blunderbusses are also fastened to skiffs. He displayed several formidable home-made guns taken from law violators. One such gun had 10 muzzles from which a simultaneous charge was fired.

In Illinois the "market gunner" is ordinarily what agents of the Survey call a "river rat," a man of little standing in his community who may bootleg liquor as well as ducks. The price through the season in Illinois was extremely low, ranging from 40 or 50 cents up to 70 cents a duck. Young reported several instances of hunters who, because they were unsuccessful in bringing down their own birds, resorted to purchase from "market gunners."

High Water Problem.

"The high water prevailing in Illinois is giving us some difficult problems just now," Young said. "The floods cover adjacent fields, particularly along the tributaries of the Illinois, and the law violators are enabled to operate in almost inaccessible areas. These hunters know the territory. Our agents must surround the area from which they have heard the sound of gun fire if they hope to make an arrest."

"The poverty plea, when it is obviously sincere, is one which is hard to answer," Callaghan said. But on the other hand, the price of ducks has been low and the cost of shells and transportation has been high, so that in many areas commercial shooting has been hardly worth it."

At present the Survey has four agents in Illinois, but the number will be increased soon, Callaghan said. Just now the Survey is concentrating on Missouri, with a considerbale number of arrests. Eleven violators were arrested at one time near St. Joseph, according to Callaghan.

Returns From Stamp Sale.

The sale of stamps at $1 each, which all persons hunting migratory water fowl are required to have, brought in a gratifying amount to aid the work of the Survey, Young said. While final totals are not available, returns by states show that up to Dec. 15 last year 36,502 hunters in Illinois had bought stamps, 21,253 in Missouri, 17,479 in Louisiana and, leading all states, more than 47,000 in Minnesota.

Fines collected as a result of the activities of agents of the Survey do not go for the Survey's own work, but into the general funds of the Treasury. Fines up to the limit of $500 were inflicted on violators in California for possessing fowl in excess of the daily limit. Many violators were sent to jail for terms ranging up to the six months' limit specified by the law.

Washington U. Organ Recital.

G. Calvin Ringgenberg, Washington University organist, will be assisted by the Glee Club of the Downtown Y. M. C. A. in his organ recital this afternoon at 3 p. m. in Graham Memorial Chapel on the university campus.

1050 SUITS ON FILE FOR APRIL TERM OF CIRCUIT COURT

This Is Decrease of 445 Petitions from Corresponding Session of Last Year.

There were 1050 suits filed for the ensuing April Term of Circuit Court up to yesterday, which was the last day for the service of writs in cases returnable to that term. This is a decrease of 445 petitions from the corresponding term of last year, when 1495 suits were entered.

The slump in litigation was explained by a court official as due to several reasons. An important factor, he believed, was the campaign of the Bar Association against certain lawyers who have a reputation for fomenting damage suits.

Another reason given was the unemployment situation, making the opportunities for damage suits fewer; also a diminution in the number of automobile owners who carry liability insurance, which lessens the opportunity for collecting a judgment.

WOMAN SUES MICHAEL CUDAHY

LOS ANGELES, March 16.—Michael Cudahy, scion of a wealthy Chicago family, was named defendant today in two suits asking $200,000 filed by Ethel Mary Blackler, who charges breach of promise and betrayal.

Miss Blackler charges in her complaint she met Cudahy in Chicago in 1931, and that he proposed marriage a week later. She alleges Cudahy betrayed her and then departed for New York when she informed him she was to become a mother. The complaint recites the child was born Aug. 5, 1932. Cudahy, who lives here and is married to the former Mary aJcklin Borax, said: "I never heard of the girl. I don't know her."

FOR REFERENDUM TO BEAT MISSOURI 2 PCT. SALES TAX

Opposition Headed by Representative Taylor Decides on New Attack on Levy House Accepts.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFERSON CITY, March 16.—The anti-sales tax forces in the House, under the leadership of Representative John D. Taylor of Chariton County, have hit on the inclusion of a referendum clause in the pending sales tax bill as a means of defeating the proposed 2 per cent sales tax.

Failing in the attempt to defeat the 2 per cent rate last week, Taylor and Representative Daniels of Reynolds County, another leader in the fight against the new rate. will submit an amendment this week calling for a referendum, after the House disposes of an amendment regulating distribution of the funds raised by the proposed tax.

The amendment will provide that a special election on ratification of the act shall be called within 60 days after the Legislature adjourns, the date of the election to be fixed within that period by the Governor. A bare majority of those voting would be required for ratification of the act.

Would Hold Up Sales Tax Act.

In view of the fact that the 2 per cent rate carried last week by only three votes, Taylor and his forces have hopes of swinging enough votes to their side to win adoption of the referendum amendment. They are relying on the support of some of the members who have wavered between the two sides during the fight over the 2 per cent rate and who might welcome the chance to pass the question to the people.

Adoption of the referendum amendment would automatically suspend operation of the new sales tax act until it could be voted on by the people. The present sales tax law, with a rate of one-half of one per cent, does not expire until next Dec. 31.

If the question is submitted to a referendum and defeated by the voters, Gov. Park would be faced with the necessity of calling a special session of the Legislature to deal with the revenue problem, in view of the need for additional relief funds and money for old age pensions—in the event an old age pension act is passed at the present session.

The problems of such a special session if called under those circumstances would be complicated by the fact that a 2 per cent sales tax had been rejected by the people.

Bill Up Again Tuesday.

Consideration of the pending bill will be resumed Tuesday when the administration leaders in the House plan to continue with the submission of additional amendments. The principal one deals with the apportionment of the funds, which is expected to cause considerable discussion on the floor of the House. Several members have drafted substitutes to the allocation amendment, containing their ideas on how the money should be distributed.

Meanwhile, most of the members of the House will have visited their home counties over the week-end and obtained additional reaction from home town merchants and other constituents on the 2 per cent sales tax. Last week this almost resulted in the defeat of the 2 per cent rate, as the members voted Tuesday to reconsider the vote by which the rate had been adopted the week before. Wednesday the administration forces rallied and were able again to obtain the adoption of this rate.

During the debate on the 2 per cent rate last week, one of the House members exhibited a letter sent out by a retail merchants' organization urging retailers throughout the State to exert all possible pressure on members of the House to get them to vote against the 2 per cent rate.

Lobbying on Both Sides.

The administration has been equally busy. There has been extensive button-holing of members and pressure has been exerted to line up additional votes for the 2 per cent rate. The extensive lobbying for and against the 2 per cent rate caused Speaker Christy to issue orders that lobbyists shall not be permitted on the floor of the House while it is in session.

Considerable discussion is expected on the pending amendments and it is not likely that perfection of the sales tax bill will be completed before the latter part of this week. The Senate has taken no action yet on the 2 per cent sales tax bill pending there.

'TELETYPESETTER' STRIKE AT URBANA, ILL., CONTINUES

Paper Resumes Publication With Non-Union Printers; Men Walked Out After Device Was Installed.

By the Associated Press.

URBANA, Ill., March 16.—Publication of the Urbana Evening Courier was resumed today in spite of the deadlock existing between members of the International Typographical Union and the publishers over operation of a new "teletypesetter."

Non-union printers, hired today to replace union men whose refusal yesterday to handle type set by the new machine made issue of Friday's edition impossible, manned the composing room. Union headquarters at Indianapolis instructed the 10 printers and two apprentices to walk out. The "teletypesetter" is a recent device which eliminates the manual operation of the keyboards of Linotype or Intertype machines, the keys being actuated by a perforated tape which is punched at the same time printer "copy" is received by wire.

LONG BARS JOHNSON, BUT WOULD DEBATE WITH BARUCH

Rejects "Employe and Servant" Preferring "Master" in Answering Request to Speak.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 16.—Senator Huey P. Long said in a telegram today that he did not care to argue with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, "employe and servant," but he would like to debate with Bernard Baruch, "employer and master," at Madison Square Garden or some larger auditorium. His telegram was addressed to Carl Randau, president of the New York Newspaper Guild, in response to an invitation to Long, Johnson and the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin to appear in a debate March 29.

Senator Long said he was busy on that date, but would be glad to meet Baruch any night of the first week in April.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, March 16. — Senator Long today denounced Gen. Hugh Johnson as a "dead mackerel" and said he planned to campaign in several states during the 1936 elections. He was not certain in what states he would speak.

"I may go into all of them," he said. "In some I'll speak for share-the-wealth candidates and in others I'll campaign for those I want re-elected."

SHAW'S GARDEN GETS FLORAL DISPLAY READY

Nearly every day is moving day at Shaw's Garden for a select collection of 125 rhododendrons and 200 azaleas which are to be used in the Garden's display at the Greater St. Louis Flower Show beginning March 30 at the Arena.

To get the greatest number in top bloom for the first week in April requires daily attention because of the recent inconstant temperature. Some plants are nearly ready to bloom, others are just budding. Workmen under direction of Paul A. Kohl, floriculturist, shift them to cool, shaded sections of the greenhouse under awnings or to the full sunlight, according to their development. The rhododendrons are new stock acquired last January. The azaleas have been under culture at the Garden.

Moved as Weather Changes.

Friday when the temperature reached a maximum of 78 degrees, nearly half of the collection had to be removed to a shaded section. When the temperature fell to 47 yesterday, they had to be moved again into full light.

The display will be a semiformal garden, 70 by 45 feet, with an area of 3250 square feet. At one end will be an outdoor living room on a rock terrace and in the center will be a rock pond and fountain. The rhododendrons and azaleas will be planted in a border around the lawn.

Similar control of the orchid collections at the Garden and at the Gray Summit orchid houses is being exercised. The Garden's orchid display will be a jungle scene in tropical foothills of mountains. The view will be from a patio and facade of Spanish architecture. Special exhibits of rare imported orchids will flank the facade.

Workmen tomorrow will begin preparing the west building of the Arena for exhibits. More than 4000 cubic yards of soil and 50,000 square feet of sod will be required. About 200 tons of rock will be hauled in from the Ozark region and hundreds of trees and shrubs will be transplanted. Seven acres of floor space in the three Arena buildings will be occupied by the exhibits, including 48 gardens.

The City Park Department also is preparing a special exhibit at Forest Park greenhouses. Garden clubs, public schools, nurserymen and florists' associations from different sections of the United States will have displays, Henry Berning, chairman of the show, said.

SUIT FOR $74,670 FILED FOR MRS. J. B. O'NEIL ESTATE

Attorney William Sacks Says He Will Present Counterclaim to Action on Notes.

Suits on two promissory notes for a total of $74,670 were filed in Circuit Court Friday in behalf of the estate of Mrs. Jessie B. O'Neil against William Sacks, attorney.

One note, for $10,270, was made in June, 1924, and the other, for $64,400, was made about a year later, both payable to Mrs. O'Neil's husband, the late John Francis O'Neil, former president of the Fulton Iron Works. Mrs. O'Neil died Jan. 15.

The suits were filed by the executors of her will, Lawrence O'Neil and the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., represented by the law firm of Smith & Pearcy.

In explanation of the suits Sacks said: "The notes grew out of a business transaction between Mr. O'Neil, myself and a group of associates. There is still due me as a result of the transaction an amount greatly in excess of the notes. During the life of Mr. O'Neil's widow I hesitated to assert the claim, which will now be presented in the form of a counterclaim."

THREE HIGHWAY POLICEMEN CONVICTED OF BRIBE TAKING

Money Said to Have Been Paid by Merchants Who Bought Stolen Food in Chicago Area.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 16.—A criminal court jury today convicted three former county highway policemen of accepting bribes from merchants who bought stolen foodstuffs and Judge McKinlay immediately sentenced each to one to five years in Joliet penitentiary.

The defendants, Joseph Cantella, 39 years old, Angelo Borello, 36, and Samuel Lucas, 42, were accused of accepting $2000 two years ago from John Kliner and Joseph Levin, commission merchants.

Testimony disclosed that Levin and Kliner paid the money to avoid arrest when the officers learned they had bought a truckload of stolen butter. The alibi defense was that all three defendants were attending a funeral on the day the bribe allegedly was paid.

A 30-day stay of mittimus was granted and the men were permitted to remain at liberty under bonds of $20,000, already posted.

LEVEES WASH OUT IN 20 PLACES ON ST. FRANCIS RIVER

1100 FAMILIES REPORTED HOMELESS

Bottom Land Dwellers Abandon Livestock and Possessions for 30 Miles Along Stream.

By the Associated Press.

KENNETT, Mo., March 16.—A strong wind whipped waves of the swollen St. Francis River across the remaining levees today after it had smashed through in more than 20 places in Missouri and Arkansas.

On each side of the river for 30 miles, farm families fled to higher ground, abandoning household goods and in many cases their livestock. Rescue workers continued to patrol the bottomlands warning residents to leave.

The flood threat was heralded as far south as Lake City, Ark. The encroaching waters inundated more than 6000 acres in Dunklin County, and at least as much territory in Clay County, Ark., is expected to be flooded tomorrow.

Threat of rain and colder weather caused relief officials to make further preparations for caring for refugees. The chief concern was food.

It was estimated 1100 families made homeless by the flood. And hampering the work of rescuers. Motor-driven scows patrolled the area freshly inundated by the collapse of the dike near Piggott, Ark., where 500 families were forced to flee from their homes. Observers estimated that one-fourth of the livestock on the farms were lost in the high water.

Several hundred men had watched the levee through Friday night, and when the break came they blamed it on lack of sandbags.

At Washington the War Department announced an allotment of $20,000 for rescue work and maintenance of levees along the St. Francis in Missouri and Arkansas. Rain was predicted for the week-end over a large portion of the Middle West, but river men and Government officials said it would probably cause only a slight rise in river levels.

The Red Cross announced its refugee total is 8000 in Missouri and Arkansas.

Stories of acute suffering among the flood victims were contained in reports from Red Cross field workers. One report said an isolated two-room farm house near Kennett was the temporary refuge of 40 persons, found by the patrol boat crews.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Jones and three children were rescued after spending 24 hours in the top branches of a tree near Mango, Mo. The farm house and other buildings had been swept away.

In Jackson County, Arkansas, 200 families were discovered in 20 small houses on a piece of high ground which became an island in the flood.

Families Vacate Homes Near Ohio River at Evansville, Ind.

CINCINNATI, O., March 16.—The Ohio River flood crest has reached Cincinnati and the stage is falling upstream, but a rise down-river menaces the lower valley. At Evansville a few families were forced to vacate their homes, but the Ohio, at 40.1 feet today, was rising slowly and the danger was not acute.

The Mississippi and Ohio rose to the 46.8 foot mark at their confluence at Cairo, and the slow movement of the crest of the Ohio flood brought a forecast that the high mark would not be reached at Cairo until Wednesday or Thursday.

THREE MISSOURI REFORMATORY FUGITIVES HELD IN OKLAHOMA

Four Youths, Two of Them From St. Louis, Forced Man to Drive Them From Boonville.

BOONVILLE, Mo., March 16.—Vernon Mitchell, 18 years old, of Tulsa, Ok., and Bernard Shoemaker, 19, and Ronald Wuebbling, 19, both of St. Louis, Missouri reformatory fugitives, were captured this morning in Claremore, Ok.

The trio, with Daniel Walters, 25, of Salina, Kan., still at large, escaped from the reformatory here last Thursday afternoon. They forced John M. Jenry to drive them 25 miles into the Ozarks, where they tied him near State Highway 5, north of Gainesville, near the Arkansas line. Jenry's car keys were found on the trio, officers said, but his car has not been located.

Officers have departed for Claremore, where Oklahoma officers agreed to surrender the fugitives, who now are en route back to Boonville.

The three were arrested in Oklahoma after forcing a car off the highway and binding four occupants to trees.

STEALS COAL FOR CHILDREN

Paroled Nebraska Convict Returned to Prison for Theft.

LINCOLN, Neb., March 16.—Jay Pugh, a paroled convict, was sent back to prison today to serve the remainder of his term because, authorities said, "he stole 100 pounds of coal to warm his children."

Pugh was returned from North Platte to serve approximately five months of an original two-year term for stealing wheat. He was paroled last October.

WILL DATED 12 DAYS BEFORE HEIRESS DIED

Attorney for Statler Interests to Attack $500,000 Bequest to Husband.

By the Associated Press.

RALEIGH, N. C., March 16. — A projected fight to break a purported will of Mrs. Elva Davidson, leaving nearly all her personal estate to her husband, H. Bradley Davidson Jr., today brought up again the strange circumstances of the Statler heiress' death.

J. M. Broughton, attorney for the Statler interests, after receiving word that the will had been filed at Carthage, N. C., said he would file, within a few days, a caveat based on the "general grounds" of the circumstances attending the making of the will and the death of Davidson's 22-year-old bride of two months.

There were only three bequests in the will aside from a general bequest leaving the remainder of the estate to Davidson. These were $5000 each to Radcliffe College, Boston, and the Dwight School, Englewood, N. J., for "one or more" scholarships, and $2000 to the Dwight School library.

Estate Put at $500,000.

The document made no reference to the size of the estate but attorneys said they understood her personal estate was around $560,000.

What money was left to Davidson was in addition to a $12,000 annuity she arranged for him while in Boston to confer with her attorneys last February at the time the will is dated.

The date is some six weeks after the adopted daughter of the late E. M. Statler, hotel man, was married at Pinehurst to Davidson, 42-year-old member of a socially prominent Washington family and father of three children by a previous marriage which ended in divorce.

Twelve days later Mrs. Davidson was found in the garage of her Pinehurst home, lying on the running board and floor of her 12-cylinder automobile, dead of carbon monoxide gas.

Inquest Testimony.

Solicitor Rowland S. Pruette, who hinted at evidence of foul play, produced conflicting testimony at a Coroner's inquest as to quarrels between Mr. and Mrs. Davidson.

Witnesses testified that at a party which broke up in the early morning hours before her death, Mrs. Davidson was moody and at one time was in tears.

An autopsy report fixed the cause of death as carbon monoxide gas, but also revealed there were bruises on her thighs and arm which Dr. C. C. Carpenter, who performed the autopsy, said could have been made by the hands of some one handling her roughly.

The jury returned a verdict of death under "unknown circumstances."

Sheriff Charles McDonald said the investigation would be continued, but has given no hint as to whether any further evidence has been found.

BODY OF WOMAN FOUND IN LAFAYETTE PARK LAKE

Miss Bertha Hofman Left Home Saying She Was Going to End Life, Brother Reports.

The body of Miss Bertha Hofman, 47 years old, was found in the lake in Lafayette Park yesterday morning a few hours after her brother, Jacob, reported she had left their flat at 1034A Julia street, saying she was going to end her life by jumping in the river.

Hofman said his sister, who had been born and had lived all her life at the Julia street address, had been suffering from a delusion that she had an incurable ailment. He reported her missing after following her from the house but failing to find her.

Again Hudson gives you proof of power, performance, ruggedness—instead of claims. Seven new official A. A. A. records at Daytona Beach—on February 11.

Top speed counts, of course! And Hudson set a new stock car record of nearly a mile and a half a minute. But more amazing was its mark of a mile at 68.18 m. p. h. from a standing start. That's acceleration, and lightning fast shifting with the Electric Hand. And its running-start record in second gear at more than 70 m. p. h.—"the most savage punishment I ever gave a car," the driver called it. That's ruggedness!

Said Sir Malcolm Campbell—"A remarkably smooth, powerful motor. But what amazed me most is the way the car was unaffected by the slamming around it took in preparation for the runs."

Remember, a stock Hudson sedan set these records—a car picked at random from a dealer's showroom by A. A. A. officials. Come in and see its duplicate and by all means drive it before you decide on any car. Try it!

What "BUILT BY HUDSON" means

The only cars with bodies all of steel . . . bodies that reinforce the chassis, while the chassis reinforces the body . . . giving greatest strength, yet eliminating hundreds of pounds of useless weight.

Motors noted for their smoothness, balance and ability to develop more power than other motors of comparable size.

The result of this combination (as engineered and built by Hudson alone), is the world's greatest stock car performance . . . proved by scores of official A. A. A. records.

TEXT OF PROCLAMATION BY HITLER INCREASING SIZE OF GERMAN ARMY

Nation "Wishes to Safeguard Its Territorial Integrity and Command International Respect."

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 16.

To the German People:

When in November, 1918, the German people, trusting in the promises given in President Wilson's 14 points, grounded arms after four and a half years of honorable resistance in a war whose outbreak they had never desired, they believed they had rendered a service not only to tormented humanity but also to a great idea per se.

Themselves the most serious sufferers from the result of this insane struggle, the millions composing our people trustingly seized upon the idea of a new order in the relations between peoples, an order which was to be ennobled on one hand by doing away with the secrecy of diplomatic Cabinet policies and on the other hand by abandoning the terrible methods of war. The historically severest result of the defeat seemed to many Germans to be the only sacrifice necessary in order once and for all to save the world from similar terrors.

Hopeful of the League.

The idea of the League of Nations has perhaps in no nation awakened more fervent acclaim than in Germany, stripped as she was of all earthly happiness. Only thus was it conceivable that the German people not only accepted, but also fulfilled the conditions, verily senseless in many respects, for the destruction of every condition and possibility of defense.

The German people, and especially their governments of that time, were convinced that by fulfillment of the conditions of disarmament laid down in the Versailles treaty and in accordance with the promises of that treaty, the beginning of international general disarmament would be marked and guaranteed.

For only in a two-sided fulfillment of the task set by the treaty could there lie a moral and sensible justification for a demand which, one-sidedly imposed and executed, had necessarily to lead to an eternal discrimination and thereby to a declaration of inferiority of a great nation.

Under such conditions however, a peace treaty of this sort could never create the conditions for a true inward reconciliation of peoples nor for the pacification of the world achieved in this manner, but could only set up a hatred that would gnaw eternally.

Armed Power Reduced.

Germany has, according to the investigation of the interallied control commission, fulfilled the disarmament conditions imposed upon here. Following the work of destruction of the German power of resistance and the means necessary therefore there was certified by this commission:

Army 59,897 cannon and heavy gun barrels, 130,558 machine guns, 31,470 mine throwers and barrels, 6,007,000 guns and carbines, 243,937 machine gun bores, 28,001 cannon carriages, 4390 machine gun carriages, 38,750,000 bullets, 16,550,000 hand and gun grenades, 60,400,000 fuses, 491,000,000 rounds of ammunition for hand weapons.

Three hundred and thirty-five thousand tons of shell cases, 23,515 tons of cartridge cases, 37,600 tons of power, 79,500 ammunition empties, 212,000 telephones, 1072 flame throwers, 31 armored cars, 59 tanks, 1762 observation cars, 8982 wireless stations, 1240 field bakeries, 2199 pontoons, 987.7 tons of equipment for soldiers, 8,230,350 sacks of equipment for soldiers, 7300 pistols and revolvers, 180 machine gun sleds, 21 transportable workshops, 12 antiaircraft gun-carriers, 11 limbers, 64,000 steel helmets, 174,000 gas masks, 2500 machines of the former war industry, 8000 gunbarrels.

Air forces: 15,714 chasing and bombing planes, 2757 airplane motors.

Navy: material that was neither destroyed, scrapped, sunk or handed over: 26 first-class battleships, four coastal cruisers, four armored cruisers, 19 small cruisers, 21 schooling and other ships, 83 torpedo boats, 315 submarines.

War Material Destroyed.

In addition there had to be destroyed vehicles of all sorts, utensils for gas attacks and partly for gas-protection, fuel of various kinds and explosives, searchlights, gun-sighting appliances, instruments for measuring distance in sound, optical instruments of all kinds, harness for horses, equipment for narrow gauge railways, printeries, field kitchens, workshops, cut and thrust weapons, steel helmets, material for transporting munitions, normal and special machines belonging to war industry, mounting frames, drawings for the latter and hangars for airplanes and airships, et cetera.

After this historically unexampled fulfillment of a treaty, the German people had the right to expect the redemption also by the other side of obligations undertaken. For, firstly, Germany had disarmed; secondly, in the peace treaty the demand had been expressly made that Germany must be disarmed in order thereby to create the pre-condition for general disarmament, that is, it was contended that Germany's armaments alone furnished the reason for the armaments of the other countries; thirdly, the German people at that time were filled both as regards their Government and their parties with a spirit that corresponded exactly with the pacifistic-democratic ideals of the League of Nations and its founders.

Charges Violation of Treaty.

But while Germany as one party to the treaty had fulfilled its obligations, the redemption of the obligation on the part of the second partner to the treaty failed to become a fact. That means: the high contracting parties of the former victor states have one-sidedly divorced themselves from the obligations of the Versailles treaty.

Not alone did they refrain from disarming in a manner that could by any stretch be comparable with the destruction of German arms. No, not even was there a halt in the armaments race, on the contrary the increase of armaments on the part of a whole group of states became evident. Whatever had during the war been invented in the way of new engines of destruction now was in peace time brought to final perfection by methodically scientific labor.

"Germany in a Vacuum."

In the realm of creating mighty armored cars as well as in that of new fighting and bombing planes, continuous and terrible improvements resulted. New gigantic cannon were constructed, new explosive fire and gas bombs were developed.

The world, however, since then has again resumed its cries of war just as though there never had been a world war nor the Versailles Treaty. In the midst of these highly armed, warlike states which were more and more making use of the most modern motorized equipment, Germany was, militarily speaking, in a vacuum, defenselessly at the mercy of every threatening danger.

The German people recall the misfortune and suffering of 15 years of economic misery and political and moral humiliation. It was therefore understandable that Germany began to loudly demand the fulfillment of the promises made by other states to disarm for this is clear: the world would not only stand for 100 years of peace, but such a period would be an unmeasured boon. It cannot, however, stand for 100 years of division into victor and vanquished.

The conviction that international disarmament was morally justified and necessary, gained ground, not only in Germany but also among many other peoples. From the insistence of these forces there resulted attempts through conferences to give direction to the reduction of armaments and thereby to a general international equalization on a low level. Thus there developed the first proposals for an international agreement on armaments of which we remember the MacDonald plan as significant.

Germany was ready to accept this plan and adopt it as the foundation for arrangements to be arrived at. It failed because the other states declined to accept it, and was finally abandoned.

Withdrawal From League.

Inasmuch as under these circumstances the equality which was solemnly promised to the German people and Reich in the declaration of December, 1932, failed of realization, the new Reich's Government, as guardian of the honor and right to live of the German people, was unable to continue to take part in conferences of that sort or to continue membership in the League of Nations. However, even after leaving Geneva, Germany still was ready, not only to examine the other states' proposals, but herself to make practical proposals.

In that connection she identified herself with the viewpoint which other states themselves had expressed; namely, that the creation of armies with short enlistments is not suited to the purposes of attack, and is therefore to be recommended for peaceful defense. Germany was therefore ready to transform the Reichswehr with its long service period into an army with short enlistments, consonantly with the wishes of the other states.

Offers Declined.

Her proposals, made during the winter of 1933-34, were practical and executable. The fact that they were declined as well as the fact that Italian and English proposals along similar lines were finally declined, justified the conclusion that on the other side of the contracting parties there no longer existed any inclination for a belated and honest fulfillment of the disarmament clauses of Versailles.

Under these circumstances the German Government saw itself compelled of its own accord to take those necessary measures which could insure the end of a condition of impotent defenselessness of a great people and Reich, which was as unworthy as in the last analysis it was menacing. In so doing it proceeded from the same premises which Mr. Baldwin (Stanley Baldwin, British Lord President of the council) in his last speech so truthfully expressed: "A country which is not willing to adopt the necessary preventive measures for its own defense will never enjoy any power in this world, either moral or material."

The government of the present day German Reich, however, desires but one single moral and material power, namely the power to safeguard peace for the Reich and thereby, really also, for all Europe.

Cities Efforts for Peace.

The government, therefore, continued to do what it could and what served the advancement of peace. Firstly, it proposed a long time ago the conclusion of non-aggression pacts to all its neighbor states.

Secondly it has sought for and found the adjustment laid down in the treaty with its eastern neighbor which, thanks to the great understanding shown on the other side, has as it hopes, forever taken the poison out of the threatening atmosphere which it found on seizing power, and which will lead to lasting reconciliation and friendship between the two peoples.

Thirdly it has finally given France the solemn assurance that Germany, after the adjustment of the Saar question, now no longer will make territorial demands upon France.

It believes thereby, in a manner rare in history, to have created the pre-condition for ending the century old strife between the two great nations by making a heavy political and material sacrifice.

Rest of World Rearming.

The German Government must, however, to its regret, note that for months the rest of the world has been rearming continuously and increasingly. It sees in the creation of a Soviet Russian Army of 101 divisions, that is, in an admitted present peace strength of 960,000 men, an element that at the time of the conclusion of the Versailles treaty could not have been divined. It sees in the forcing of similar measures in other states further proofs of the declination to accept the disarmament idea as originally proclaimed.

Far be it from the German Government to raise complaint against any other state. It must point out, however, today that by France's introduction of a two-year service period as now decided the idea upon which the creation of armies with short enlistment had been tested has been abandoned in favor of an organization with long enlistments. This however, was one of the arguments advanced at the time for demanding that Germany give up her Reichswehr.

"Safeguarding Honor of Reich."

Under these circumstances the German Government considers it impossible to still longer refrain from taking the necessary measures for the security of the Reich or even to hide the knowledge thereof from the other nations.

If therefore, it now fulfills the wish for enlightening the world on Germany's intentions, as expressed in the speech by the British Minister Stanley Baldwin, Nov. 28, 1934, it does so:

Firstly, in order to give the German people the conviction and other states the knowledge that the safeguarding of the honor and security of the German Reich henceforth will be again entrusted to the own power of the German nation.

Secondly, in order, by fixing the extent of German measures, to devitalize those claims which attempt to ascribe to the German people a striving for a position of military hegemony in Europe.

What the German Government as the guardian of the honor and interests of the German nation desires is to make sure that Germany possesses sufficient instruments of power not only to maintain the integrity of the German Reich, but also to command international respect and value as co-guarantor of general peace.

"Exclusively for Defense."

For in this hour the German Government renews before the German people, before the entire world, its assurance of its determination never to proceed beyond the safeguarding of German honor and freedom of the Reich, and especially does it not intend in rearming Germany to create any instrument for warlike attack, but on the contrary, exclusively for defense and thereby for the maintenance of peace.

In so doing the German Reich's Government expresses the confident hope that the German people, having again reverted to their own honor, may be privileged in independent equality to make its contribution for the pacification of the world in free and open co-operation with other nations and their governments.

Text of Decree.

With this in view, the German Reich's Government today passed the following law:

"Law for the upbuilding of a defensive force, dated March 16, 1935," which is hereby made public:

"1. Service in defensive force ensues on a basis of general obligation to defend.

"2. The German peace army, inclusive of police troops incorporated therein, consists of 12 corps commands and 36 divisions.

"3. Supplementary laws for regulating general defensive duty are to be presented to the Reich's Cabinet by the Reich's Minister of Defense.

BORAH ATTACKS PRICES 'SANCTIONED' BY NRA

"Extortionate," He Says — Cites Trade Commission Report on Steel Code.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—A charge by Senator Borah (Rep.), Idaho, that the NRA had sanctioned "extortionate prices" was made tonight as the Senate Finance Committee prepared to hear Clarence Darrow, critic of the recovery organization, Monday, in its investigation of the agency. Darrow headed the group which made the first investigation and critical report of the NRA.

Borah said in a statement the report of the Federal Trade Commission on price-fixing under the steel code "disclosed that the people and the Government itself are being subjected to extortionate prices and the report says specifically that this price-fixing has the sanction and the protection of the codes."

Borah, who favors abandoning all but the labor provisions of the recovery act, said the situation disclosed by the Trade Commission in the steel industry was "not an isolated case" and could be found in other industries.

Trade Commission Report.

"If the people could read the thorough and courageous report of the Federal Trade Commission just filed, there would be no shred of doubt left as to the manner and as to the effect of price-fixing as it is now carried on under the protection of the codes," Borah said.

"This report discloses that the people and the Government itself are being subjected to extortionate prices, and the report says specifically that this price-fixing has the sanction and the protection of the codes.

"A similar investigation by this commission would disclose a similar condition, although effective in a different way, in other industries. This is not an isolated case.

"We are about to vote the burden of some $5,000,000,000 on the taxpayers of this country. A large amount of this sum will be expended for material purchased of these combinations. The material will be purchased at the prices fixed in the manner disclosed by this report.

Relief Money to Monopolies.

"Thus, a large part of this money voted out of the taxpayers' money will be voted directly into the pockets of these price-fixing monopolies. A goodly per cent of the $5,000,000,000 will by this reason never reach those whom it ought to reach.

"S. Clay Williams, chairman of the Recovery Board, made the statement before the Finance Committee yesterday that the anti-trust laws must be relaxed in order to continue the codes. In other words, it was a plain statement that monopoly is an essential factor in the code system.

"He also stated that the enforcement of the codes would likely destroy about 10 per cent of the small business interests of the country. Well, when you get that 10 per cent destroyed, in the very nature of things you must destroy another 10 per cent that is on the outer edge of the industrial world."

CITY LOSES TAX SUIT AGAINST LACLEDE CO.

Judge Sustains Demurrer to Action for $473,417 Occupational Levy.

A demurrer of the Laclede Power & Light Co. to a suit filed by the city for $473,417 in taxes, at 5 per cent on gross receipts for five years was sustained by Circuit Judge Bader yesterday. It was contended by defense that the city failed to state a cause of action in its effort to collect the tax, an occupational levy for use of streets and alleys.

The city said the tax was authorized by an ordinance enacted in 1917, but the Laclede company had never paid it, although as a public utility it was affected by the terms of the measure. It was pointed out that similar taxes had been paid by the Union Electric Light & Power Co., and by the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

Counsel for the Laclede Power & Light Co., which is a subsidiary of the Laclede Gas Light Co., argued before Judge Bader that the petition in the case failed to aver that the company had accepted the terms of the ordinance. The only point determined in the demurrer was as to the sufficiency of the petition. However, it has been contended that Laclede Power was exempt from payment of the tax, being entitled to such exemption by its charter, which was granted by the Legislature many years ago.

The suit was brought for the years 1929 to 1933, inclusive, because the statute of limitations barred collection of the tax for previous years. Associate City Counselor Oliver J. Senti, who handled the case for the city, announced that an amended petition would be filed, with averments to meet the objection raised in the demurrer.

CHINA ATTACKS RAILWAY SALE

Calls Soviet-Japanese Deal "Illegal" in Note to Other Nations.

SHANGHAI, March 16.—The National Government announced tonight it objects to Russia's sale of its interest in the Chinese Eastern Railway to "the puppet regime" (Manchoukuo).

A spokesman said the Government had sent notes to the United States, England, Japan, France, Italy, Holland, Portugal and Belgium, saying "although the formal signing of the Sino-Eastern Railway transfer agreement is slated for March 22, China continues to reserve its rights and interests in the road, despite its illegal sale."

STATE READY TO DROP LAST INSULL CHARGES

Chicago Prosecutor Orders Embezzlement Case Against Two Brothers Dismissed.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 16.—The only remaining State charges against Samuel Insull Sr. and his brother, Martin J. Insull, will be dropped. State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney instructed his assistants today to nolle pros indictments containing another charge of embezzlement against the two.

Courtney said: "In view of the acquittal of the Insulls (Samuel and his brother, Martin) on the strongest indictments against them, and because of the fact that the evidence in the pending case has been passed upon by a jury in the recent trial of Samuel Insull, I do not believe a conviction can be obtained on the indictment pending."

The indictment charges the two Insulls with the embezzlement of $104,722 from the Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment Co. Martin Insull, however, was to be tried only on $20,000 of this amount, due to a ruling of the Canadian Court when he was extradited last year.

The charges will be dismissed Monday. Immediately, Martin Insull will be turned over to immigration officials. He must leave the country in 30 days. In spite of his long residence in Chicago, he is a British subject. When Chicago authorities returned him from Canada for trial, immigration officials allowed him to enter only for purposes of the trial.

TEXAS RANGERS START DRIVE AGAINST CRIME

On Governor's Orders, They Raid Gambling and Liquor Places in 3 Cities.

By the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., March 16.—Texas rangers were "in the saddle" again tonight under orders from Gov. James V. Allred to stamp out crime. In a series of raids in widely-separated cities, they seized liquor and gambling apparatus and made a number of arrests.

Gov. Allred called on all "law-abiding citizens of Texas to back me up and to demand that their local officers stop this wholesale flaunting of the law. Neither Adjutant General Carl Nesbit (Commander of the Rangers) nor myself has any desire to send Rangers into any community, but it is our duty to do so when local officers fail or refuse to enforce the law."

The Governor telegraphed to Guy T. Helvering, Collector of Internal Revenue at Washington, a protest against the Federal Government's levying and collecting an excise tax on liquor in Texas. He said it amounted to a license to operate saloons, was illegal and was an "indefensible, bad policy." Prohibition of hard liquor has not been repealed in Texas, although 3.2 beer has been legalized.

In Galveston, a seaside resort, a fashionable downtown gambling house was raided by Rangers under command of the veteran Capt. J. B. Wheatley.

Twenty-three patrons were arrested and fined $1 and costs on the spot, three employes were taken into custody, and thousands of dollars worth of gambling equipment was smashed with axes. Other gambling and liquor joints closed on hearing of the raid. Trucks removed slot machines and other gambling devices.

In Houston eight Rangers under Capt. Fred McDaniels marched into a night club, smashed two dice tables, confiscated a roulette wheel and charged two men with operating a gaming house. Gambling houses in San Antonio and Galveston shut down pending developments.

James P. Somerville Dies.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 16.—James P. Somerville, 71 years old, veteran insurance man and founder of the Co-operative International Civic Organization, died of a heart attack here today. He was the International's second president.

Conoco Travel Bureau Reports Large Tourist Expenditure in State

Says 265,585 Motorists It Directed Spent $10,926,864 in Missouri in 1934.

The popularity of Missouri for automobile vacationists from all parts of the country is indicated by a report by the Conoco Travel Bureau, a branch of the Continental Oil Co. and America's largest free travel service. According to the report, 265,585 Travel Bureau tourists spent more than $10,926,864 in this State last year.

It also was shown that motor travel throughout the United States was unusually heavy in 1934. Hotels, tourist camps, restaurants and many other types of business took in more money from tourists than in any other year since 1929.

The bureau supplied detailed trip services to 969,485 vacationists, or to 41 per cent more than the organization's total in 1933. Statistics also show that Travel Bureau tourists spent in excess of 40 million dollars while they were away from home.

The Conoco Travel Bureau is an organization maintained by Continental to provide motorists with up-to-date information on North American roads, routes, hotels, cottage camps, scenic and historical attractions and other data likely to make vacation trips pleasant and profitable.

More than 100 carefully trained men and women are employed in the bureau's central offices at Denver. Conoco's 22,000 service stations act as field branches. It is predicted that one and one-half million vacationists will rely on Travel Bureau assistance this year.

General Motors Offers Course for Teachers In Schools, Colleges

The third annual summer course for teachers of automotive mechanics in high schools and colleges is announced by the General Motors Institute at Flint, Mich. The training covers a four weeks' period from July 1 to July 28.

In continuing this course, the General Motors Corporation is recognizing the growing interest of undergraduates in the automobile industry and is co-operating with school authorities in providing teachers of automotive subjects with the benefits of practical experience in this field.

Teachers from 15 states and Canada have come to the institute for this training the past two years. The course includes car specifications and adjustments, instruction methods and procedures, service operations and equipment, trade and vocational guidance information. The course this year will be the most extensive yet offered.

Enrollment is open to any qualified teacher and to those of allied professions who are designated by school authorities or General Motors' representatives as qualified for such training. Previous experience has shown that successful completion of the course is considered for college credit.

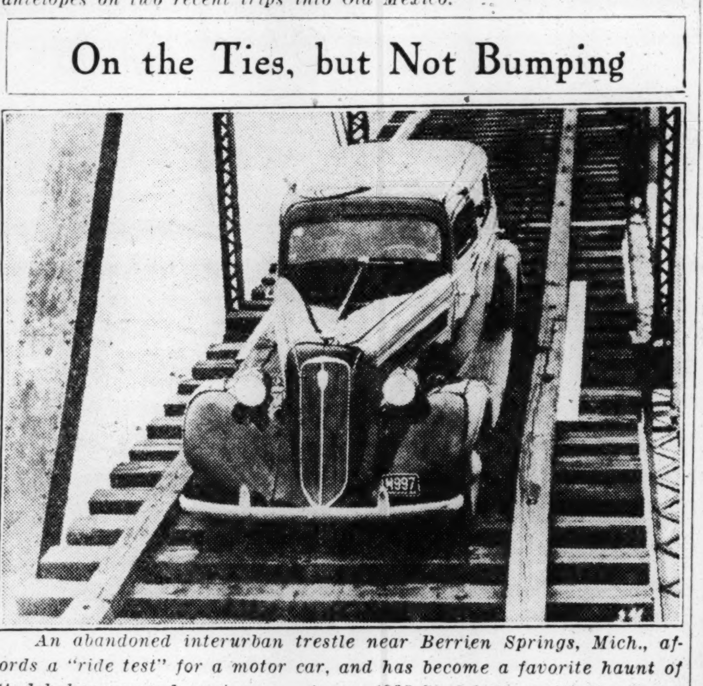
On the Ties, but Not Bumping



An abandoned interurban trestle near Berrien Springs, Mich., affords a "ride test" for a motor car, and has become a favorite haunt of Studebaker research engineers. A new 1935 Studebaker, with the Studebaker planar front wheel suspension, is pictured traveling over the ties at a speed said to be 55 miles an hour. Although the going is extremely rough, the occupants of the car had a smooth ride. Incredulous automobile editors have taken the ride and been thoroughly convinced of the unusually smooth performance given by the new Studebaker development, a statement from the Studebaker factory says.

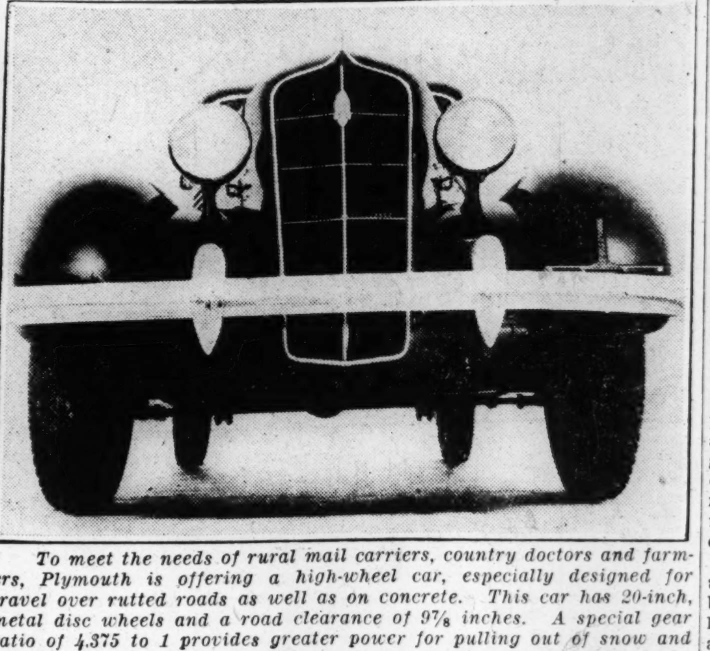
Sale of Used Cars Improving, NADA Report Declares

A definite improvement in the sales movement of used cars, with satisfactory inroads being made on the stocks on dealers' hands that began increasing as new car production became active and distribution started in January, is indicated by the used car sales reports to N. A. D. A. headquarters here, according to F. W. A. Vesper, president.

In a bulletin to 30,000 members next week will be the suggestion that, due to the shortened season this year with the introduction of new models set for 31 weeks from March 1, dealers can stimulate the turnover in used cars by cleaning up and painting used car display space in preparation for a spring rush, and by establishing a "ladies' day" for used car sales each Tuesday.

For Rutted Road Driving



To meet the needs of rural mail carriers, country doctors and farmers, Plymouth is offering a high-wheel car, especially designed for travel over rutted roads as well as on concrete. This car has 20-inch, metal disc wheels and a road clearance of 9⅞ inches. A special gear ratio of 4.375 to 1 provides greater power for pulling out of snow and mud.

Graham Six Economy Test Gives 24 Miles Per Gallon Average

An ordinary fruit glass jar plays an important part in gasoline economy tests conducted by engineers of the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation to determine the fuel economy of the Graham Six, the newest contender in the lowest price range.

The jar is attached to the instrument panel of the car and is connected by a tube to the fuel pump. It contains a quart of gasoline and is in full view of the driver. Thus, the quart of gasoline is measured against the speedometer reading to determine exactly the mileage obtained.

The results of these tests showed 24 miles to a gallon at 35 miles an hour and 20.4 miles at 50 miles an hour. The tests were made in cold weather at average winter temperatures. It was indicated that the results would be improved considerably in warm weather.

Philco Introduces More Powerful Automobile Battery

A new Philco diamond grid XI22 battery for automobiles and auto radio sets was shown to dealers Friday and yesterday at meetings held at Hotel Melbourne by the Philco Radio and Television Co., Philadelphia.

This XI22 battery, the first of a new Philco "superpower" battery line, is built with especially heavy positive plates so necessary with the more powerful generators in modern autos. It has 17 plates of the same size as those in 13-plate batteries, yet occupies no more space than a 13-plate battery. Its capacity is 122 ampere hours as compared with the 80 ampere hours of the average 13-plate battery.

It is designed to compare as follows with a 13-plate battery: 326 per cent more plate buckling resistance; 11 to 26 per cent more grid metal; higher efficiency; more effective locking of active battery material; 41 per cent more power reserve, and 10 per cent higher power voltage under drain.

The XI22 battery is immediately available through dealers. Other batteries in the new "superpower" line, up to 23-plate batteries of 166-ampere capacity for certain cars, will be on the market within a few days.

Among the speakers at the Philco meeting here were Phil S. Harvey of Philadelphia, salesmanager of the battery division, and M. W. Heinritz of Chicago, central division manager of the Philco Radio & Television Co.

ENJOYS BIG-CAR LUXURY—YET SAVES MONEY EVERY MILE

Owners everywhere confess amazement at the gas and oil economy of the New-Value Dodge. They say it actually costs less to run than the lowest-priced cars!

Yet for all its advantages—in style, comfort, safety and dependability—the new Dodge now delivers for just a few dollars more than the lowest-priced cars.

Beauty of 1935 Cars Largely Due to Women Chevrolet Man Says

Beauty of exterior appearance and quality of interior appointments of the 1935 cars are due largely to women's increasing influence, according to William E. Holler, general sales manager of Chevrolet Motor Co.

"The mechanical perfection of the automobile gave women the confidence in their ability to drive and drive well," says Holler. "Mechanical features are no longer a mystery to most feminine motorists. But whether or not mechanical features are a more potent factor in selling the women remains in doubt.

"Beauty in appearance and quality of appointment transcends every other factor in appealing to the feminine buyer."

Pontiac Production In February 16,327 Cars, Breaking Record

February broke factory production and retail records of several years standing, it is announced by A. W. L. Gilpin, vice-president and general sales manager of the Pontiac Motor Co. Production in the month totaled 16,327 cars, breaking all records for any single month since 1929.

Retail deliveries by Pontiac dealers totaled 10,732 cars which made the month the best February in six years.

The delivery figure shows a good increase over the 7375 for January of this year, and more than doubled the deliveries in February of 1934, which were 4631 cars.

A General Motors Value

At first sight, America named the Silver Streak Pontiac the most beautiful thing on wheels. But even that high praise tells only half of Pontiac's story. Get in, drive, and you'll discover that this low-priced car is even better than it looks. It's an unusually safe car with solid steel "Turret-Top" Bodies by Fisher and triple-sealed hydraulic brakes. It's a marvel on the road—smooth, lively, easy to handle and easy on gas and oil. And, as such superfine features as silver-alloy bearings and a completely sealed chassis prove, Pontiac asks no odds of any car at any price when it comes to quality and dependability. A look, a ride and you'll decide—the car makes the price phenomenal.

Survey of Used Car Reconditioning, Selling Handling Cost Made

Several weeks of investigation and study of confidential, individual reports from automobile retail dealers throughout the country by headquarters of the National Automobile Dealers' Association here, the trade will be informed by bulletin next week, has determined the cost of the handling, selling and reconditioning of used cars traded in for new ones.

The cost and handling of the average used car is given as 16½ per cent of its selling price. Reconditioning, which is a variable factor and must be determined by the dealer in each case, will average 8½ per cent.

"The used car that is purchased in most instances is an entirely different article from that which the dealer accepts in trade," the bulletin will read. "This is an angle with which the used car buyer is not generally familiar, yet it represents a service which has a distinct effect upon the satisfaction and unused transportation value in the used car."

"For every new car sold," it is stated, "the dealer handles 2 to 10 used cars. In reconditioning cars traded in, many dealers follow a standard method in their service departments. A car checked for needed repairs when it becomes part of the stock on hand. It is washed and polished, the interior and upholstery cleaned, the motor and chassis cleaned and repaired. Often it is repainted, brakes adjusted, oil and grease changed, battery checked and the lighting system readjusted. Worn parts are replaced with new ones. So the used car which the dealer sells to the public is in most cases greatly improved compared to what it was when traded in.

New 'Lifeguard' Tube On Chrysler, De Soto, Dodge, Plymouth Cars

Chrysler Motors announces that the new "lifeguard" tube recently perfected by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. will be available immediately in all Chrysler, De Soto, Dodge and Plymouth cars.

The announcement follows a dramatic demonstration of the new safety device at the Detroit Airport recently. At that time, engineers demonstrated the effectiveness of this tube by mechanically blowing out the tires of cars speeding down the runway of the airport. Cars equipped with tires having ordinary tubes swerved and careened dangerously, while the "Lifeguard" equipped ones proceeded smoothly down the track to an easy stop.

The Goodyear "Lifeguard" tube does not prevent blow-outs, but makes them harmless. It consists of a heavy tube with a second tube built inside in reality, twin tubes, one inside the other, both inflated by the same valve. The air passes from the inner tube to the outer tube through one small vent. Should the tire become weakened or damaged enough to cause a blow-out, only the outer tube "blows." The inner tube remains inflated for half to three-quarters of a mile.

Three Packard 120 Cars on 25,000-Mile "Worst Roads" Test

After 25,000 miles of driving over the worst roads and under other of the most difficult of motoring conditions that could be found in America, three Packard cars returned to Detroit last week. They were new 120 Packards sent out on what is declared to have been one of the most trying test runs ever undertaken.

Leaving Detroit, the cars were first driven to Texas, as word had been received that road conditions in a part of that State were "impossible." Thousands of miles of driving were piled up, and then the cars headed for the Imperial Valley in California.

In the vicinity of Indio, Cal., sand storms were so bad, that at times face masks were worn by the drivers.

From points 250 feet below sea level where the thermometer stood at 90 degrees and more the cars were driven over rough trails at altitudes of 8000 feet and temperatures below zero.

At times paved highways were sought out and the cars run for days at a time at their highest speed. Then the cars were taken into the mountains for the most difficult driving, day after day, that the country afforded. One day 370 miles of sharp turn, stiff climbing, rock tunnels and the other motoring difficulties offered by the Rocky Mountains were negotiated.

Stranahan Declares Trips Convince Him Public Wants Quality

R. A. Stranahan, president of the Champion Spark Plug Co., has just returned from one of his frequent and extended trips to report that in his travels he noticed definite trend by the public toward products that have a demonstrable quality appeal.

"People who have always suspected the unknown and the shoddy product," Stranahan says, "realize more than ever that it is wise to buy the product that is honestly made and honestly priced. The dependability and inherent merit of well and favorably known merchandise are worth many times the slight margin that sometimes exists in first cost.

Stranahan says that all companies that have kept their rightful place as quality manufacturers can expect widespread benefit from their courageous policy to which they were steadfast through a time when it would have been easy to sacrifice ideals for possible immediate sales.

Most Reo Cars Built in Past Three Years Have the Self-Shifter

Since the patented Reo automatic self-shifter transmission went into production, nearly three years ago, more than 85 per cent of all Reo Flying Clouds and Reo Royales have been equipped with the device.

The automatic self-shifter removes the dangers attendant upon shifting gears and the mental strain. Both hands are at all times free for steering and signaling.

Traffic Problem in England.

England is constantly studying and experimenting to reduce traffic accidents on the highways. It is believed that widespread publication of figures showing the high rate of fatalities, and the posting of large maps throughout the country, marked with pins and flaps like battlefield maps, showing the points of most frequent casualties, have done much to teach more careful driving.

Buick Shipments Of "Knocked Down" Cars Abroad Increase

Indication of improved activity in foreign markets is seen in figures by the Buick Motor Co., showing that the percentage of Buick cars shipped "knocked down" for assembly in foreign plants of General Motors has increased steadily in the past two years and now exceeds the ratio of 1929.

These shipments to date this year already exceed the total in 1932 and 1933, and are equal to nearly half of the total foreign assembly shipments made in 1934.

The ratios of "knocked down" foreign shipments to total domestic production in the past seven years follows: 1929, 6.23 per cent; 1930, 4.81 per cent; 1931, 3.18 per cent; 1932, 1.82 per cent; 1933, 2.72 per cent; 1934, 6.00 per cent; 1935 (to date), 7.12 per cent.

Blind Pedestrians Guarded.

Electric Signals To Rule Running of 500-Mile Race May 30

Electric slow and go signals will be installed on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway for the running of the twenty-third annual 500-mile race on May 30.

In the past the race has been handled by a system of hand-manipulated flags. It was started with a green flag. The yellow flag indicated that there was trouble on the track and cautioned cars to slow down to a controllable speed until the condition was cleared up. Cars running under such a caution flag could not improve their position under penalty of disqualification. Stationed about the track, under his system, were officials who put out the caution flag when local danger developed and this flag was picked up by other officials at vantage points. The slow signals were thus relayed by track officials and field telephones to the official starter who then assumed charge of the situation.

Under the new electric traffic light system, the official in charge of a section of the track will determine the danger of a local accident in his particular corner and, by pressing a button, put on the caution light in six sections of the track, thus slowing down the cars until the situation is cleared up. The cars will then run under controllable speed, maintaining their respective positions, until the judges stand determines that track conditions are safe. Then the green light will be flashed at all six points to indicate that the track is clear and the race may again go on at full tilt.

'Knee Action' Explained in General Motors Booklet Just Issued

What motorists have indicated it wants to know about "knee-action" wheels is covered in a booklet just issued by the Customer Research Staff of General Motors.

This booklet, entitled "The Story of Knee-Action," is somewhat of a departure in that it is based on the queries and comments resulting from General Motors questionnaire surveys in the past year—the period in which "knee-action" cars have been in the hands of drivers.

The 48-page booklet discloses historical facts about independent front wheel suspension such as that of the French designer, Amedee Bollee Sr., who built a steam car in 1878 embodying a crude type of independent suspension.

"Knee-action" is discussed not only in terms of comfort, but also in terms of steering, braking control, roadability and safety.

The tour will get under way on May 25, with two cars leaving Lowell, Mass., and two leaving Miami, Fla., on that day.

By J. L. S.

FRIEDA HEMPEL, formerly a Metropolitan Opera star, known throughout this country and Europe as a concert singer, will be the "guest" on KSD at 8 o'clock in the Manhattan Merry-Go-Round period. Mme. Hempel has sung in virtually every opera house of importance, her repertoire comprising 80 roles. Born in Germany, she made her debut in the Royal Opera. Later she sang in grand opera in Paris, Stockholm, Warsaw, Budapest, Brussels, London, New York and Chicago.

"The Walls of Jericho" will be the Old Testament story presented in KSD's Immortal Drama at 1 o'clock today.

Alberto Salvi, the harpist, will be featured in Tony Wons program at 4:30 this afternoon on KSD.

"Killarney," "Tipperary," Drums' tone poem, "Irelandia," "Kathleen Mavourneen" and other Irish songs are programmed by Frank Simons for the band concert on KSD at 5:30 today. How Station KSD Broadcasts National Network Programs

Those Produced in Chain Headquarters, or Picked Up on Short Waves, Come Over Special Telephone Circuits to Studio in Post-Dispatch Building.

BROADCASTING of national network programs from New York and Chicago is one of the most important functions of KSD, which is a member of the WEAF chain. These programs are planned and rehearsed in the network headquarters studios in Radio City, New York, and ni the Merchandise Mart Building in Chicago, and also come by short wave from foreign countries.

KSD broadcasts network programs in the following manner: Audio frequency currents are set up in microphones in the network studios by entertainers and orchestras in the same manner as in KSD's own studios. These currents are amplified in the network headquarters, then go over special telephone circuits via Buffalo, Cleveland and Chicago to the Beaumont Telephone Exchange "central" in St. Louis. At 200-mile intervals on these circuits are two-stage amplifiers which maintain the intensity of the currents at the proper level. These wire circuits are "equalized" by special mechanism so that the tonal range that the currents will produce when they pass on to KSD's transmitter will not fall off at the "highs" and "lows" below definite levels.

At Beaumont telephone "central" the currents pass into an amplifier which steps them up, and then go over an equalized circuit to the main mixer panel in the KSD studios. From that point they pass through the same amplifying process as do programs from KSD's own studios and eventually are put on the air by the KSD transmitter for reception in the home.

Because of the expense of equalizing hundreds of miles of wire circuits to preserve tonal quality of programs beyond 5000 cycles, the broadcasts from KSD's own studios are of even finer quality than those from the network key stations. The wire circuits from KSD's studios to its transmitter on the roof of the Post-Dispatch Building are so short, that there are not the difficulties that are involved in equalizing the circuits from New York or Chicago to St. Louis. In network broadcasts the tone quality falls off above 5000 cycles and below 80 cycles. When KSD's new 5000-watt transmitter goes into service it should broadcast a range of about 30 to 8000 cycles from its studios, which means that it will send out more of the fundamental deeper tones and more of the overtones that make for realism of reception on a radio set.

Network broadcasts from abroad are put on the air by powerful short-wave stations in the countries of origin. These short-wave broadcasts are picked up by short-wave radio sets in special stations on Long Island, in the East, or near San Francisco, on the Pacific Coast, and the currents they produce in the short-wave sets pass over wires to the network headquarters studios, after which they follow the same course as any other program, coming by telephone wires to the KSD studios and being passed on through the KSD transmitter.

Broadcasts from places in St Louis outside the KSD studios are handled in the same way as those coming from network headquarters. A microphone is set up at the scene and connected to a three-stage portable amplifier, from which the currents produced by the microphone go over equalized circuits to Beaumont "central" and from that to the KSD studios.

WALLACE DISCUSSES FARMING AS UTILITY

POST-DISPATCH BUREAU,
201-205 KELLOGG BLDG.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Admitting that the crop reduction programs of the Roosevelt administration have proved inadequate to bring agricultural prices up to a parity with industrial prices, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, testifying before the House Agricultural Department Subcommittee on Appropriations, suggested two ways by which the present disparity between farm prices and industrial prices might be overcome. The first was an increase of 30 to 40 per cent in the physical output of goods in the cities; the second was the fixing of farm prices by declaring agriculture a public utility.

Wallace's testimony was given before the subcommittee in closed session in January and the transcript became available only this week. The Secretary's gloomy views of the present agricultural situation were elicited through questions by Representative Clarence Cannon of Missouri, a member of the subcommittee. Cannon has a large farm near Elsberry, and is well-informed on farm problems. Wallace is known for his candor and his realistic approach to controversial and embarrassing issues.

Cannon was seeking the cause for the drop in estimated farm income from $12,182,000,000 in 1919, when it was 20.5 per cent of the total national income, to $5,287,000,000 in 1934 when it was only 10.2 per cent of the total. Wallace said that if a "balance" could be reached between farm and city prices, agriculture's share of the national income, on the basis of the present population, should be 13 or 14 per cent. Cannon wanted to know "what steps are now being taken to give agriculture her just share of the national income."

Crop Reduction Fails.

Wallace frankly admitted that the crop reduction programs with the accompanying processing taxes had reached their limit of efficiency and that price parity could not be attained by these methods.

"A continuation of control," he said, "may be necessary, but to carry the reduction below the present point would begin to reduce the quantity of stuff available for the people inside this country. That is not true in the case of cotton, but generally speaking, we say that a reduction in production below that of this year, when, of course, the drouth had a very great effect, would not serve to increase the farmers' share in the national income. We have reached the conclusion that it is exceedingly important, from the standpoint of giving a greater income to agriculture, that there should be definitely an increased output on the part of industry."

Cannon pointed out the obvious fact that regardless of the amount of industrial production, the farmer had to have sufficient income to buy goods from the city.

"Now, Mr. Secretary," Cannon said, "in the absence of any plan or policy which promises the farmer cost of production—much less a profit—many farm leaders are advocating stabilizing farm price at a prewar ratio. Your admirable book "New Frontiers" discards price fixing, but under the codes the NRA is fixing prices of practically everything we buy.

Price Fixing and the Farmer.

"They prosecute in the courts the man who sells either his services or his commodity for less than the established price. They fix the price the farmer has to pay but will not permit him to fix the price at which he sells. If it is good for industry and labor, why is it not good for agriculture? If they were justified in fixing the price of wheat to hold it down during the war, why are we not justified in fixing the price to hold it up during the depression?"

"The most effective price fixing," Wallace replied, "is that employed by the public utilities and the railroads; and I suspect that if agriculture were declared a public utility it would be possible to fix prices. Of course, you understand the conditions under which a public utility works. It means fixed prices. To fix prices really means, by whatever route you get them fixed, that you subject yourselves to a very great deal of supervision."

"Industry seems to be perfectly willing to be subjected to that kind of benevolent supervision," Cannon observed, "and I am certain the farmer will be perfectly willing to be subjected to it if it were the only means of maintaining a decent standard of living on the farm."

Would Mean Regulation of Farms.

"You would have to designate specific markets," Wallace continued, "just when and how much he could market, and in order to enforce a fixed price, you would fix differentials between the markets. You would fix the conditions of labor on the different farms. You would prohibit child labor. You undoubtedly would develop union labor on the farm. That would be a prerequisite. Those would be the things flowing out of that procedure eventually.

"Now, it may be, that in order to put agriculture on exactly the same basis as industry and labor, those things may be necessary; but at that time all parts of our economic system would become quite rigid."

"The disadvantages," Cannon asked, "do not appear so formidable if they mean a commensurate price for hogs, wheat and cotton?"

"I think it is an excellent thing to debate," Wallace said cautiously, "and bring out all sides of; but when you get into price fixing—my record happens to be uniform enough. That is, I opposed price fixing under the NRA and I opposed it in agriculture. That is, I opposed the price-fixing amendments to the AAA in April, 1933, because I felt that it was the thing which economically could not be carried out. It is my observation of NRA, now that NRA is beginning to question as to whether price fixing can be carried out."

Still for Processing Tax.

Answering a question by Cannon, Wallace denied that processing taxes were "no longer serviceable in increasing farm income." He said that the processing tax "may be exceedingly useful in maintaining the farm income." He explained that his position was that further reduction in production, below the level of 1934, would not be likely to increase the farmer's income.

Wallace intimated that it would be possible to curtail production to such a point that while unit farm prices were increased the actual total return to the farmer would be less, and predicted that "by next summer the price of meat animals will be so high that there will be a great outcry on the part of the population in the cities."

In academic circles the raising of prices to such a point that the total income is reduced is known as "the law of diminishing returns." The same condition is expressed tersely in the vernacular as "the higher the fewer." Wallace apparently believed that the present crop reduction programs and the processing taxes have reached this point of diminishing returns, and for that reason he advocated the increase of industrial production and suggested that there should be debates on whether agriculture could be made a public utility.

30TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY OF THE ROOSEVELTS TODAY

Because of Illness of Louis Howe Family Dinner Is Only Event Scheduled.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The Franklin Delano Roosevelts quietly will observe their thirtieth wedding anniversary tomorrow with a family reunion.

Because of the illness of Louis Howe, chief of the President's secretariat, the only entry on the Sunday schedule is a family dinner and on the menu was scrambled eggs.

Almost invariably during these 30 years, the Roosevelts have served scrambled eggs Sunday night and that custom goes back to the wedding day.

Among the gifts was a silver chafing dish. Mrs. Roosevelt presided over it at their first Sunday night supper and she will preside again tomorrow night.

All the President's immediate family had planned to visit the house but various developments interfered. However, the President's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger, were coming from New York. And at least three of the original wedding family party were to be present at the dinner—the President's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic A. Delano, and his aunt, Mrs. Dora Delano Forbes.

COTTON DROP UNSETTLES MARKETS ON ALL BOARDS

Wide Assortment of New Low Prices for 1935 or Longer Are Registered Before Selling Flurries in Commodities and Securities Spend Their Force.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 16.—This was a week of deflation in most of the nation's leading financial markets.

It started with a precipitant slump in cotton on Monday, and a wide assortment of new low prices for 1935 or longer were registered before selling flurries in commodities and securities spent their force.

As the week drew to a close, the atmosphere cleared a little and prices recovered somewhat.

Securities markets were enfeebled during the preceding few weeks by indications that the September-to-February upward cycle of business activity had rounded out a top, by the unsatisfactory earnings situation of the railroads, and by worry in public utility circles over the Federal proposal to eliminate holding companies.

This week it was industrial shares, recent market favorites, which bore the brunt of selling. Rails and utilities, save in some of the low-priced bonds, seemed well sold out, and hardened against adverse news.

Monday's slump in cotton took the markets off guard. There was nothing to account for it save an accumulation of uneasiness over the Federal Government's plans for controlling the new crop, and continuing its loans. This had been accentuated by the slump in sterling exchange and decreasing exports.

Washington agricultural authorities quieted nerves by asserting that there had been no change, and by stating crop-loan and adjustment plans. Sterling recovered rather sharply.

Grains Also Dip.

Grains also dipped for a time, registering new lows for the season, and some of the minor commodity markets slumped, notably rubber and coffee. Wall street grew somewhat uneasy, too, over price structures of industrial products, coincident with Washington discussions of revamping NRA and eliminating price-fixing provisions of the codes.

Markets gained little support from business news. Retail trade reports brightened, and the automobile industry continued to stride forward, but freight movement declined more than seasonally, steel production slackened a trifle, and steel scrap prices softened.

High-grade bonds were the brightest feature of the markets, partly reflecting the Treasury's proposals to use the free part of the "gold profit" from dollar devaluation to retire the Federal bonds behind national bank notes, and to remove the national bank notes from circulation to simplify the currency. This was followed a few days later by the call for redemption of the entire First Liberty Loan.

These steps by the Treasury were interpreted in several quarters in Wall street as reassuring evidence that the threat of currency inflation had been removed, and hopes of a revival of the flow of long-term capital through normal financing channels were lifted.

The rally in sterling failed to bring much better conditions in the money market, for gold-bloc currencies quickly dropped to discounts in terms of the dollar, arousing fresh doubts over their ability to maintain their present gold parities. The Belgian belga was sold.

Some Week-End Price Shading.

Securities markets had a slight chill at the week-end despite the advance of spring, and numerous leading issues edged back a little following yesterday's rise.

Washington news was about a standoff, brokers said. While a jot or two of cheer was derived from the indications of a breaking up of the legislative jam contained in the Senate's defeat of the McCarran wage amendment, the President's signing of a resolution appropriating $750,000 for an investigation of American Telephone & Telegraph was measured by a drop of 2 points in the shares.

Trade news was flimsy, although Cram's reports provided a bright spot with its estimate of passenger car and truck output at 97,090 for the week against 86,973 units for the week ended March 9.

The market setback did not amount to much in the aggregate. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined only 0.2 of a point to 35.2. Trading rocked along at a slightly slower hourly rate than the preceding session, with only 300,500 shares traded. The decline came too late to pull the bulk of the list down, but most of the more active issues closed lower.

U. S. Steel at 28½.

At 28½, U. S. Steel gave up ½ a point, General Electric was down ¼ to 21⅜, while Kennecott moved up ⅝ to 15. Slight weight was taken on by Consolidated Gas and Anaconda.

Small fractions were chipped from Schenley, N. Y. Central, National Distillers, General Motors and Chrysler. Somewhat larger were the fractions taken from Bethlehem Steel and American Can.

Preferred shares, most of them in the specialty group, led the class with gains which ran from 1 to 5 points. Included among these were Armour, Corn Products, Cuban American Sugar, Endicott Johnson, Kresge, McKesson & Robbins, Remington Rand, Safeway Stores, The Fair, U. S. Smelting and West Penn Electric.

Bonds improved generally. Buoyancy in Treasury issues contrasted with irregularly lower foreign obligations.

Foreign exchange markets saw the gold currencies, led by unsettlement in the belga, ease somewhat while the pound sterling picked up 1 cent at $4.80⅝.

Cotton continued to drag with losses running from $1.10 to $1.35 a bale. Wheat at Chicago was ⅝ to ¾ cents a bushel lower, while corn declined ½ to more than a cent a bushel.

Day's 15 Most Active Stocks.

Closing prices and net changes of the 15 most active stocks: A. T. & T., 101¼, down 2⅛; Pierce-Arrow, ½, down ⅛; Consolidated Gas, 17, up ¼; I. T. & T., 6, down ¼; Chrysler, 32½, down ⅛; National Distillers, 26⅞, down ¼; General Motors, 27¾, down ⅛; General Electric, 21⅜, down ¼; Studebaker, new, 2¾, unchanged; Kennecott Copper, 15, up ⅝; Schenley Distilling, 24¾, down ⅛; Anaconda Copper, 8⅝, up ⅛; Phillips Petroleum, 15¼, up ½; Atchison, 40, down ¼; Texas Gulf Sulphur, 30½, down 1; Southern Pacific, 13⅝, up ⅛.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, March 16.—Selling of the belga prompted by the fear that Belgium may devalue her currency featured foreign exchange markets today. Weakness in this and the other gold bloc currencies contrasted with strength in sterling.

In New York the belga weakened .16 of a cent to 23.16 cents.

In London the dollar was a little soft, and in later transactions in New York the pound was 1 cent higher at $4.80⅝.

In Paris the dollar strengthened at an equivalent of 6.526 cents to the franc and in New York francs showed the same degree of easiness at 6.59 cents, off .00⅜ of a cent.

At the closing rate for francs the dollar was at a premium of 66-100 of 1 per cent, compared with a premium of 60-100 of 1 per cent Friday and a premium of 53-100 of 1 per cent a month ago.

GRAIN MARKET CARRIED DOWN BY DIP IN CORN

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, March 16.—Corn went down and wheat followed in trading at the week-end session. Comment of anticipated increase in feed grain imports was called an important factor and tended to offset dust-storm reports effects on wheat.

Reports of dust storms Southwest and action of Liverpool cited.

Winnipeg wheat opened at ¼c decline. The close was ½c net lower.

Liverpool wheat closed ½ to ⅝d higher after opening ¼ to ⅜d higher.

NEW LOW PRICES MADE IN CORN AND OATS MARKETS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 16.—Shaken by official announcement larger imports of feedstuffs can be expected the next six months, corn and oats today dropped to fresh bottom price records.

Wheat at the last gave way to sympathy with corn and oats weakness, although stimulated earlier by severe dust storms southwest and west. Contributing to bearish sentiment was some likelihood that stocks of corn held at Eastern lake ports might be reshipped back to Chicago.

Corn closed unsteady at the day's lowest level, 1¼@1⅝c under yesterday's finish, May 77⅜@½, oats, 1⅞@2⅛ down, wheat, ⅝@⅞c down, May, 92⅛@¼, and provisions varying from 12 cents decline to 40 cents advance.

Many stop loss orders were executed in the corn market, and liquidating sales on the part of future delivery holders formed the distinguishing feature of trading. Foremost unofficial authorities said the corn market was unsettled by a statement from the United States Department of Agriculture intimating lower prices for corn were probable as the result of strong possibility of heavier imports of feeds and also indicating larger use of domestic wheat for feed. Washington reports said more wheat was being fed to livestock than had been anticipated, adding that United States imports of feed grains had enlarged in January and February, and were likely to be augmented during March and later.

Concentrated selling broke out in the oats market following evidence of quick weakness of corn prices. It was pointed out that official statements regarding corn affected oats equally. All deliveries of oats tumbled to below the season's previous bottom quotations. Only July and September corn moved down to new lows.

Most of the day, wheat showed stubborn resistance to selling. Weakness of the cotton market, however, was felt by corn and oats, dragged wheat finally down.

ST. LOUIS CASH GRAIN

In the cash grain market Saturday soft wheat was steady to ½c lower. Trading was quiet because of the lack of offerings. Hard wheat was nominally ½c lower. Nothing was offered. Inquiry was fair. All offerings were disposed of before the late downturn in futures. Oats were ½c lower. Receipts were light and the demand was fair with shippers and elevators buying.

LOCAL STOCK LIST LOWER FOR WEEK

Turnover Shows Contraction From Total Sales of Preceding Period.

Trading on the St. Louis Stock Exchange slackened last week as compared with the preceding week while the price movement was downward. Losses ranged from fractions to over point. The relatively more active shares were only fractionally off. Two shoe issues were off point or so on limited turnover.

Unchanged prices prevailed in a few instances and two or so stocks gained sharply for special reasons.

LOW-PRICED RAIL BONDS DO BETTER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 16.—Encouraged by a steadier tone in U. S. Governments, the bond market displayed feeble rallying tendencies today.

The much kicked-around railroad loans at last found a breathing spell from the enervating influences that have worked havoc to values for a week or longer, and while the gains were small and far from uniform, the general trend of prices indicated an oversold condition in this group.

The Associated Press averages of 20 rails advanced .1 of a point to 78.3, in contrast to the action of the carriers throughout the week when new lows were established on four different days.

Government obligations were helped along by substantial buying in Treasury issues, the majority of which were from 3-32nds to 7-32nds higher at the close. Liberties were lifeless, but there was a heavy turnover in Home Owners' Loan 2¾s which ended 2-32nds higher at 100.8.

Principal beneficiaries of the improvement in rail bonds were the lower-priced issues such as Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, up 2 points at 42¾, Great Northern 4½s, up 1 at 66¾, Chicago & Northwestern 6½s, up 2 at 50, and Southern Pacific 4½s, up 2½ at 59½. Others improving included obligations of Atlantic Coast Line, Erie, Reading, Western Maryland, and Pere Marquette.

A large number of utility and industrial bonds of varying classifications were bid up modestly. American Water Works 6s added another point to its value at 68, Columbia Gas & Elec. 5s gained 2½ at 71½, Penn Dixie Cement 6s were 1 higher at 73, and fractional improvement occurred in bonds of North American Edison, Consolidated Gas and Remington-Rand.

The Associated Press averages for 10 industrials gained .1 of a point at 92.4, that for 10 utilities improved .5 of a point at 86.2.

The foreign section was without feature except for a moderate decline in German obligations following dispatches stating that the Government had decreed compulsory military training for the country.

Transfers aggregated $7,003,000, par value, compared with $7,461,000 last Saturday.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 16.—Within the last week several important corporations have signified their intention to readjusting capital structures via the "write-down" method. In some cases property account book values were lowered for the purpose of reducing depreciation charges and outstanding shares cut to conform to the new setups. The movement, as it is viewed in financial quarters, is to bring property values into better relation with the reduced earnings of recent years.

Standard Oil Co. of N. J. has reduced the tank car and terminal price of No. 1 heating oil ¼ cent to 5½ cents a gallon at New York, Baltimore, Norfolk and Charleston, S. C. Prices of other heating oils were similarly reduced by the company yesterday.

Credit inquiries from American manufacturers and reports from representatives in 75 of the larger cities in a score of foreign countries indicate that world commerce is returning to its natural channels, according to a special survey of Dun & Bradstreet.

Price advances far outnumbered reductions in the markets for heavy and fine chemicals last week, according to the "Oil, Paint & Drug Reporter." The movement of paint materials and supplies for the automotive industry continued good.

A survey of 25 chain store companies, including two mail order houses, shows an increase in sales of more than 8.50 per cent during February compared with the same month last year.

The New York Wool Top Exchange says in its weekly review that wool top futures gave a striking demonstration of steadiness during this week when all other important commodities were declining sharply. Prices for wool tops showed little or no change from the preceding week, the exchange stated.

NEW YORK, March 16.—Favorable dividend changes in the past week numbered 25 against 29 in the previous week, according to the Standard Statistics Co. Unfavorable changes totalled nine, the same as the week before.

WEEK'S METAL REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 16.—Outside influences seemed to retard demand for nonferrous metals in the past week, but with the exception of tin, prices ruled steady.

Erratic fluctuations in London and in sterling exchange, were reflected in tin quotations here. At times, the market was difficult to quote and buyers held off. Prices eased slightly more than 1 cent per pound early in the week, but about half of the losses were recovered.

Interest in copper centered on unofficial reports of the conferences of international copper producers in session here for the indicated purpose of regulating world supplies.

An upturn in foreign markets late in the week, accompanied by fair demand and restricted offers, was regarded as reflecting favorable progress, although no official information was available.

Fair day to day domestic sales were reported by the copper code authority at the unchanged 9 cent basis for electrolytic, with business during the first half of the month amounting to 16,000 tons.

Lead smelters experiences a fair demand which was sufficient to absorb daily ore intake and prices remained unchanged. Buying was diversified for both March and April shipment.

Although demand for zinc was limited, prices generally held unchanged.

Antimony was quiet and unchanged, with buying still on a hand-to-mouth basis.

Steel operations receded slightly further influenced by more cautious buying. Automobile manufacturers reduced purchases despite increased production. Am improved demand for heavy steel, including rails, appeared and buying for agricultural implement manufacturers increased. Tin plate mill operations were maintained.

COTTON MARKET OFF OVER $1 PER BALE

Houses With Foreign Connections Are Active Sellers on Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 16.—A decline of $1.25 to $1.35 a bale in cotton today was attributed to further foreign selling and renewed liquidation. May deliveries sold off to 10.90c or 27 points below Friday's final quotations, and closed at the lowest, with the general market ending barely steady at net declines of 22 to 27 points.

The opening was weak at a decline of 11 to 19 points in the face of relatively steady Liverpool cables. Houses with foreign connections were active sellers. It was thought that some of these offerings were due to nervousness over the international monetary situation. Offerings were taken by the trade and week-end covering, but the market reached the lowest levels in the late trading.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 63,000 bales against 150,000 last year.

George A. Kelly, vice-president of the company, said the decline in net revenue compared with the similar period of 1934 was due principally to increase expenses for car maintenance.

$1000 GIFT TO AID BLIND IN ST. LOUIS

Contribution by Physician and Sister to Be Used for More Braille Books.

A gift of $1000 for the purchase of new reading matter for circulation among sightless St. Louisans has been made to the department for the blind of the Public Library by Dr. Meyer Wiener, a physician, 4609 Pershing avenue, and Mrs. Haymer Lowenhaupt, 220 North Kingshighway boulevard, as a tribute to the memory of their mother, the late Mrs. Julia Wiener, according to an announcement made today.

Edward F. Endicott, blind director of the department, in announcing receipt of the donation, said it is the only large gift ever received by the department and that it comes at a particularly opportune time for the supply of Braille books on hand is inadequate to meet present demands. He said purchases would be made immediately.

He pointed out that according to statistics compiled at the end of the last fiscal year the St. Louis library was second only to the Library of Congress in traffic in Braille books. The Congressional library, the figures show, supplied 51,093 volumes to 3674 borrowers from a stock of 24,359 volumes, while the St. Louis library was supplying 50,279 volumes to 1134 readers from a stock of only 11,008 volumes.

He is unable to say why blind readers here read almost as many books as the Washington blind although there are less than one-third as many, unless it is due to the daily personal visits he makes to sightless fellows in the interest of circulation or that they read more rapidly.

An important benefit that will be derived from the donation will be the purchase of five portable electric phonographs that will reproduce entire novels that have been read and recorded on 12-inch records. Endicott says the library will try to add more of these later as he expects a brisk demand since about 75 per cent of the blind have been unable to master the Braille system. The machines, recently perfected, have been on the commercial market less than six months. They cost $45.50. The records cost $1 each and the average popular novel requires 15 records recorded on both sides. Machines and records will be lent to subscribers free for a 15-day period.

Most of the new books purchased will be in the popular class, both fiction and non-fiction, which are now available almost as soon as the "ink print" issues. The average novel costs $16 and is printed in four large volumes. They used to cost about twice as much, but in recent years with the development of the interpoint system, which permits impressions on both sides of the page, the number of volumes necessary has been reduced. There are 2197 titles on the shelves. They range from the Bible, a 21-volume work, to the latest volume of Zane Grey, who, incidentally, is about the most popular author of the sightless.

Engineers' Society Head to Speak.

Ralph E. Flanders, president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, will speak on the "Engineer and Social Well-Being" at a public meeting in Wayman Crow Hall, on Washington University campus at 11:30 a. m., tomorrow. G. E. Davies, secretary of the society, will also speak.

NATIONAL SCOUT HEAD PRAISES CITY TROOPS

Dr. James E. West Says St. Louis Council Has Made Outstanding Record.

Dr. James E. West, National Scout Executive, has complimented the St. Louis Council on its outstanding record of beginning the Silver Jubilee Celebration with every troop active, in a letter to Earle W. Beckmann, scout executive.

West declared in his letter that the St. Louis Council had set an example for the other scout councils of the country. Local leaders, familiar with activities elsewhere, feel confident that the record of no lapsed troops has not been duplicated by a major council. They have called attention to the fact that each unit of the district is actively functioning at a time when the twenty-fifth anniversary of the movement has given new emphasis to the program.

Sub-committee which will administer details of the 1935 Camparall were appointed at the first meeting of the General Camparall Committee held last week. The committees, named by Harry A. Frank, chairman, will consider suggested improvements in the program of the camparall, to be held May 24-26 in Forest Park.

Col. H. D. McBride was named Campmaster, his assistant to be Capt. E. B. Langenberg. The following were appointed committee chairman; Dr. C. E. Colgate, projects committee; George L. Gamp, arrangements; Col. McBride, participation; Roy Wenzlick, scoring; Dr. L. H. Renfrow, entertainment; Harry C. Noe, observation; Dr. Forest H. Staley, first aid; and E. N. Hemm, cub participation.

Certificates of leadership training in Sea Scouting will be presented today to 45 men, at the close of the training school at Sea Scout Base, Creve Coeur Lake. J. Ross Blackford, education officer, will make the presentations.

The training course has consisted of instruction in marlinspike seamanship, sails and rigging, and parts of boats, including practical problems in boat-pulling and sailing. The instructional staff has included Commodore H. S. Holbrook, John Cook, Walter Griswold, J. Lee Johnson and F. E. A. Brock.

The Jamboree Committee will meet tomorrow noon at the Noonday Club. Richard Baldwin, chairman of the committee, has announced that participation of St. Louis in the National Jamboree to be held Aug. 21-30, at Washington, will be planned.

New units in each classification of scouting—cub pack, scout troop and sea scout ship—were organized Thursday in St. Charles at a joint court of honor sponsored by Trop 2, Lutheran Church, and Troop 4, St. Charles Exchange Club.

The new club pack, to be known as Pack 2, gave a handicraft exhibit in connection with the court, which invested 18 scouts with Second Class rank, three First Class Scouts and two Eagle Scouts. The new troop is Troop 1, and the sea scout ship is the Dolphin, 12.

Troop 242, St. Francis de Sales Church, held a court of honor Thursday at which awards ranging from second-class scout to life scout were made. Charles Pauly, field commissioner, presented the merit badges.

Bruce Evans is in charge of a group of West District scouters who plan to visit each troop in the district and explain the program of the Camparall.

Field Commissioners of University City, headed by Elmer E. Lenz, met Thursday with Arnold D. Krause, West District Commissioner, to outline future plans for scouting activities in that municipality.

The Organization Committee approved the troop charter application presented last week by a committee from Sutter Avenue Presbyterian Church, and designated the new troop as Troop 9. E. C. Starkey will be scoutmaster. The petitioning committee was composed of Rev. T. G. Nethery, C. H. Schmidt, C. E. Baumann and Starkey.

Troop 1, Kirkwood Junior High School, awarded Second Class badges and a number of merit badges at a court of honor Tuesday. Troop 15, Webster Groves, K. of C. Council, presented two Star insignia and 14 merit badges at a recent court.

Tom Lubski has succeeded Richrd Schramm as scoutmaster of roop 3, West Richmond Heights . T. A. Schramm resigned to take arge of a troop being organized First Congregational Church, ayton.

COMMUNITY COUNCIL SEEKS MORE VOLUNTEER WORKERS

Motor Transportation and Clerical Help Needed, Says Department Head.

An appeal for volunteer social workers to devote a few hours each week to the work of the agencies affiliated with the Community Council has been issued by Mrs. Walter Fischel, chairman of the council's department of volunteer service.

Mrs. Fischel said volunteers were needed to serve as aids to social workers, for clerical service and to furnish motor transportation. Inquiries regarding the work may be made by telephoning GArfield 2600.

Social work calls for professional skill and training, Mrs. Fischel said, but there is much interesting and important work which may be done by volunteers. There are now more openings for volunteers than can be filled, she said.

DRY GOODS STORE GETS WRIT AGAINST SUNDAY CLOSING LAW

Judge Issues Temporary Restraining Order Pending Hearing Next Thursday.

A temporary restraining order issued by Circuit Judge O'Malley yesterday permitted dry goods stores to remain open today despite an ordinance forbidding this practice.

Sam Ziden, who operates a store at 3324 Laclede avenue, filed suit attacking the legality of the ordinance which was enacted by the Board of Aldermen last July. He alleged that his arrest for violation of its last Sunday was class legislation, and Judge O'Malley set the case for hearing next Thursday. In a similar case recently, Judge O'Malley declined to issue a restraining order and sustained a demurrer to the suit, but Ziden's attorneys announced they had a new basis for the claim of illegality.

Talk on Labor Union Problems.

CHILD IS SUFFOCATED IN KANSAS DUST STORM

Six States Swept—Trains Delayed and One Is Derailed by Drifting Sand.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 16.—A dust storm swept over Oklahoma, Texas, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado and Wyoming yesterday and today and was noticeable as far East as Southern Wisconsin. The storm was subsiding tonight.

The 7-year-old son of Pearl Salmon disappeared in the dust storm last night and was found dead this afternoon a quarter of a mile from his home near Winona, Kan. The child had been suffocated by dust.

One man was killed near Hutchinson, Kan., last night as he stood on a dust swept highway and sought to warn motorists of his wrecked car. Another was killed in a Kansas City accident attributed to the wind.

Passengers on a Rock Island train spent last night in the cars near Colby, Kan., after drifting dust had derailed the tender. The Santa Fe reported many of its Western Kansas trains were delayed for hours by low visibility. In some places dust covered the rails to a depth of two feet.

In Texas breathing was difficult throughout much of the area swept by the storm. Improvised filters of wet towels and handkerchiefs were used by many.

The dust storm which came from the west and north passed high over Kansas City. Light snow fell here late today.

In some parts of Wyoming, Nebraska and Central Kansas there was rain with the dust. In Wyoming snow fell.

Wind felled trees in San Isabel National Forest in Colorado, blew down power and light lines in many sections and wrecked two buildings at Westcliffe, Colo. Chickens were stripped of feathers in the Westcliffe area and at Florence oil rigs and houses were blown down today.

Airplane pilots reported poor visibility because of the dust at altitudes up to 11,000 feet.

Soviet Conquest of the Arctic Described by Explorer Rescued From Ice Floe by Aviators

Prof. Schmidt Says Nation Plans to Establish Airline in 1936 and Tap the Wealth of the Region.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

MOSCOW, February.

HARDLY a year after the historic sinking of the Chelyuskin in its attempt to cross the Arctic Ocean, Prof. Otto J. Schmidt, commander of that ill-fated ship and leader in Soviet efforts to open up a water route across the Arctic, announced that work had so far advanced that the Soviet Union was preparing to establish in 1936 a regular scheduled airline along the entire Arctic coast and all along the Pacific coast to the Bering Strait.

PROF. OTTO J. SCHMIDT

Not only were the Soviet explorers now able to tackle the air and sea routes across the Arctic, but they were also prepared to open up the area north of the 62nd parallel, which constitutes one-fourth of the Soviet Union, he declared. Trade will be opened up on a wide scale and assistance will be given the local population in reindeer breeding, hunting and mechanization of the fishing industry.

This is a long step from the time, in 1932, when the Sibiryakov gained the distinction of being the first vessel to cross the northern sea route in one season. Last year the icebreaker Litke made the first east-to-west crossing. Prof. Schmidt envisages regular sailings in both directions in the near future.

The real test of the achievements of Soviet Arctic explorers was the dramatic rescue of the Chelyuskin's crew, headed by Schmidt himself, from the ice floe on which it was stranded. Two American airplane mechanics were decorated by the Soviet Government for their part in the rescue, and the Soviet aviators who took the explorers off the ice received the highest order in the U. S. S. R.—hero of the Soviet Union.

Schmidt's announcement that a regular Arctic airline would be established in 1936 was made in a speech at the Seventh Congress of Soviets, which met recently in Moscow. He told the delegates that "our work is thoroughly pervaded with the planning principle."

Systematic Exploration.

"There have been Arctic explorers before us, extraordinary men — Frijtof Nansen, Roald Amundsen, Perry and others—but their work did not yield the necessary results," he said. "They made scattered, isolated expeditions to the North, unconnected with each other, deprived of continuity. We, on the other hand, placed at the basis of our work the planning principle, which yielded us the victory of the first Five-Year Plan. Within the framework of the first Five-Year Plan we had a Five-Year Plan of exploration and conquest of the Arctic drawn up by a special Government commission . . .

"The realization of this plan has led to our abandoning the method of isolated expeditions and favoring constant exploration of the Arctic, chiefly of a semi-permanent character; that is, our expeditions, upon reaching the Far North, complete their work by building a polar station, where scientists remain for the winter, for the polar night, and constantly accumulate scientific data. In 1934 we had 10 ice-breakers constantly sailing in the Arctic for the purpose of gathering practical scientific data."

Supported by Stalin.

Schmidt said that Stalin, himself, had given co-ordination to Soviet Arctic development by personally advancing the idea of sailing the whole of the northern sea route.

The importance of this task is evident when one considers that this route not only creates a new link between the West and the Far East, but also joins the centers of the Soviet Union with the mighty rivers of Siberia which flow into the Arctic. The wealth of minerals, oils, furs, fish, reindeer herds and coal of the North can be tapped if the transportation problem is solved, and at the same time the riches of Siberia can be made more accessible through its huge rivers, which have hitherto been practically useless because of their up-and-down direction.

How far the Soviet explorers and scientists have gone may be seen by a glance at some of the achievements Schmidt reported to the Congress of Soviets:

"1. Economic and cultural development of peoples of the North: At the present time there flourish not only the large nationalities, such as the Yakuts, who have their own republic, but also the smaller nationalities, such as the Evenks, the Nentsi, the Chukchi, who have their national districts, their national culture. Even such a small nationality as the Eskimos, of whom there are only a few thousand in this country, now has schools in its own language.

"One is struck by the similarity of the problem of these peoples and the problem of the American Indian. The Soviet Union has handled it in its typical fashion, supplying special educational institutions to train teachers, doctors and leaders for these peoples from among their own tribes. The aim is the development of a culture 'national in content, socialist in form'—using the national language, national customs, national music and arts, supplying a Latin alphabet for them, making enmity between nationalities a high crime, and fostering local self-leadership.

Resources of Region.

"2. Knowledge of the resources of the North: Now we know that it has polymetallic ores and coal sufficient for its industrial development. Drilling for oil is being carried out.

"3. Exploration bases: We have 39 polar stations on the coast and on islands, and over 30 in the hinterland, on the continent.

"4. Aviation: Our airmen have flown over the whole of the northern coast. . . . The amazingly high qualities and devotion of our flyers were demonstrated by the heroes who rescued us from the ice."

"5. Construction: We already have several equipped ports such as Igarka and the port on Dixon Island. (Igarka recently celebrated the fifth anniversary of its existence; formerly it was barren waste.) We continue to develop the northern sea route by construction of coaling bases. Two new Chelyuskins and a number of other steamers for the Arctic are being built; lighthouses and signals are being constructed. In order to avoid a repetition of cases where there is no ice-breaker to come to the aid of a ship in distress, several powerful new ice-breakers are being laid down in Leningrad and Nikolayevsk shipyards on the suggestion of Stalin himself.

"The network of Arctic stations is already sufficient for good radio communication for ship or airplane in any corner of the Arctic. . . . We have a map of the sea route which we are continuing to perfect. . . . In the summer we no longer have any difficulty flying over the Arctic."

The Experience of Detroit With Permanent Registration

Mayor and Election Commissioner Satisfied That Elections Are Freer From Fraud—Economical, Too—Voters Must Be Able to Duplicate Their Signatures.

By SAMUEL J. SHELTON,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

THIS is the second of two articles dealing with changes in election methods in Missouri which have been suggested in behalf of economy and honest balloting.

Here permanent registration of voters is discussed, with particular reference to its results in the City of Detroit, and with analysis of the advantages asserted in its behalf which are, principally:

First, economy;

Second, protection against fraudulent registration and voting;

Third, Convenience to voters whose enrollment is good for as long as they remain qualified electors of the city or political subdivision where registered.

The first article, published last Sunday, was a discussion of the voting machine, particularly as used in Philadelphia, whose principal virtues also are said to be economy and protection against fraud.

Although the bill to provide permanent registration in St Louis was introduced early in the session of the Legislature, it has not been reported out of the House elections committee and seemingly nothing will be done about it.

PERMANENT registration of voters, which a bill pending in the Missouri Legislature would establish for St. Louis, has been urged both as an aid to honest elections and as a public economy.

In the City of Detroit, an outstanding example of the system, it has been found to be both. It is one of the two voting reforms most frequently mentioned in American cities by advocates of cleaner elections; the other is the voting machine.

It is said of permanent registration that it will reduce election frauds by preventing "padding" of registration lists, by making it more difficult for improperly qualified persons to get on or remain on the books, and by making it impossible for a corrupt political group to vote large numbers of fictitious names; that the elimination of periodic general new registration of all voters will result in substantial savings.

Obviously the extent of realization of these advantages depends on the provisions and safeguards of the permanent registration law, and on the administration of the law.

Mayor Frank Couzens, in an interview at the Detroit City Hall, informed the writer he was sure the system had given his city a cleaner registration list and had made dishonest voting practices more difficult. At the Election Board office, where preparations for a primary were under way, Supervisor Oakley Distin explained the Detroit system.

Adopted in Detroit in 1932

The permanent registration system became effective in Detroit in 1932. Up to that time, a general new registration of voters was required every four years, just as in St. Louis. This was conducted on certain days at each of the 909 voting precincts, requiring attendance of election officials at each polling place, at great expense.

Now only one registration is required of a voter as long as he remains a citizen of Detroit. He is saved trouble and the city is saved money. If he moves he may have his registration transferred merely by writing a letter or postal card to the election office, signing his own name. If he dies his name is dropped, as the Bureau of Vital Statistics gives the Election Board a daily report of all deaths of adults.

If there is reason to question the qualifications of a registrant, or to suspect that a name may be fictitious or that of a non-resident, or that a fictitious address has been given, the registration office makes its own investigation. It receives reports of removals from the Police Department, moving companies and the gas, electric and telephone companies. If one of these agencies reports the removal of a voter, but the voter himself has not reported it, the registration office transfers the voter's record and sends him a notice.

Every voter signs his own registration card (unless he is unable to write), and his signature then becomes the key to his right to vote. In the rare case of a voter unable to sign his name provision is made for identification by a responsible person. The registration record is made out in duplicate and contains the usual information as to age, race, place of birth, sex and personal appearance. The voter signs both cards, which are punched for filing in loose-leaf binders.

Original Card Filed

The original registration card is filed alphabetically in the election office, where it may be readily referred to. The duplicate is placed alphabetically in its proper precinct book.

Each voter appearing at the polls is required to sign a form called an application for a ballot, giving his address. The election official who receives this application turns at once to the voter's registration card, which is placed in the book alphabetically, and if it appears that the signatures on the application and on the registration card are not the same, the person is not permitted to vote, unless he can establish his identity by responsible persons.

This signature test was said by Supervisor Distin to have stopped a good many persons offering to vote in recent elections. Critics of the plan have argued that the signing of an application card would slow up voting.

"In actual practice," Supervisor Distin said, "we find that signing applications facilitates rather than delays voting. It takes but a moment for the elector to sign the application and with a loose-leaf index system the record can be located immediately."

This signed application requirement has been particularly effective, Distin said, against "floaters" who may attempt to vote under names that appear on the record. "The migratory gentlemen," he said, "find it a difficult matter to sign an application for a ballot and have the signature correspond with that of an elector as it appears on the registration card."

An important feature of the registration law, in the opinion of Detroit election officials, is that which causes a registrant's record to be placed in the suspended file if he has failed to vote for two years. This automatically removes much deadwood. If a suspended registrant fails to appear within a reasonable time after notice and prove his right to reinstatement his registration is canceled.

Better Turn-Out of Voters

"This provision," said Mayor Couzens, "gives us a better turn-out of voters. It impresses them with the importance of the privilege of voting."

John W. Smith, president of the City Council and one of the three members of the Election Board, also mentioned this as an incentive to voting, and added his opinion that permanent registration had done a great deal to purify elections in Detroit.

An annual check-up of the entire voting list, serving as a substitute for a complete census, is made at the surprising cost of only 1 cent a name, exclusive of the clerical work in the registration office. This is accomplished by using the mailing list correction service of the postoffice.

The registration office makes out a card for each registered voters and the cards are distributed to the mail carriers, who are required to return them with notations as to whether the person receives mail at the address named, and if he has moved, the forwarding address, if any. The postoffice charges 1 cent a name for this service, and a canvass by this means of the 475,000 names now on the records would cost only $4750.

It is recognized, Distin said, that this is not a certain way of detecting fictitious names registered from given addresses, as lodging house keepers in collusion with corrupt politicians might accept mail for such addresses, but he said that where there is reason to suspect a colonization, or grouping, of illegal voters an independent canvass is made by the Election Board.

One of the criticisms of the pending measure for permanent registration in St. Louis is that it requires the Election Board to make a complete census every two years of all persons over 19 years old; that this would be so expensive as to probably offset savings. The bill makes no provision for utilization of the postoffice mailing list correction service.

Much Depends on Personnel

Obviously, the effectiveness of this system of registration in preventing fraudulent voting depends to a great extent on the personnel of the board that administers it. Competent, honest, public-spirited officials clearly could utilize such machinery to reduce irregularities to an inconsequential minimum. A corrupt, or incompetent, indolent board could cause the system to fail in its purpose.

Under this system the registration department of the Election Board is constantly engaged in revising the voting list. Every mail brings letters and cards giving notice of change of address. New voters may register at the board's office at any time, but precinct books are closed 20 days before an election. For three days before the closing of books for an election registration is conducted at each of 15 police stations for convenience, but never at precinct polling places.

After each election clerks go through the cards and remove those of registrants who have not voted in two years. In the last year about 95,000 such cards were removed, but a considerable number of the registrants obtained reinstatment.

An impressive showing of economy for the Detroit system has been made for the short time of its operation. The cost of the general registration in 1928, under the old system, was $148,105, and 374,919 voters were enrolled. This was 39½ cents for each enrollment.

A Saving of $14,759

Four years later the permanent registration system was installed. A complete new registration was necessary to start with, but it was made only at the central office and the 15 police stations, the voters coming in at their convenience. It was necessary, of course, to install a large amount of new office equipment and supplies for the new system. That year (1932) the registration was 489,041, an increase of 114,122, and the cost, including supplies and all permanent equipment, was $133,345. This was 27¼ cents a name.

There was a saving, after paying for equipment, of $14,759. It was pointed out by Supervisor Distin that wages and other costs were lower in 1932, which would have resulted in a substantial saving even under the old system. The 1932 cost, however, included $36,858 for permanent equipment, such as filing cabinets, precinct record books and record cards for all voters.

Distin expects the saving to the city next year to be about $65,000. Under the old system a complete new registration would have been necessary in 1936. At present price and wage levels this would cost about $110,000, Distin said. On the basis of recent experience, he expects the complete revision of the poll books under the permanent registration system to cost only $40,000 to $45,000.

Salaries and wages....	$131,465	$79,396
Automobile services ...	633	415
Stationery and supplies,	3,317	5,825
Contractual services ...	3,583	8,742
Equipment	2,298	36,858
Advertising	5,610	1,005
Maps	1,199	1,104
Total	$148,105	$133,345
Number registered	374,919	489,041

Cost each, 1928 39½ cts., 1932 27¼ cts.

A study made by the Bureau of Municipal Research shows that in St. Louis the cost of registration per voter in general registrations for the last 12 years has been 47.6 cents. In Milwaukee, where permanent registration has been in effect many years, the cost is 12 cents, and in Minneapolis, also a permanent registration city, it is 5½ cents. Among other cities having permanent registration are San Francisco, Los Angeles, Denver, Pittsburgh, Columbus, O., and Portland, Ore.

Authorized in 18 States

There are 18 states in which permanent registration has been authorized for state-wide use; in 14 other states it is permitted in certain cities.

One of the largest costs of general registration in St. Louis is the pay of election officials and clerks in charge of the 669 precincts on registration days. Under a permanent registration system a comparatively small increase in the number of permanent employes at the Election Board headquarters would replace this army of periodic workers.

It has been said by some opponents of permanent registration that to discard the entire list and make a new one every four years, as is now done in St. Louis, is the better safeguard against fraud; that under the permanent system names of deceased persons and those who have moved away may be kept on the list and used for illegal voting.

On the other hand, it is said that "padding" of registration lists is easier in a general registration when there is a rush of all voters to the many enrolling places on certain days; that efforts to "colonize," or enroll "floaters from fictitious addresses or lodging houses would be much more likely

Prof. Warren Visions Money System Based on Lard, Wheat, Cotton, Gold, Copper, Silver

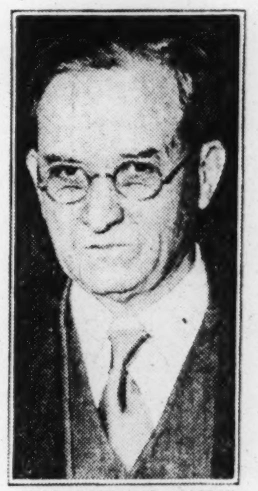
By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 16.

THE answer to the question: What has become of Prof. George F. Warren, the inventor of the "rubber dollar?" is contained in his new book, "Gold and Prices," written in collaboration with his associate, Prof. Frank A. Pearson, and published today. As much preoccupied as ever with monetary theories, Warren has been keeping score of the results achieved thus far by the devalued dollar. He has not surrendered his post as unofficial adviser to the Treasury, but his visits to Washington have been less frequent than they were.



PROF. GEORGE F. WARREN

Warren is credited with having contributed more to the formulation of President Roosevelt's monetary policies than anyone else. In his newest work he sets down in chronological order the statements the President has made in explanation of the administration's money program. Seen thus against the background of Prof. Warren's own theories, it is plain that the President's views bear the Warren stamp and that this shyest member of the Brain Trust has had no small part in shaping the course of the Government since March 4, 1933.

Cautious About Future.

There are many who will look to Warren's latest book (John Wiley & Sons, Inc., publishers) for a clew to future policies. Those who give to Warren's opinions an almost oracular weight may be a little disappointed in the present volume. Although he is still strongly in favor of some form of managed currency, such as his "compensated dollar," that may be adjusted to price changes and suggests that "much more remains to be done" in order to achieve a stable currency, he is cautious about the future.

"Since the United States left the gold standard," he says in his final chapter, "the prices that fell most have, in general, risen most, so that the price structure is more nearly in balance, and a vast number of individuals, business concerns and banks have become solvent by the increase in the values of their properties. In some cases, arbitrary acts have increased prices and services for things that had not declined. Such action, of course, delays recovery; while much has been accomplished, much more remains to be done. Many of the slow-moving changes are as much as twice the world price level in gold. Before business can proceed in a normal way, a better balance in the price structure is necessary."

Hints at Further Devaluation.

While Warren does not advise it in so many words, it is apparent that he believes a further increase in gold prices by the Government would help to achieve this balance. He points out that the Gold Reserve Act of 1934 permits the President to fix the price of gold at not less than $34.45 nor more than $41.34 an ounce, and that the price set by the Government today is only $35. Further currency devaluation, through increasing the price of gold and thereby reducing the gold content of the dollar, is the present need, Prof. Warren implies.

"A few countries raised the price of gold enough to restore the pre-depression price level," he says. "Australia, New Zealand and Denmark maintained their relative prices in gold at about 25 per cent above the London price, so that their commodity price levels were about as high as prices would have been in the United States if the price of gold had been raised to $41.34."

Warren's Status in Capital.

There is a certain mystery attaching to the lanky, rustic figure of Prof. Warren. It grows out of the role he has played behind the scenes as adviser to the Treasury and the White House and also out of his own personal reticence, carried almost to the point of eccentricity.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, a former pupil and long-time admirer of Warren, said last week that Prof. Warren has never been on the payroll of the Treasury. During the first year and a half of the Roosevelt administration, Warren spent considerable time in Washington, although he continued to hold his post as chairman of the Department of Agricultural Economics at Cornell University in Ithaca, N. Y. At that time, he had a hide-away office in the huge Department of Commerce building. He gave this up about four months ago.

Within the last six months Warren's visits to Washington have been less frequent. But it is perhaps significant that just before the Treasury's announcement last Sunday of a new policy in regard to the "profit" accruing from dollar devaluation, Warren was at the Treasury conferring with Morgenthau and making use of the office in the Treasury building that is still nominally his.

Close to President.

Warren is close not only to Morgenthau but to President Roosevelt, who, as Governor of New York, made him a member of the State Conservation Commission. When Morgenthau was named to his first government post, as head of the Farm Credit Administration, he brought to Washington to be his executive assistant, Prof. William I. Myers, one of Warren's closest associates at Cornell. After Morgenthau was elevated to the post of Secretary of the Treasury, Myers became head of Farm Credit. It is small wonder then that many give to Warren's views an importance not accorded those of the average run-of-the-mine economist.

The ideal that Warren advocates, in this book as in his earlier "prices," is a currency that will be a "scientific" measure of value. Mankind, he suggests, has only in comparatively recent times worked out scientific measurements of temperature, light and other factors in the physical environment and so, he implies, the discovery of a measurement of value in terms of price by a somewhat less crude methed than that of the present monetary system cannot be expected overnight. We are in the throes of finding such a system, he intimates, and the most hopeful clew thus far lies in index numbers of relative value.

"Rational Currency."

Prof. Warren has a great reverence for index numbers—that is, the long-time averages which express the rise and fall of commodity prices or the cost of living. A rational currency, Warren says, would be keyed to such index numbers and "managed" in such a way that radical price fluctuations would be prevented. Gold is a poor base for a currency, in Warren's opinion, because it is itself a commodity and therefore subject to price fluctuations.

Supply and demand are only one cause, and perhaps the lesser cause, of price changes; in Prof.

Opposes 2 Per Cent State Sales Tax.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN my opinion, the announcement that T. J. Pendergast, political overlord of Kansas City (and points east) favors a 2 per cent sales tax provides all the evidence necessary for every decent citizen in the State to become aroused over the enactment of such a tax.

It is also significant to note that, according to press reports, every St. Louis Representative present echoed Mr. Pendergast's "aye" for the increase. Needless to say, the Kansas City Representatives played "follow-the-leader" and the amendment to increase the tax rate carried.

Regardless of Mr. Pendergast's wishes, it is to be remembered that to enact this tax would be a direct violation of the Democratic State platform, which reads as follows:

> We also indorse the principles and objectives of the legislative program worked out by that committee and pledge the members of our party in the forthcoming General Assembly to an effort in good faith to enact that program into law, to the end that the people will be relieved of the excessive burden of taxation.

Perhaps, though, such a pledge is not to be found in the Pendergast platform. City Hall officials informed us some time ago that a 2 per cent sales tax would bring about a substantial tax reduction. According to John G. Burkhardt, City Tax Attorney, the reduction would amount to from 20 to 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

A 2 per cent sales tax would tax both rich and poor at the rate of $2 per $100 and would exact its toll every time one of us buys food, clothing, medicine and all other necessities of life.

The old bait of property tax reduction is again being dangled before our eyes, an old, old political screen designed to dim the eyes of the voters that one political boss may open up a new avenue of patronage and a new wedge in an eastern frontier.

"When Greeks Joined Greeks."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

DURING the present fracas in Greece, the phrase "Greeks met Greeks," or some similar expression, has been repeatedly used, and I think the users believed they were quoting. This would seem to be an error. An Englishman, Nathaniel Lee, wrote a play a good many years ago, called "Alexander the Great." In Act IV, Scene 2, occurs the sentence: "When Greeks joined Greeks, then was the tug of war."

The meaning of this, I believe, was an alliance between Greek tribes, or a confederation such as besieged Troy, not a conflict between two Greek tribes. "When Greeks joined Greeks . . ." it was likely to be hard on the enemy.

(Ed. note: The line quoted refers specifically to the resistance offered to Philip and Alexander of Macedon by the Greek states.)

Speed and Motor Accidents.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR recent series of editorials regarding the menacing increase in automobile accidents throughout the United States, especially fatal accidents, is timely and must be persisted in until some improvement is shown.

There is no question but that drinking and drunkenness has had its effect of helping to increase the total of deaths last year. However, the chief causes as I see them are: Motorists are driving too fast all the time and most of them are not driving properly, although they are of the opinion they are. Speed primarily is the cause of death in automobile accidents. Automobiles today are built to accelerate to high speed quickly—it is the boast of manufacturers that even small cars will do 70, 80 and 90 miles per hour with ease. The general public is quick to try these speeds out—learning two things, that the cars really go that fast, and that so much speed cannot safely be handled.

If accidents are not reduced, the pleasures of the automobile will be turned from mankind into a horror and a detriment. More power to the Post-Dispatch and every newspaper for devoting space to this campaign—the success of which implies a constant hammering of safety propaganda and education.

"Politics and Conservation."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE editorial entitled "Politics and Conservation" interested me very much. It expresses a very sound thought and one that the sportsmen of Missouri would do well to support actively at Jefferson City. Of course, we all know that politics, when once well entrenched, is one of the most difficult situations to change. Politics in the Department of Conservation presents a problem even more serious to the public interest than politics in a number of the other State departments.

I am calling this editorial to the attention of the president of the Missouri Duck Hunters' Association, believing that it is a thought that should be carried to their membership.

SPENCER H. OLIN,
Secretary, Western Cartridge Co.

REWRITE THE TAX PROGRAM!

The 2 per cent sales tax bill pending in the Missouri Legislature should be defeated.

We repeat what we have often said before: that the sales tax should be used only to meet the relief needs of the State, estimated by Gov. Park to cost not more than $5,000,000 for 1935. Those needs can be met, possibly in full and certainly to all save a negligible extent, by re-enactment of the present ½ of 1 per cent rate, with a broadened base and with provision for adequate enforcement. Certainly a 2 per cent rate—a rate four times as great as the present and twice the rate suggested by Gov. Park in his message at the opening of the present session of the Legislature—is not needed.

The 2 per cent rate, it is estimated, would produce $20,000,000, of which it is proposed that $7,000,000 be allotted to relief. It has not been demonstrated that the State should undertake to raise $20,000,000 for the purposes designed to be served by the bill.

But if that amount is to be raised—or any amount beyond that necessary for relief requirements—resort should assuredly not be had to a form of taxation that bears most heavily upon those of small means.

The sales tax does precisely that. It is what it has often been called—an "upside-down income tax." It disregards the principle that taxes should be based on capacity to pay. It is justifiable only in an emergency and for the period of the emergency. It should have no place in the permanent tax structure of the State.

The 2 per cent tax proposal has not the saving grace of being an emergency measure. True, it proposes to raise money for relief, but it goes far beyond that purpose. It is supposed to expire June 30, 1937, but such is the nature of the legislation, so wide are its ramifications, that if it is enacted it will almost certainly become a fixture. It will be not only the camel's nose under the tent, but the whole camel.

If not the sales tax, then what? The only answer, we are convinced, is an increase in the State income tax in Missouri. We have hitherto opposed such an increase at this time. We did this before the bringing forward of the $20,000,000 program, which is claimed by its sponsors to have the sanction of the Governor. It is our firm belief, consistent with a steadfast opposition to the principle of the sales tax, that any money now required by the State for the execution of a program other than one demanded by the relief emergency should be financed by an increase in income taxes.

To propose additional income taxes at this time—at any time—is to invite criticism. To propose any tax increase is to invite criticism. We are well aware of the difficult position in which Gov. Park and the State legislators find themselves. But we are convinced that the laying of a tax burden on those best able to bear it is infinitely preferable, in the public interest, to the laying of a tax burden that would increase the already mounting cost of living and so put another stumbling block in the way of economic recovery. Properly administered, the income tax is as fair a form of taxation as has ever been devised. If an increase is voted in Missouri, it should be of an emergency nature, and should be so graduated as to bear with progressive severity on the larger incomes. What schedule of increase should be adopted is a matter for expert determination after the amount to be raised thereby has been decided upon.

It is urged on behalf of the $20,000,000 sales tax bill that the allocation which it would permit to be made to the schools (under the State law that gives the schools one-third of all ordinary State revenue) would result in a lowering of property taxes in the school districts. There is, however, no certainty that this would be the case, and if it were, there would simply be a shift from the property tax to the sales tax. If there is to be a large-scale shift from one form of taxation to another, certainly the subject should be given the most serious consideration by the lawmakers: such a far-reaching change in the tax system should not be accomplished as a mere incident in the passage of a bill inspired primarily by the relief needs of the State.

Of course, if local property taxes for the schools were lowered to the extent of the school revenues derived from the sales tax, the net income of the schools would not be improved. Already, educators of the State are sounding a warning. H. P. Study of the Springfield public schools, in a statement March 10, expressed the fear that the 2 per cent sales tax would leave the rural schools "holding the bag." He charged that the sales tax increase was being backed by the utilities and by real estate interests and added: "In getting themselves relief, property interests may leave the schools with inadequate support."

It is proposed that $2,000,000 be set aside for old-age pensions. The use of money for this purpose, and the amount required, are contingent upon congressional action which has not yet been taken. In any event, old-age pensions, if voted, will be a continuing and permanent charge against the State revenues. They have no proper place in a sales tax bill for the purpose of emergency relief. The inclusion of the old-age pension item in the pending bill answers the contention of its sponsors that it is purely a temporary measure.

What of the receipts, present and prospective, from the present ½ of 1 per cent sales tax? The law went into effect Jan. 15, 1934, and for the 11½ months of its operation that year it produced $4,257,000. Admittedly, it was widely evaded: the State Auditor's figures show the tax was not paid by 36 per cent of those subject to it. These figures, moreover, show some amazing contradictions. For example, the collections for September were $429,799, while the collections for December, the banner retail sales month of the year, were only $578 greater. Obviously, there is something wrong with this picture.

The State Auditor has estimated that with proper enforcement the tax as it now stands will yield $6,000,000. He is proceeding against 25,000 merchants and others who were delinquent last year to the estimated total of $1,000,000. If the present tax is provided with a broader base, the estimate of the House Ways and Means Committee is that it will bring in $7,500,000. Assuming that $500,000 will be collected in delinquent taxes, and leaving out of consideration a possible improvement in business, we have here a prospective total of $8,000,000.

After one-third of this money, $2,666,000, was turned over to the schools, the State would have left for relief $5,333,000, or an amount $333,000 greater than Gov. Park's highest estimate in his message.

We renew the point that the 2 per cent rate is based on a fallacious picture of the State's necessities; that to adopt the rate would be to place a heavy and unfair burden on the poor; that the fair method of financing any other than a relief program is through the income tax.

The 2 per cent sales tax bill should be killed and the program rewritten to accord with (1) the State's necessities and (2) equity in taxation.

THE STRACHEY TEAPOT TEMPEST.

John Strachey, the person most concerned, refuses to take seriously the deportation proceedings against him. He declines to allow a defense fund to be raised. He explains the affair facetiously as a Government campaign to boost his books, articles and lectures—a result that has assuredly been produced.

Even the Communists refuse to take seriously their latest "martyr." Both British and American organizations disown him, and a spokesman in New York says the party here will not join in defense efforts. Incidentally, the British Labor and Mosley Fascist parties, to which Strachey has on occasion belonged, also disown him. The British Foreign Office says politely that it is not interested. These disavowals leave the teapot tempest sole property of our Labor Department and Strachey's American friends and sponsors. Among the latter, curiously enough, are the Rotary clubs, to whose publication, the Rotarian, he recently contributed an article.

Strachey's deportability seems to hinge largely on an answer to the question, What is a Communist? If the correct answer is an earnest young man who gloomily predicts the downfall of our present institutions and the rise of a Marxian Utopia, without urging anything but patient waiting to bring it about, then Strachey may be deportable. But if our immigration authorities realize how absurd would be the spectacle of ousting a sincere though mistaken critic, a would-be prophet and not an agitator, then the matter will be quietly dropped. The old-fashioned American method of hearing our critics, whether alien or home-grown, and then answering them by word and demonstration has worked much better through the years than suppression of opinion.

And while all these matters are frantically debated, a British lecturer basks in the greatest splurge of publicity that has ever come to one of his species, and welcomes bigger audiences and bigger royalty checks.

IN BETTER FORM.

Wisely concluding that the country was fed up with the epithet triangle, Gen. Johnson discussed unemployment in Friday's article. He made the excellent point that the country has never had unemployment statistics worthy the name. It has only had estimates, which have not always been disinterested. The discrepancy between labor and administrative figures has at times been so great as to shatter public confidence in the accuracy of either report.

In a matter of such vital moment, it is important that the statistics be approximately correct. Gen. Johnson thinks they could be had quickly and inexpensively. He recalls the wartime census of eligibles for military service. Two such canvasses were made, each in 24 hours, at a cost in each instance of about $50,000. Registration cards were issued to prevent draft-dodging. Gen. Johnson recommends cards in the present situation as a check on the chiseler. He makes the further point that a card-index would record the progress of the depression—"whether we were moving up or down."

This is worth-while talk. It is, to use a hackneyed word, constructive. Perhaps an occasional pop-off doesn't hurt. A little "fracas" now and then is relished by the best of men. But the tirade quickly gets tiresome. The General has done well to change the key.

RUSSIA'S WAR ON WHISKERS.

The Soviet Government has decided that the Russian farmer has got to be a snappier citizen. An army of 7000 barbers has been sent out of Moscow into the hinterland. Those trained beautifiers go armed for the fray—with razors and scissors and lotions and perfumes. They are commissioned, under sentence of death for failure, to convert the slovenly mujik into a city slicker.

Those barbers, if they are as their fellow craftsmen of other lands, will carry much more with them than their technical proficiency. They will bring with them the news of the great world: the tattle of the theater, the gossip of official life, the rising suns and fading stars of the political skies, the who's who and what's what of the sports sector, and on dits and on faits of mighty Moscow.

After the barbers? Will the sturdy yeoman, rid of his Druidical whiskers, be content to go in his immemorial garb and ageless customs? He will demand, it may be conjectured, the haberdasher, the tailor, the whole phalanx of specialists that cater to the well-groomed front. A dapper Ivan may be seen around the corner.

Brother Stalin's little war on whiskers may start a sociological revolution that will rock the "magnificent distances."

THE WORKS BILL COMPROMISE.

Adoption of the Russell amendment to the public works and relief bill, by a vote of 83 to 2 in the Senate, is a victory for the administration in that it makes possible a spreading of the funds to benefit the largest possible number of persons. At the same time, it safeguards the position of labor in directing the President to authorize the proposed "security wage" (about $50 a month) only if it does not "tend to decrease the going rates of wages paid for work of a similar nature."

The President and his supporters were assuredly sincere in their view that "security wages" would not tend to depress other wages. There was much to be said for a scale above the dole but still below the private wage scale, which would afford work and relief while leaving an inducement for workers to accept other employment when available. The prevailing wage, as specified in the McCarran amendment, would have increased expenditures tremendously or reduced the number of persons benefited. The administration's opponents were equally sincere in seeking to protect the wage scale from any possible reduction by such a program.

Until the plan is put into operation, the contentions on both sides were perforce somewhat academic. The terms of the compromise amendment make it possible to put the President's original plan into execution, and then to alter the procedure if it does result in lowering wage standards. Labor statistics will speedily show the result.

Another Congressional Medal?

WAR IS A RACKET. By Gen. Smedley D. Butler. (Round Table Press, Inc., New York City.)

MAJOR-GENERAL SMEDLEY D. BUTLER (retired) served as an officer in the United States Marine Corps for 33 years, became in mid-career something of a legend among the leathernecks, and ended his service as Commander-in-Chief of that superlative fighting force. It is said that he has been under fire 121 times. His chest can scarcely accommodate his decorations for valor (a score of them), including the Congressional Medal of Honor, twice awarded. Now, in his fifty-fourth year, he arises to tell his former masters and the world generally, in a staccato style suggesting a withering burst of machine-gun fire, that he has spent his life in serving a colossal, idiotic racket.

Those who are aware of the fatal joker in the failing scheme of things will agree readily with Gen. Butler, without discrediting in the least the great and admirable gift of courage that his life has consistently revealed. It has been and shall be the fate of many a strong spirit in this world to serve the wrong master gloriously. And whatever may be said by his detractors, with or without justification, it can hardly be doubted that the very qualities which distinguished him as a soldier are involved in this headlong verbal assault upon a power by no means whipped as yet, as he must know and we should live to learn.

Beginning with the statement that "21,000 new millionaires and billionaires were made in the United States during the World War," Gen. Butler proceeds to discuss the manner of their making, with a brutal directness and an appalling lack of "patriotic" sentiment that would have won for him a long term in a Federal prison 18 years ago. He continues with a discussion of what these new millionaires cost the people of the country in suffering and wrecked lives, in addition to a Government debt of a half a hundred billions of dollars. He touches upon the outrageous lying propaganda that made the insane orgy possible.

Why did America suddenly decide to "save the world for democracy" 18 years ago?

"Money," answers the General. "An Allied commission, it may be recalled, came over shortly before the war declaration and called on the President. The President summoned a group of advisers. The head of the commission spoke. Stripped of its diplomatic language, this is what he told the President and his group: 'There is no use kidding ourselves any longer. The cause of the Allies is lost. We now owe your American bankers, munitions makers, manufacturers, speculators, exporters, five or six billion dollars. If we lose (and without the help of the United States we must lose), we, England, France and Italy, cannot pay back this money, and Germany won't. So——!'"

The General discusses current preparations for war: "Secretly each nation is studying and perfecting new and ghastlier means of annihilating its foes wholesale. There are 40,000,000 men under arms in the world today, and our statesmen and diplomats have the temerity to say that war is not in the making. Hell's bells! Are these 40,000,000 men being trained to be dancers?"

Disarmament and limitation-of-armament conferences? "They don't mean a thing!" the General shouts, probably banging his fist on the table; and he tells why.

Then what are we to do about this colossal murder racket?

Just this: "Three steps must be taken. We must take the profit out of war. We must permit the youth of the land who would bear arms (and they only) to decide whether or not there should be war. We must limit our military forces to home defense."

Yes, truly, it is a naive book—amusingly so, no doubt, from the standpoint of those students of the world muddle who knew as much and more about the matter long before the world seemed suddenly to go mad in the dog days of 1914. Intellectuals of the more sardonic type might even get a mild laugh out of this earnest utterance of the obvious so belatedly discovered.

But it is the very naivete of the book, perhaps, that matters most of all, representing, as it does, the tragic social lag of understanding and the eventual catching up.

This is not the detached student seeing clearly in the silence of his study as though he were already living with posterity. This is a successful man of action, who, awakened to the folly of the very scheme of life upon which his high claim to distinction among his fellow men is based, cries out against the folly.

It is a great achievement—so great as to make the sardonic laughter of the mere intellectual sound like the crackling of thorns under a pot.

How about another Congressional Medal for Gen. Smedley D. Butler?

THE PINNACLE OF GLORY. By Wilson Wright. (Macmillan Co., New York City.)

BEGINNING with October, 1815, and ending with May, 1821, Wilson Wright has undertaken to tell the story of Napoleon's exile and death on St. Helena. It is obvious that the story is carefully based upon the records; but it is the author's purpose to supply creatively both the general mood and the many minor details that are needed to give the historic record verisimilitude as a reading of life.

It need not be questioned that the author has succeeded, for there seems to be nothing in the records at variance with the story as told, and the characters do seem alive as they move through the pages—the fallen Emperor, the all but incredible Sir Hudson Lowe, Las Cases, Gourgaud, Antommarchi, et al. The reader does feel closer to them all in Wilson Wright's story, and it is this heightened sense of intimacy that is the book's achievement.

Nevertheless, one may turn from this story to Lord Rosebery's "Napoleon: The Last Phase" with an exhilarating sense of release into a higher atmosphere of the larger and abiding truth; and those who may approach the subject matter for the first time in Wright's book might do well to add to that experience a reading of Rosebery's classic study.

The ironical title, "The Pinnacle of Glory," seems uncalled-for and perhaps a trifle unfair, suggesting a lack of that virtue which the Greeks called "aidos," and for which English has no single word, although the warm illumination of the virtue itself is felt throughout the Rosebery book. Surely the pinnacle of Napoleon's glory was his achievement, justly appraised, and not the years of his degradation and death.

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF GEORGE WASHINGTON. Edited by Edward C. Boykin. (Reynal & Hitchcock, New York City.)

IT is said that George Washington wrote as many as 30,000 letters, and his known writings, including his meticulously kept diaries, fill many volumes. Considering this fact, it is curious that there should have been such wide variations in the telling of his life story as are represented by the Parson Weems yarn, at one extreme, and at the other, by the efforts of certain enterprising debunkers in the wild latter years of our late prosperity. It would seem that one who had made so voluminous a record of his own life in the living of it might have been better understood.

Several years ago, it occurred to one writer that Washington might be allowed to tell his own story, and the result was a worthy volume entitled "Washington Speaks for Himself." The same idea is now employed by Edward C. Boykin, with the more comprehensive purpose of setting forth the complete story of Washington's public career beginning at the age of 21, when he was commissioned by Gov. Dinwiddie to bear a message to the French on the Ohio, and ending with the last words he spoke.

Forty-six years of Washington's life are thus covered by a judicious selection and arrangement of extracts from diaries, letters, addresses, state papers, orders to his officers, etc. The editor has supplied notes by way of bridging gaps and completing the historical sequence. One hundred illustrations, taken from contemporaneous prints and paintings, add greatly to the interest of the volume.

DICKENS has been debunked again this time by an iconoclast who finds little to approve in either his personality or his writings. Perhaps there is too much popular sentimentality about both, but it is a natural tribute to the hours of solid enjoyment Dickens has provided for generations of readers. Out of the present biography and criticism, Dickens emerges as a lifelong poseur, a neurotic victim of self-pity, with a talent for depicting comic episodes not quite good enough to make him a first-rate writer. The verdict and the whole tenor of the book will rouse Dickens' admirers to loud dissent.

$100,000,000 OF CALLED BONDS IN ST. LOUIS HANDS

Broker Estimates That Amount of First Liberties Must Be Disposed of by June.

SOME OWN MORE THAN A MILLION

What to Do With Funds Now Is Problem and Experts Admit They Don't Know Answer.

What to do with funds now invested in First Liberty Loan Government bonds is a new worry in St. Louis financial circles.

The problem was presented by the Treasury Department's order of last Thursday calling nearly $2,000,000,000 of these bonds for redemption on June 15. Now big and little holders are scanning the investment field for other safe places where the interest yield will be something near what Uncle Sam has been paying.

Millions of dollars are affected in St. Louis. First Liberty Loan bonds are the backlog of trust estates; wealthy persons have huge fortunes in the class of these bonds whose interest return is free from all income taxes. One broker said he would not be surprised if the holdings in St. Louis reached $100,000,000. The maturity date of these bonds is 1947, but they are callable at any time after 1932.

The interest rate is 3½ per cent on $1,392,226,250 of the called bonds, and this is the class that is not subject to any income tax. Also called were $535,981,250 of 4¼ per cent bonds and $5,002,450 of 4 per cent bonds. Although free from normal income tax, these issues are subject to some taxation in the higher income brackets.

Yield on the Bonds.

The 3½ per cent bonds have been the favorites of wealthy persons. An investment of $1,000,000 in these bonds yielded an income of $35,000 with no tax liability. It was agreed in financial circles that it is now practically impossible to get as high a yield with equal safety of principal.

The treasury is expected to offer new bonds which holders may have the option of taking in exchange for their called Liberty Loan issues, but the terms have not been stated. It is considered certain, however, that the interest rate will be considerably lower, probably not more than 2 per cent, and that the income will be subject to surtax. All new Government bonds omit the gold payment clause which was one of the features of the Liberty Loan issue. In view of the Supreme Court's declaration that the gold clause obligations, although not enforceable in the single case decided, rest on the conscience of the sovereign, the Government is understood to be desirous of retiring all gold clause bonds.

If holders of First Liberty loan bonds do not choose to take such new bonds as are offered in exchange they will have to take the principal in cash and find another place to put it to work, as interest on the Government securities ceases at the redemption date.

Municipal Bonds.

Most investors in this situation turn first to municipal bonds—the secured obligations of states and cities. They are free of all Federal income tax and most state income taxes, but not all are of the highest type from a safety standpoint because some of the borrowers are so deeply in debt as to have suffered impairment of credit.

An immediate effect of the treasury call was a sharp rise in the price of choice municipal bonds so that those of the highest type bearing nominal interest rates of 4 to 4½ per cent are selling at so great a premium that actual yield is reduced to 2½ to 2⅞ per cent. This has caused a 4 per cent bond of the City of Louisville, Ky., for example, to sell for 123 cents on the dollar of par value.

Most other good municipals are selling at premiums of 10 to 20 per cent and the supply is limited. An investor who has been getting a net return of 3½ per cent on Liberty bonds is likely to find his average return reduced to around 2 per cent so that his income from that source suffers a shrinkage of about one-third.

Corporation Bonds.

The investor finds very little outlet for his funds in corporation bonds as there is a scarcity of new issues. Even if he shoulud find desirable corporation bonds that paid 4 or 5 per cent, his net income would be much less than that figure because of being subject to all income taxes.

Investment brokers and managers of trust estates have been consulted by many St. Louisans who want to know what to do with their funds. This situation has disclosed a considerable number of persons holding $1,000,000 or more each of the called bonds. In a number of cases individuals have stated they are puzzled as to what to do with $1,000,000 or $5,000,000 that they expect to cash out of Liberty bonds.

The experts frankly say they don't know the answer.

HIGH PRICE MAY BAR MISSOURI BIRD REFUGE

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The Bureau of Biological Survey is seeking options to buy 13,000 acres of land for a migratory bird refuge in Chariton County in Missouri, Rudolph Dieffenbach, head of the Land Purchase Section of the bureau, said today.

This is known as the Swan Lake project. So far, Dieffenbach said, the Government has been able to get options only on 1000 acres. The price asked for the land is too high, he says, and the Government will abandon the project unless it can be obtained at "a reasonable price."

The tract sought by the bureau contains several hunting clubs and Dieffenbach said that any part of it would be valueless as a refuge unless these holdings could be obtained.

"The ultimate result depends on our success in taking options on the balance of the land," Dieffenbach said. "We are not committed to the project."

The bureau has had better success with another proposed migratory bird refuge, that of Squaw Creek bottoms, near Mound City, in the northwestern part of Missouri. This is about 12,000 acres in extent and the Government has obtained most of the land, Dieffenbach said. He described it as ideally fitted to be a refuge.

Still another projected refuge is under consideration in Missouri, Dieffenbach says. This is in the Mingo swamp region but because of complications with the Mingo Swamp Drainage District and the fact that the land has been heavily mortgaged as a result of the drainage project, this refuge will probably not be established.

Dieffenbach said it was the policy of the bureau not to make public the names of land owners who were holding out for higher prices. Several wealthy Kansas City residents are said to hold much of the land sought for the Swan Lake refuge.

Detroit's Test Of Permanent Registration to be detected where registration is more deliberate and is centralized in the Election Board office.

The voter's signature on an application card for a ballot, to be compared with the signature on his registration card is said to be one of the most effective deterrents of attempts at illegal voting. There have been objection to this provisions, but Detroit's experience with it is highly favorable.

The bill pending at Jefferson City to provide permanent registration for St. Louis contains, in principle, the most important provisions of the Detroit system. It was introduced by Representative Walsh, with the indorsement of the League of Women Voters and the Young Men's Division of the Chamber of Commerce.

Miss Emma J. Bobb, former chairman of the Election Board, and for many years secretary of the board, had indorsed it in principle, but has recommended a number of changes to clarify it and to make it more effective. The present Election Board chairman, James A. Waechter, opposes it, saying he is for permanent registration, but not this bill.

Bills also are pending to provide permanent registration in St. Louis County and in Jackson County, which includes Kansas City.

Dr. Harry J. O'Neill, head of the department of economics, St. Louis University, and chairman of the district coal code compliance committee, will speak on "Inflation—Its Production and Effects" at a dinner meeting of the St. Louis Association of Purchasing Agents at American Annex Hotel. Thomas P. Halley, a St. Louis district manager for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., will also speak.

EX-LABORER TO FORM NORWEGIAN CABINET

Johan Nygaardsvold, New Premier, Once Worked on Railroad in U. S.

By the Associated Press.

OSLO, Norway, March 16. — Johan Nygaardsvold, a leading member of the Norwegian Labor Party and once a laborer in the United States, was authorized today by King Haakon to form a new cabinet. The Government of Johan L. Mowinckel, which had been in office since March, 1933, resigned yesterday.

Prime Minister Mowinckel resigned after his government was defeated, 94 to 55 in Parliament.

Nygaardsvold, who worked on railway and engineering projects in the United States from 1901 to 1907, was elected to the Storting in 1915 and became its president in 1934. He was Minister of Agriculture in the Labor government which served briefly early in 1928. He is 55 years old.

The vote of non-confidence in Mowinckel's government came as the result of a dispute with the Farmer and Labor parties over taxation. The two opposition parties demanded a 2 per cent tax on all transactions for the relief of unemployment and to take care of municipal and state indebtedness, while the Government opposed any taxation.

ST. LOUIS SHOE COMPANIES FOR CODE WAGE DIFFERENTIAL

They Will Defend Lower Rural Pay Scale at Hearing Washington April 16.

St. Louis shoe companies which do most of their manufacturing in small towns are preparing to defend at a jublic hearing in Washington April 16 the advantage they have gained through a provision in the NRA code for the industry which permits payment of lower wages in small towns.

Among the code amendments which will be considered at the hearing is one proposed by Eastern manufacturers who would like to eliminate the differential, requiring payment of wages in small towns as high as those required in the city.

A. M. Burton, secretary of the St. Louis Shoe Manufacturers' Association, said the 40,000 of the 52,000 workers employed by shoe companies in this area work in small-town factories. Elimination of the wage differential, he said, would upset this conditions, as efficient operation would demand that manufacturers concentrate their plants in the city.

FERGUSON HIGH SCHOOL TO GIVE ORIGINAL OPERETTA

Book and Music of "Song in My Heart" Written by Miss Mary Jane Badino of Faculty.

Students of Ferguson High School will present an original operetta, "Song in My Heart," next Friday and Saturday nights at the school auditorium. The book and music for the operetta were written by Miss Mary Jane Badino of the high school faculty, who is director of the production.

The story of the operetta is laid in France in the time of Louis XIV. The plot is based on the efforts of the French monarch to gain Flanders from Spain. The principal roles will be taken by George Tuthill as Beaucoeur, an English prince in disguise, Delores Becker as Maria-Teresa, and John Crowe as Louis XIV. There will be 65 in the cast.

PUBLIC LIBRARIES LENT 536,459 BOOKS IN FEBRUARY

Those in Greatest Demand Included "In the Shadow of Liberty," by Corsi.

Books lent by the St. Louis public libraries for home use totaled 536,459 during February, according to the monthly report issued by Dr. Arthur E. Bostwick, librarian. In addition, 147,951 books and other reference materials were used in the reading rooms at the various libraries.

Books in greatest demand included "In the Shadow of Liberty," by Corsi; "The American Diplomatic Game," by Pearson and Brown; "Farewell to Fifth Avenue," by Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., and "Another Caesar," by Neuman.

The registration department issued 6392 readers' cards, bringing to 178,252 the number of St. Louisans entitled to draw books from the libraries for home use. There were 2343 books added to the collections, including 213 books for the blind.

LEGAL DROWNING OF SHAMROCK IN IRISH FREE STATE TODAY

Saloons to Be Open Under Law Because St. Patrick's Day Falls on Sunday.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, March 16.—For the first time since the birth of the Irish Free State, the shamrock will be legally "drowned" tomorrow in celebration of St. Patrick's day.

Public houses will be open until unusual Sunday hours—7 p. m. in country districts but only until 3 in the cities.

Ulster not only will miss the border rush of other years by thirsty Free-Staters, but the latter will have a good laugh at the expense of their northern neighbors. A rigid Sunday closing law in Ulster will completely reverse conditions prevailing in previous years.

This all came about because of the law which made the Free State dry on St. Patrick's day—one of the first pieces of legislation passed by the Dail Eireann after southern Ireland got its freedom—stipulating that saloons would be closed on St. Patrick's day if it fell "on any week day."

The fact that St. Patrick's day falls in the middle of Lent, but is not regarded as part of Lent because it is a feast day, has given impetus to the spirit of revelry.

Warren's Vision Of Money Based Upon Commodities

Warren's theory. The other factor is the shift in money value with the shift in the price of gold. He goes back to before the discovery of America to show how prices have moved up or down with the discovery of a gold mine and the cheapening of money or the rise in the absolute value of money through a world scarcity of gold. Although he does not approve of gold as a currency base, he believes that the Government, by arbitrarily moving the gold price up or down—as it has now undertaken to do—may in considerable part control prices. Critics of Warren's theory have said that he places too much emphasis on his factor of gold price, and he acknowledges in his present book that some price levels do not respond readily.

Basis of Prices.

"The price outlook for any commodity is the resultant of a combination of five unknowns," says Prof. Warren. "For example, the price of wheat is determined by: (1) supply of wheat; (2) demand for wheat; (3) supply of gold; (4) demand for gold; (5) the price of gold, and the possibility of establishment of a monetary system not based on gold."

"Prices that are set by monopolies or other agencies that have power to enforce their wishes," he adds, "can for a long time keep prices far out of line with what they would be if the five factors were allowed to operate freely, but cannot permanently control both price and volume of business. In such cases, instead of price being governed by supply and demand, supply is governed by price and demand."

Civilization of today, particularly the credit structure, is so complex that it could not withstand deflation that went to the extremes of previous depressions, Warren says. In any rapid deflation there are "resistant prices" that get radically out of line with the sagging price structure; such as insurance rates and interest charges that cannot be quickly adjusted. A "scientific" currency would prevent such wide price swings, he says. This is being done, he suggests, as follows:

"If any country continues a policy of varying the price of gold, such as England is now following, it can establish whatever price level it desires and avoid violent fluctuations. During the past three years, prices in England and Sweden have been more stable than prices in gold standard countries."

Favors Shelving Gold Clause.

Warren wholly approves the action of the President and Congress in invalidating the gold clause.

"The invalidation of the gold clause was in the interest of 'widows and orphans' and other creditors because the general inability to pay was bankrupting banks and railroads, and would have bankrupted life insurance companies," he says "had not the Government come to the aid of banks, railroads and farmers and abandoned the gold standard. In justice, a lender should be entitled to collect a dollar of the same buying power that he lent—no more, no less. In practice, a general effort to collect far more valuable dollars than those which were lent instead of being a benefit to creditors, often results in heavy losses, because of inability to collect. When the debtor cannot pay, abstract discussion of justice becomes academic.

Multiple-Commodity Dollar.

Prof. Warren does not wholly indorse any currency system, although he leans most heavily to the "compensated dollar," which should have "a variable weight of gold with a purchasing power as nearly constant as possible." This apparently is the dollar the Government is now attempting to arrive at.

There is a suggestion that perhaps the perfect currency system has not yet been envisioned. But Warren describes several kinds of dollars. One is the multiple-commodity dollar which instead of representing one-thirty-fifth of an ounce of gold, might represent two grains of gold, plus 30 grains of silver, plus one pound of middling cotton, plus one pound of copper, plus five pounds of No. 2 red wheat, plus one pound of lard, and so on. It should be noted that the commodities enumerated by Warren are primarily international commodities—that is, they enter into world trade.

"The Government," the author adds, "would not need to keep each of these in stock at all times, but could be given the choice of redeeming its currency with the commodities in the proportions given or in gold or silver, giving the amount that would purchase the other commodities at current prices. Since the currency would be used as a measure of value, there would be no occasion for a large amount of redemption. The total values of the sum of the articles included would always be a dollar, but the price of any one of them could change freely."

The "compensated dollar," with its gold content adjusted to the price level of all commodities and to the price of gold, would provide for internal stability of the dollar but would not, of course, provide stability in foreign exchange. If other countries adopted the same plan and substantially the same basic commodity index, internal and external stability could be attained, Warren adds.

Marriages in St. Louis.

This book, like Prof. Warren's earlier works, is crammed with charts, graphs and tables, the work of his collaborator, Pearson. Everything is related to the fluctuation in the price level. There is even a section on marriages in greater St. Louis in which data assembled by Roy Wenzlick, real estate economist, is employed. Warren and Pearson point to how St. Louis marriages have risen from the low of April, 1933, along with the gradual rise in the price level. There was a record number of unmarried adult males in St. Louis in 1934.

"Many persons blame Congress or the democratic form of government or the organization of society based on private enterprise for the business collapse," Warren says. "These things are no more to blame for this collapse than they are to blame for the stalling of an automobile when the battery fails. If the battery fails, the thing to correct is the battery—not the gasoline, or the engine, or the grade of the road. If the exchange cog in our business machinery breaks, the thing to correct is that cog."

Always he reverts to the problems of price and money. These are the two horns of the dilemma on which the world is at present impaled in Warren's view. They are at the root of "the greatest economic catastrophe that has ever occurred."

NEW ROMBERG PLAY FOR MUNICIPAL OPERA

"The Lady in the Window" to Have World Premiere on Forest Park Stage.

A new musical play by Sigmund Romberg and Otto Harbach, "The Lady in the Window," will have its world premiere during the seventeenth Municipal Opera season which will start June 3 at the Forest Park theater.

Assurance that the Romberg-Harbach presentation would be ready for production here this summer was received yesterday from Laurence Schwab, the Municipal Opera's new producing director, who controls the American rights. Schwab plans to use in the production here many of the principals who will be seen in "The Lady in the Window" next fall in New York.

The scenes of the play are laid in Hungary and Rumania, with its characters drawn from the social, theatrical and political life of the two countries.

Romberg and Harbach will come to St. Louis to supervise rehearsals for the production. Next to Victor Herbert, Romberg has been the most frequent contributor to the repertories of previous Municipal Opera seasons. Eleven of his operettas have been presented, including "Blossom Time," "The Desert Song," "East Wind," "The New Moon," "The Love Call," "Maytime," "My Maryland," "Nina Rosa," "Princess Flavia," "The Blue Paradise," and "The Student Prince."

Harbach has written the books and lyrics for 11 plays which the Municipal Opera has presented. These include "The Firefly," "Katinka," "The Song of the Flame," "Rose Marie," "No, No, Nanette," "Mary," "Wildflower," "Golden Dawn," "The Desert Song," "Nina Rosa," and "The Cat and the Fiddle."

"The Lady in the Window" is the seventh play to be chosen for the 1935 season. Those previously announced were "Roberta," "Sunny" and "The Cat and the Fiddle," by Jerome Kern, Fritz Kreisler's "Apple Blossoms," "Oscar Straus' "The Chocolate Soldier," and Rudolph Friml's "The Vagabond King."

CAB DRIVER THANKS BANKER BECAUSE FINLAND PAID UP

Financier in Helsingfors Tells of His Experience in New York City.

By the Associated Press.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, March 16.—Risto Ryti, Governor of the Bank of Finland, tells of an incident which occurred during his recent visit to New York City.

"Say," said a taxicab driver to Ryti, "what kind of a newspaper is that you're reading?"

"This," replied Ryti, "is a Finnish newspaper."

"Then you're a Finn?"

"Yes," answered Ryti.

"Say," the driver declared with a grin, "I'd like to shake your hand if you don't mind. You Finns are the guys who are paying your war debt. I've read about that."

Ryti said he was proud to shake the driver's hand. He said it was a typical incident of American friendliness.

Annual Report Discusses Problem of Homeless Men

The problem of the homeless man and the means by which it has been attacked in St. Louis, were reviewed in a 30-page booklet issued last week as the annual report of the Bureau for Homeless Men, covering its activities and those of the Men's Unit of St. Louis Relief Administration for 1934.

The two organizations aided 30,300 men during the year, the report stated, and at the end of the year had 5600 men under care. Expenditures for the year totaled $448,164.

G. Myron Gwinner, secretary of the Bureau, which is a United Relief agency, and director of the Unit, which is a component of the public relief organization, pointed out in the report that the burden of caring for homeless men seemed to level out in 1934, indicating that the peak had been passed.

Anti-Begging Effort Abandoned.

The report mentioned two interesting developments in the work of the Bureau during 1934. One was the abandonment of the Bureau's effort to eliminate begging on the streets, one of the chief functions it assumed when organized in 1925. Another was the establishment of a boys' camp on the grounds of the Shaw's Garden arboretum at Gray's Summit.

Abandonment of the Bureau's work against begging, the report stated, became desirable because of a change in the policy of police courts which resulted in most beggars being paroled to the bureau rather than sentenced to the workhouse. Beggars then took the position that they could embarrass the bureau, if denied the relief they sought, by begging on the streets. In actual practice, the report said, the scheme worked very well.

The Gray's Summit camp was established last September to keep boys being helped by the bureau off the city's streets, and keep them occupied at useful work. A large barn was converted into a bunkhouse and dining room and 45 boys were quartered in the camp at the end of the year. The boys are building roads and trails through the 1600-acre arboretum so that later it can be opened as a public park. High School teachers conduct classes at the camp two nights a week and there are other recreational activities, including a motion picture show one night a week.

Danger of "Case Work" Treatment.

Another departure during the year from previous practice, the report stated, was the recognition given to the principal that "case work" treatment of those who applied for help was indicated in only a small portion of the total number. It was recognized, the report said, that problems of most men were reducable to unemployment, and that case work for these was not only unnecessary, but dangerous, serving to keep men on relief longer than their actual needs required.

"A man once accepted for care," the report stated, "has made a start toward a bad habit and it is far more difficult to overcome this and show him that he does not need the agency than it is to get at the root of the trouble in the beginning. There is a natural inertia to a relief load that is hard to overcome."

About 2100 men, or two-fifths of the total helped, were staying at the end of the year in the two shelters, Chestnut Lodge at 2207 Chestnut street, and Ozanam Shelter, Montgomery and Coleman streets. Chestnut Lodge, which has a capacity of 825, is for those men who are free to spend the day looking for odd jobs or other work. Ozanam Shelter is for the aged and infirm, not likely ever again to be self-supporting. It houses about 1200 men, many of whom have been there for a year or more.

4224 Meals a Day at Cafeteria.

The cafeteria, at Sixteenth and Pine streets, served an average of 4224 meals each day during 1934 at a total cost of $14,423, an average of about 8 cents a meal. All those being helped by the bureau who live within about 17 blocks of the cafeteria, are required to have their meals there. Two meals, breakfast and dinner, are served each day.

Every man receiving assistance is required to do some work for the bureau, unless excused because of age or infirmity. Men who receive intermittent help, such as clothing when needed, are required to work before the relief is granted. They are put to work usually at one of the bureau's buildings, and receive credit at the rate of 40 cents an hour. Those who receive steady assistance do their work the month following that in which they obtained help.

Many of these work at the 100-acre vegetable garden at 4200 Goodfellow boulevard. For each day's work they receive a credit of $3 against relief already obtained and 25 cents in cash. Produce valued at $759 was raised last summer at the garden, the report stated. Vegetables grown at the garden were served in the cafeteria.

ERROR IN SOCIAL SERVICE LIST

Board of Industrial Aid for Blind Wrongly Classified.

The Board of Industrial Aid for the Blind, a voluntary association, was erroneously listed as a department of the Missouri Commission for the Blind, a State agency, in the Social Service Directory of St. Louis, recently published by the Community Council.

Attention was called to the error by Mrs. Mary E. Ryder, executive director of the commission. Members of the Board of Industrial Aid contribute their services in supervising a workshop for blind women and a broom factory here.

$11,769 BACK WAGES PAID

Largest Restitutions Were in Wool Textile Industry.

Back wages totaling $11,769.57 were restored to Missouri employes from March 4 to March 16, Charles L. Hodge, State NRA Compliance Officer, reported yesterday.

The largest restitutions were in cases of violations in the wool textile industry, in which $2561.49 was paid to 70 employes of one firm, and in the feed manufacturing industry, in which $1837.71 was restored to 24 employes who had been paid less than the code wage.

CHINESE CERAMICS AT CITY ART MUSEUM

Most of Early Collections of Sung Dynasty — Lent by Anonymous Collector.

A collection of early Chinese ceramics, lent to City Art Museum in Forest Park by a private collector who wishes to remain anonymous, has been installed in the Japanese gallery, where it will be on view for several months. The musemu's collection of Japanese art has been temporarily retired from exhibition.

Most of the ceramics are of the Sung Dynasty, a period in which the ceramic art of China reached its greatest perfection, according to scholars and connoisseurs. Although true porcelain was known at the time, most of the objects were of fine pottery, intermediate between the softness of earthenware and the vitreous hardness of porcelain. Ceramics of this period rely for their effect on simplicity of form, freedom of painted decoration, and the subtle quality of their glazes.

There are several fine examples in the collection of pieces from the kilns of T'zu Chou in Honan, which derive their decorative quality from boldly painted designs. A case of "Ting" ware is noteworthy for the low relief decorations in connection with rich, creamy glazes. Also of a single color are the true porcelains of the Ying Ching group, which derive their name from the translucent blue-green glazes. Closely allied to these are the Lung Ch'uan porcelains, which have been given the European name, "celadon," from their characteristic soft green color.

Many connoisseurs rate the brightly colored Chun ware as finest among Sung potteries. These have a variegated glaze which may run in a single example from a delicate blue-green to a rich crimson.

The ancient Chinese tea-tasting competitions are recalled by the rich variegated browns of the Chien Yao bowls, which came mostly from the kilns of Chienning Fu, in the Province of Fukien.

Earlier and somewhat more primitive potteries of the T'ang Dynasty are represented in the collection by two groups of small pieces glazed in yellow, green and blue. A particularly noteworthy example of this type is a lamp in the form of a bird.

Movie Attendance For 1934 Set at 70 Million Weekly

SUNDRY Facts About Industry Issued in Year Book — Varying Whims of World's Film Censors.

SEVENTY million Americans went to the movies every week in 1934, according to the Film Daily Year Book, which has just appeared in its seventeenth annual edition, for delectable poring-over by dramatic editors and such.

The last year's attendance, comparison shows, was 15 per cent better than in 1933, but can boast only feebly if placed alongside the record for 1930, when the 110,000,000 who went to the show between each two paydays left hardly enough members of the family at home to keep the fires burning.

Without the incidence of any earthquakes recently, it may be assumed that today as at the end of 1934, there are 13,386 places where celluloid entertainment is on tap in the United States, with 278 strictly picture houses, and 36 of a combination of movies and stage shows, in Missouri alone.

Last year there were 662 feature pictures released in the United States, a number which is only a paltry three dozen or so above what would be required to keep St. Louis' six first-run houses going on double bills 52 weeks out of the year. The 662, moreover, includes all the "cats and dogs" turned out by Hollywood.

SINCE 1915, there have been 14,573 feature pictures released in the United States and the year book lists them all. A glance over the titles shows 150 which used the word "love" as the one to attract the customers, 104 the word "girl," 62 offering some kind of a "devil," 36 starting out with Broadway, only 31 for "scarlet" now and a dozen or so for "passion." Such advice as "Don't Get Personal," "Don't Call It Love," "Don't Ever Marry," "Don't Doubt Your Wife" and "Don't Tell Everything" has been offered.

It will probably not be surprising to the average fan to learn that Berton Churchill, the ill-tempered adversary in nearly any Will Rogers picture, was the most-worked gentleman on the screen last year. He made 29 pictures. Hobart Cavanaugh was in 24, Henry O'Neill in 20, Robert Barratt in 19. Shirley Grey and Sarah Padden led among the women with 13, and Shirley Temple, in her first year, got off to a good start with seven.

Of special variety are the views of different nations on censorship, as reported in the compilation. Brazil, it is said, is firm on the matter of crime in films but lenient where sex is the subject; Sweden will have none of suicides but permits the youngsters to see crime in most of its forms. Japan is usually very tolerant but will not allow scenes of riot and revolution. A certificate for the "Private Life of Henry VIII" was withdrawn in India on the ground that the picture "militates against the traditional reverence of Indians for the reign-house in England."

In a foreword, Will H. Hays, American movie czar, describes the industry's attitude of standing "unflinchingly against every influence that would degrade socially or morally the character of the entertainment we produce." Without discussing the trend away from black and white pictures, he insists that there "should be no room for off-color entertainment on the motion picture screen." —C. Mc.

Many Plays Eligible For Pulitzer Award

WITH the season again at hand in New York for the selection of the Pulitzer Prize play, Broadway wiseacres find themselves this year put to considerable guessing.

In other days, the matter was simple. Comedies were automatically disqualified and the list of solemn theatricals gone over. Then the committee reached out and crowned a musical comedy, "Of Thee I Sing," passing up Eugene O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Electra," which was regarded as a sure winner, and guessing was no longer scientific.

Anticipation these days is made even more troublesome by the fact that sometimes, as was the case last year, the award is given a play not selected by the jury. Such reversals made prize-winners of "Hell Bent for Heaven" and "Men in White," when the nominees were, respectively, "The Show-Off" and "Mary of Scotland."

Nevertheless there are a few plays which must receive serious consideration from the prize jury, chief of which is Lillian Hellman's "The Children's Hour." Judging by their reviews, it is far and away the critics' choice, but there are those who believe its theme of unnatural love will disqualify it. The fact that it was banned in London this week does not help matters.

"THE PETRIFIED FOREST" is a strong contender, further strengthened in that its author, Robert Sherwood, is deserving of recognition for past brilliant work in the theater. Two plays of the Group Theater, producers of last year's winner, are highly regarded. They are "Awake and Sing" and "Gold Eagle Buy." S. N. Behrman, like Sherwood, is to be considered for past performances quite as much as for his current work, "Rain From Heaven."

Maxwell Anderson's "Valley Forge" and "Merrily We Roll Along" from the pens of George Kaufman and Moss Hart are contenders, but are not considered as strong in the running. The same may be said of "The Jayhawker," by Sinclair and Lloyd Lewis.

It is quite possible that "The Old Maid," a dramatization of an Edith Wharton story, will get important consideration. After a faltering start it has won a firm following.

Ordinarily such frolicsome things as "Personal Appearance" and "Three Men on a Horse" would be rejected as too trivial, but they must be mentioned. And in further safety there must be kept in mind the hilarious musical show, "Anything Goes."

The Week's New Films

By Colvin McPherson

IF EVER the movies go three-dimensional, a gentleman by the ticklish name of Busby Berkeley doubtlessly will be well ahead of the other lads in making audiences gasp. His novel effects (not really so novel now that he has used them again and again) may even merit present recognition from those who insist that the cinema is an art. On the screen at the Shubert this week, in "Gold Diggers of 1935," Berkeley again gives his imagination full play. Probably he woke up some morning and asked himself, "How would 60 white pianos look in a pony ballet?" Having the authority to ask for 60 white pianos, he called up the studio store and had the 60 wrapped up. There they are, wiggling around in that snaky way which the totem-pole girls in "Rose Marie," I believe, first made famous. The pianos do all sorts of tricks, climbing stairs and going through maneuvers which neither the Warner Brothers Air Corps nor Miss Gilda Gray ever attempted. Whenever the inventors give the screen depth (and from several sources we are informed that they already have) Mr. Berkeley will probably be inspired to telephone Mount Wilson to have 60 planets earmarked and set aside for his chorus girls to ride around on. I hope the change does not come before he exhausts his potentialities on the flat screen and he does not do that in "Gold Diggers." Of the picture, generally, it may be said that it is pleasant enough entertainment, with a galaxy of comedians (including Alice Brady, Hugh Herbert, Frank McHugh and Joseph Cawthorn) each in favorite mood of making fun. Dick Powell sings in his school boy way, Winnie Shaw like Helen Morgan, with increased diaphragm space. Gloria Stuart looks lovely. Two things are decidedly novel—the gold-digging is done by men as well as women, and the backstage setting has been scrapped except as regards the production of a milk-fund benefit at a swank hotel, under auspices of the dizzy dowager, Miss Brady.

The Wedding Night.

HAVING discovered that tobacco is grown in Connecticut, a certain movie producer apparently decided the one fact was unique enough for a picture to be made on that theme. "The Wedding Night," at Loew's, results. We see an author, Gary Cooper, and his wife, Helen Vinson, leave their heaven of gin glasses and fawning sophisticates to go back to his old home in the nutmeg section. It is an enforced vacation, as Gary's novels are getting to be silly rewrites. In the field, then, Helen can't stand the pressure and heads for the big town, leaving Gary to fall in love with the little Polish-American cutie, Anna Sten, who brings the milk every morning. In accordance with the customs of the community Anna has been bargained off to one of the peasants. Gary writes a grand book about himself and Anna, Helen comes back, Anna gets married. The story sounds vaguely familiar although I cannot recall offhand any married lady before Anna being tossed to her doom except Scott's unhappy Amy Robsart. King Vidor, who directed "The Wedding Night" has given it a credibility of setting and action. Miss Sten's performance, complete and faithful in every detail, is somewhat toned down by the many-sided brilliance that Helen Vinson has in her role. Cooper does his best with his slight material. The rest of the characters overburden themselves with strange accents, all passing for Polish. Loew's double-biller, "Shadow of Doubt," introduces Constance Collier in her first talking picture. Well-known, for several decades, on the New York and London stage, she receives her first assignment as a museum piece in an old New York mansion, who suddenly comes out of her castle to solve a murder mystery. The audience ought to like her, and does.

Transient Lady.

THE main picture at the Missouri is so plainly a libel on the small towns of the South that nobody will be fooled, the bad and good people in "Transient Lady" being recognizable at sight. Southerners may see their fellowmen that way—at least a Southern lady I once knew insisted she could spot Republicans and Democrats. The transient about whom the picture was filmed is Frances Drake, star performer with a skating-rink troupe that moves from town to town, as pastures green and fade. In one town, the skaters become involved in a local feud and a murder. A fair trial for one of Frances' associates is almost out of the question until the young attorney, Gene Raymond, tangles up one of the witnesses, whose testimony is several degrees lower than perjury. With acquittal almost imminent, night falls and Henry Hull, wicked to the core, decides to throw a lynching party. Things get exciting but the air clears and there is love in bloom. (Frances and Gene, as we would write on the announcement party cupids.) In "Their Last Night," the second-string players of Hollywood put over a play built on an excess of murder confessions. A "lie-detector" (not Gene Raymond this time) discovers who is it.

Carnival.

ASIDE from a colorful, and well-presented, background for the Lee Tracy-Sally Eilers picture at the Fox this week, there is little to recommend the show. It has a new child star, Dickie Walters, who handles his words fairly well but these continual debuts by the little ones are giving me more than a little sympathy for a theater man who finds great sport, in previewing pictures with new child stars, to call out, "He's a midget. That guy's 40 years old!" "Death Flies East" is the second Fox picture. It is something about a killing on a transcontinental air liner. And what strange birds fly!

Outcast Lady.

"THE GREEN HAT," despite its plentiful wickedness, made good reading back in the old days and was, in many ways, a spanking good play and movie, when first presented. It bobs up again as "Outcast Lady," although most citizens would be put to some pains to identify the body. Things in the movies may no longer be so wicked. Admittedly; yet to find that Iris March's husband kills himself on his wedding night because he had "served a prison term under another name and for such a terrible crime" is a terrible let-down. Moreover, although Iris has her day in the hospital, the reasons are not made clear. Would it not be better to pass up such things as "The Green Hat" unless they can be done with some dramatic import? "School for Girls," the Ambassador's second picture, has a great many old faces in the cast. It is about a reform school.

Roberta.

Symphony to Close Season With Extra Performance Today

WITH an extra performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, presented with a chorus of 200 voices and a quartet of nationally-known singers, the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra brings its fifty-fifth season to a close at the Municipal Auditorium at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The program is one of the most important in St. Louis symphonic history, presenting two Bach works together with Beethoven's choral symphony. The extra performance following the regular ones Friday afternoon and last night was made necessary to provide for an increased demand, particularly from non-subscribers to the regular symphony concerts, both in St. Louis and throughout the neighboring territory.

Under the baton of Vladimir Golschmann the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra with its 86 players, and the newly-formed St. Louis Symphony chorus, which for four months has been under intensive training from Chorus Master William B. Heyne, are assisted for the performances of the Beethoven Ninth by Jeannette Vreeland, soprano; Gladys Havens, contralto; Chase Baromeo, baritone, and Robert Betts, tenor.

Extras Too Contented.

An explosion of the milder sort occurred in Hollywood one day recently when studio heads were viewing "rushes," those samples of recently-photographed scenes, from "Les Miserables," the new Fredric March-Charles Laughton picture. Although the setting of the period is that of the French Revolution, several extras in the scenes were placidly at work on good old American chewing gum.

Burton Holmes to Talk on Italy.

Burton Holmes will continue his travel lecture course at the Municipal Auditorium tomorrow night, with a discussion of a complete tour of Italy, from the Alps to the sea, and beyond into Sicily.

"Sailor, Beware!" Into American For Week's Stay

NAUGHTY Nautical Comedy Has Cast Which Appeared 500 Times on Broadway.

"SAILOR, Beware!" which paraded its mirthful naughtiness before New Yorkers some 500 times during 1933 and 1934, will open at the American Theater tonight for a week's run, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

The cast, virtually that of the original production, is headed by Bruce Macfarlane and Audrey Christie. Macfarlane has his original role of "Dynamite" Jones and Miss Christie is the "Stonewall" Jackson that she was on Broadway. Other players are John Call, Larry Fletcher, Ruth Lee, John Alexander, Josephine Evans, Paul Huber, Ann Thomas, Effie Afton, Horace MacMahon, Richard Purcell, Robert Williams, Jack Stone, Bradford Hatton, William Grier, Edgar Nelson, Joseph de Villard and G. Swayne Gordon.

The action centers about "Dynamite" Jones, whose way with women is of such fame that his pals on the U. S. S. Dakota are willing to lay bets on him. When, therefore, "Dynamite" meets his most formidable opposition in the person of "Stonewall" Jackson, a little waterfront cafe hostess, betting takes on such proportions as to make Jones' campaign for the lady's favors a kind of navy sweepstakes. The outcome, necessarily, is a romance of far more lofty character than originally planned.

MACFARLANE, who is the son of Alice Gentle, the coloratura soprano, has had some motion picture experience and played bits in "The Last Mile," "Five Star Final" and other stage plays. Miss Christie, a graduate of the chorus, is in her first dramatic role. She was seen in such shows as "Good News," "Follow Thru," "Sons O' Guns" and "Sweet and Low."

"Sailor, Beware!" which was written by Kenyon Nicholson and Charles Robinson, was turned down by a half dozen producers before Courtney Burr took it over and staged it. The authors themselves directed it.

Nicholson, who occasionally teaches courses in dramatic composition at Columbia University, once had Robinson in one of his classes, and [illegible] dropped the [illegible]. His departure did not preclude, however, their eventual collaboration.

According to Nicholson, the play was written as a direct threat to Hollywood. "We started out to write a piece which couldn't, under any circumstances, be sold to the movies," Nicholson said. "We were set on that. It just wasn't to be material the films could touch. Our emotions, you will understand, were what is known as mixed when the film rights to the darned thing sold for more money than either of us had ever got from Hollywood before. It was just one of life's little ironies, $80,000 worth of irony, to be exact."

"Sailor, Beware!" however, ran aground in the clean movie hurricane, and has never been hauled off the beach.

Little Theater Offers Two Plays In Spring Season

IN RESUMPTION of its repertory policy, the Little Theater will begin its spring season March 26 with the presentation of "Tom Jones," an adaptation of the Henry Fielding novel by Robert Wallsten.

"Her Master's Voice," a modern comedy by Clare Kummer, will open on April 3, to be played alternately with "Tom Jones," in three-night runs, until May 1. The theater, however, will be closed temporarily for Holy Week.

"Tom Jones," which won the principal prize in the National Little Theater contest of last year, is described as a robust comedy of the eighteenth century. Played in 12 scenes, it follows the fortunes of Tom as he is disowned and sent away from the home of his foster father because of his love for the beautiful Sophia. Robert E. Teman, who has taken leading parts in several Little Theater plays, will have the name part.

The author of the play is a young actor at present on Broadway in "The Old Maid," playing in support of Judith Anderson and Helen Menken.

"Her Master's Voice" was one of the successes of last season in New York. It tells the story of a husband who did not want to sing, and a wife who wanted to sing but couldn't. The husband eventually patches up a domestic entanglement and wins a contract as a radio crooner. Roland Young, Frances Fuller, Laura Hope Crews and Elizabeth Patterson were in the New York production.

"Sleeping Beauty" at Auditorium.

The Children's Theater Guild will present the Lady Bell version of "The Sleeping Beauty" next Saturday at 2:15 p.m. in the East Little Theater of the Municipal Auditorium.

HOW TO SECURE BUSINESS FROM HOUSING CANVASS

Selling Facts for Business Interests to Be Set Forth in Meetings March 18, 19 and 20.

Of the $14,000,000 in round figures expenditures pledged in the better housing campaign recently made in St. Louis and St. Louis County by the respective Chambers of Commerce, sponsored by the national FHA, approximately one-third have been carried out on repairs or improvements. Walter W. Head, general chairman of the campaign, has put under way a movement to turn to practical account the far-reaching opportunity for business in many directions, for workers and a wide range of dealers remaining in the pledges yet to be met. The method devised to accomplish this purpose is defined by Head as better selling understanding. In announcement of the plan the chairman says:

"We are sponsoring a series of meetings at which better selling will be demonstrated. The building business will be shown how it may secure all the benefits of the program; benefits that result in better stores, better homes, better offices and much better business volume for those whose business life and living depend upon building. American property owners now are spending over $20,000,000 per week for modernization and repair. Are you getting your share of this business?"

A series of three meetings, arranged exclusively for architects, contractors, builders and the building tradesmen generally, has been arranged for tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, March 18, 19 and 20, at 8 o'clock, in assembly room No. 1, Municipal Auditorium. It is stated that vital selling facts will be presented at each of these meetings by nationally known men recognized as authorities on the subject. Programs and speakers for each of the meetings are as follows:

Monday evening, March 18: Call to order by Walter W. Head, general chairman and welcome remarks by chairman of the meeting, Meredith C. Jones, Regional Director.

Address by Theodore E. Damm of the Industrial Division, FHA, Washington, D. C.

Tuesday evening, March 19: Calling to order by John Ring Jr., honorary chairman, and welcome by active chairman E. G. Hotchkiss, manager of financial relations, FHA, St. Louis.

SURVEY FOR WIDENING OF NATURAL BRIDGE RD. READY

Papers Turned Over to Normandy Improvement Association to Obtain Rights of Way.

Obtaining of rights of way is the only incompleted preliminary to beginning of work on the widening of Natural Bridge road from Pine Lawn to Normandy Park. This is believed by those who have undertaken the task, under assignment by the Normandy Improvement Association, to present no real difficulties to prolong the delay.

The association held a meeting last Monday night following closely the return of George J. Wanstrath, an active figure in the widening movement, and his wife from a week's sojourn in New Orleans during the Mardi Gras season. At that meeting it was reported that the State Highway Commission had completed its survey in connection with the projected improvement and would turn over all papers in relation to it when representatives of the organization desired them. Wanstrath and his associates on the committee were instructed to get the papers and proceed actively to secure the rights of way as speedily as practicable. This means grants of ground on both sides of the highway, with or without compensation. It is the belief of Wanstrath that this detail can be carried through within a comparatively short time, in view of the definite advantage to every property owner. Several already have given assurances of the donation, he says.

The proposed widening to 100 feet is in continuance of that width from Pine Lawn, as stated, to which point from the city it already is a 100-foot highway. From Normandy Park it is understood the State Highway Commission will carry it on to the airport.

Wanstrath and associate committeemen had a meeting Friday afternoon with the Highway Commissioner, with whom complete understanding was had, and from whom surveys and other essential papers appertaining to rights-of-way were received. They also were assured that the widened highway is to be made a sample, perhaps the best stretch in the Missouri road system in construction and beautifying, and that this will entail no assessment of abutting property owners. The committee is confident the relatively few rights-of-way to be secured will be in hand very shortly, and that work on the highway will begin before the spring season ends.

WEEK'S APPLICATIONS FOR FHA LOANS TOTAL $156,000

Applications for insurance of loans to finance construction of new building increased materially last week, amounting to $156,000, and total loan applications in the St. Louis office are slightly under $800,000, and for the State have largely exceeded $1,000,000 by several thousand dollars, it was stated yesterday by Richard S. Haines Jr., district director of the FHA.

Under a ruling of the FHA at Washington last Thursday, a method for creating a national market for mortgages on residential property equal to and not in excess of 80 per cent of the appraised value, for a maximum amount of $16,000, district offices are authorized to accept applications for loans, making it possible for a borrower who is unable to find a mortgagee to apply at the local office, 913 Ambassador Building, where the loan will be given consideration and, should no mortgagee in the St. Louis District be in the market, the Washington office will be notified and insurance companies and mortgagees in other localities will be permitted to purchase this loan direct from the FHA.

The FHA is authorized to insure $2,000,000,000 of loans at par value, half of which may be used for purchase of a home or refinancing, and the other half for construction of new buildings. The income to the FHA, in the way of mutual insurance, will amount to $20,000,000, a year, which will also be available for insurance.

NHA Mortgage Insurance Plan Liberalized in Several Lines

Changes Announced by Administrator Moffett Expected to Make Instrument More Attractive Generally.

Liberalization of regulations governing the mutual mortgage insurance plan of the NHA, making it more attractive to financial institutions and potential home owners, was announced yesterday by James A. Moffett, administrator.

Under the revised rules, mortgage companies with capital of $250,000 or more, and trustees acting in a fiduciary capacity, are eligible as mortgagees, with authority to obtain insured home mortgages. Each company and trustee, however, has to be approved by the administration.

Under the new order, also, insurance on mortgages upon which the FHA has made a previous commitment, becomes effective when construction is completed and the mortgage issued. A certificate of completion must be signed when the mortgage is formally executed. This provision, it was stated, avoids delay between execution of the mortgage and its insurance. The date on the insurance contract is made to coincide with that on the certificate.

Several changes were made also in the mortgage and note form. Chief among them being as follows:

1. If the premises covered by the mortgage shall be damaged by fire or other hazard against which insurance is held, the amount due from the insurance company shall be paid to the mortgagee, and at its option may be applied to the debt or released for repairing or rebuilding.

2. Privilege is reserved by the home owner to pay the debt in whole, or in an amount equal to the monthly payment, or in multiples of this payment, on the first day of any month prior to maturity, provided that he gives written notice to the lending institution at least 30 days prior to prepayment of intent to exercise such privilege.

3. The same grace period of one month is allowed in the notes as in the mortgages, the note not being in default if payment is made before the next monthly installment is due.

4. Interest is placed ahead of amortization in the allocation of monthly payments to the various charges to be met. The order of importance in the revised mortgage form is: Premium charge, service charge, taxes, interest, amortization of principal.

WEBSTER GROVES BUSINESS BLOCK BOUGHT FOR $60,000

The business building at 631-47 East Big Bend boulevard, Webster Groves, last week passed to ownership by the Real Estate Equity Co., the purchase price being announced by Festus J. Wade, Jr., president, as $60,000. It was acquired from the Samball Investment Co., represented by H. W. Herweck, negotiation on behalf of the Equity Co. being by Franciscus-Maginn, Inc.

The building, of substantial construction and modern design, is of one story, having a Big Bend frontage of 100 feet on the north side and liberal space for four stores. These are all occupied under leases having several years to run, on a satisfactory rental basis by a very dependable class of tenants, including Walgreen drug store, Kroger food store, Woolworth 5-and-10-cent store, and an established shoe repair shop.

The Real Estate Equity Co., organized last December by Festus J. Wade Jr. & Co. for the purpose of acquiring equities in income-producing realty, has purchased such equities in three properties which fully meet the requirement stated, and President Wade stated yesterday that investments to date aggregate $190,000.

R. E. SALESMEN'S ASSN. INSTALLS OFFICERS-ELECT

Active direction for the ensuing year of the Real Estate Salesmen's Association was passed to R. L. Klein, president, and his official staff when they were installed last Thursday at a luncheon meeting in the American Annex Hotel. Election of them took place the preceding Thursday.

In his address on retirement from the presidency, Samuel L. Wiener sketched the formation and activities of the year-old organization, which had grown from a charter membership of 33, of whom 30 are on the present roster, to 128. During the year 39 meetings were held, with an average attendance of 28. "We have passed through a trying year in the real estate field," he said, "but rejoice in the improvement over the preceding year, and I believe that the coming year holds for us a much brighter outlook."

BUSINESS PROPERTIES ON CHOUTEAU AND CASS LEASED

A lease on the one-story building at 2122-28 Chouteau avenue, containing 11,000 square feet of floor space, to C. J. Kloske, representative of the Freuhoff Trailer Co., was closed last week by the Breitt & Nauman Realty Co. Extensive alterations are being made to the property, and possession will be taken about April 15. The lessee was represented by Anson Klauber of the Wolff-Pollack Real Estate Co., and Eugene L. Wehmeyer of the Breitt & Naumer Co., represented Jacob Geldbach, the owner.

The Glasco Electric Co., has taken 8000 square feet of additional warehouse space in the Brecht property, at Hadley and Cass avenues. In this transaction Wehmeyer represented both the Brecht and the Glasco companies.

CRAUSE ELECTED CHAIRMAN BY REAL ESTATE BROKERS

Succeeds J. Milton Levi at Annual Meeting; Others Placed in Official Stations.

Ralph J. Crause, who served efficiently last year as vice-chairman of the brokers' division of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, was promoted to the chairmanship at the annual election by that organization last Tuesday. At the same meeting, J. Melvin Levi, retiring chairman, was not permitted to discard official harness, being placed on the board of governors. The election was held in the exchange quarters and the number of ballots was convincing of the keen interest of members.

While it was emphasized that nominees submitted by the governors in no wise constituted a slate, and that additional ones could be made from the floor, the voters unanimously approved the list as submitted, as follows: Ralph J. Crause of George F. Bergfeld Co., Inc., chairman; Curt C. Mack, president of Curt C. Mack Realty Co., vice-chairman; William Eichenser, treasurer, and W. H. Whitton of the F. J. Cornwell Real Estate Co., secretary. Board of governors: William F. Duerbeck, president, Duerbeck Realty Co.; E. A. League of the Butts Realty Co.; J. Melvin Levi, president J. M. Levi & Co.; Minard MacCarthy of the Albert G. Blanke Real Estate Co., and Walter Rust, vice-president M. A. Rust & Sons Realty Co.

Fuldner, manager of the commercial leasing department of Oreon E. & R. G. Scott. This is a corner at the terminus of the City Limits car line, and also a transfer point. The lessees have planned an elaborate fixture layout and be ready for business about April 15. Owners of the building and lessees were represented by Fuldner.

OLD N. J. COLMAN STOCK FARM SOLD TO H. J. KELLMAN

Noted St. Louis County Tract of 300 Acres Was Later Owned by the Late Benjamin F. Bush.

A tract of 300 acres, noted for many years as among the foremost of St. Louis County properties, was sold last week by the Carl G. Stifel Real Estate Co., and the transaction carried definite promise of long-continued fame. The financial detail was not announced by the Stifel Co., but was declared to be well in line with its positive value.

The property came into national notice many years ago as the Norman J. Colman stock farm. The owner was chosen by President Grover Cleveland as Secretary of Agriculture because of his rank among agriculturists and fine stock growers. After Colman's death it was purchased by Benjamin F. Bush, as president of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Co., who operated it as a hobby dairy farm. A large sum of money was invested in blooded dairy stock and improvements and facilities to keep pace with progress in that class of enterprises, and at his death, several years ago, it was well stocked and otherwise equipped, there being five dwellings of various sizes for employes, a large dairy barn and other barns and sheds. It has been maintained in good condition by the widow, but with perhaps less operative activities than during the life of Bush. There were, however, about 100 head of fine stock when sold last week.

The tract is at Creve Coeur Mill and Olive Street roads. The transfer was by the Benjamin F. Bush Dairy Farm, corporate name under which it has been maintained by Mrs. Bush, the buyer being Harry J. Kellman, who will develop it as a modern dairy farm.

(This is the third large acreage property in St. Louis County sold by the Stifel agency within the last few weeks.)

COUNTY RESIDENCE LEASED, BUSINESS PROPERTIES SOLD

The I. A. Stevens residence of 12 rooms and two baths, on a 4½-acre tract on Walsh road, near the intersection of Clayton and Conway roads, St. Louis County, was named in a long-term lease closed last week, the lessee being Ben Weisman, secretary-treasurer of the Union-May-Stern Co. The transaction was handled by Arthur Goldman, manager of the Residential Sales Department of the Henry R. Weisels Co.

The Weisels Co. reported the sale of property at 2714-18 N. Broadway, consisting of two-story buildings, containing 12 tenements of 3 rooms each, on lot 48x176 feet, to George Naumann for a client. The Weisels and Rudy Kohn Realty Cos. handled the transaction.

The Weisels Co. also reported having sold the two-story building, containing two stores, two apartments and four-car garage on lot 48x150 feet, at 1432-34 Hodiamont avenue for J. Rockenstein to a client.

PLANS MADE FOR MARYLAND TYPE COLONIAL HOME

Highly Modern Residence to Be Under Construction in Huntleigh Village Very Soon, Bakewell Says.

A residence of relatively large proportions adapted to about all reasonable demands by the occupant family is to be put under construction at once in Huntleigh Village for the Lindberg Blvd. Land Co., of which Edward L. Bakewell is secretary. It will be of the Maryland Colonial design on a five-acre site susceptible of picturesque landscaping to accord with the dwelling. Plans for the house, of two stories and basement, have been prepared by Maritz, Young & Dusard, Inc., architects.

The first floor will in itself carry a relatively complete average modern home, in the way of space allotments to conveniences and comforts. There will be a broad reception hall, linked with a living room 19x29 feet; also a powder puff room with lavatory and toilet adjoining, large dining room, two master bedrooms and bath, from one of which extends an inclosed sun parlor; also two maids' rooms and bath, kitchen and pantry. The second floor will contain two master bedrooms, with bath in keeping. In the basement will be located a rathskeller 20x30 feet, with open fireplace, lavatory and toilet, boiler and laundry rooms, and two-car garage. The house will be heated by vacuum steam and entirely insulated.

Huntleigh Village was incorporated in 1927, and all the property included is closely restricted under terms of a zoning ordinance. Recently under direction of the authorities the corporation had 30,000 shrubs, rose bushes and trees along the embankments on both sides of the broad highway.

ELABORATE REMODELING OF PINE AND 9TH STS. CORNER

When work now in progress on the Ninth and Pine streets corner of the Maryland Hotel is complete as expected before April 15, there will be nothing to carry recollection of that store space as it previously appeared. The architectural detail is being supervised by Leo F. Abrams, and the interior finishing and equipment to be installed will be taken care of by the Interior Woodwork Manufacturing Co. The modernization is going forward for the Maryland Liquor Store, Inc., which recently entered into a 10-year lease of the space with the Rajah Realty Co. Expenditures will not be less than $16,000, it is stated by those concerned in the improvement and equipment.

The glass fronts on both streets named, which have been in harmony with the hotel structure as a whole, have vanished, and in their stead will be placed glass fronts of different color, figured with formica, a white composition which lends an air of beauty. A steel and concrete balcony is to be erected, making an upper floor, mainly for accommodation of ladies with tables and chairs, offices for the management and stock quarters. An adequate ventilating system is included in the plans.

The full force of the remodelling process will be most apparent and elaborate from the first floor view. The floor is to be terrazza, and the combination of woods and their trimmings has been designed for impression. The woods include Australian walnut, zebra, silver gray hardwood and French avodice, commingled in the massive equipment.

OVER-ALL PROPERTY TAX LIMIT UP IN 13 STATES

Bills for an over-all limitation on the property tax are before 13 State Legislatures, as follows: New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Illinois, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri (constitutional 1 per cent limitation outside of State levy), Nebraska, Texas, constitutional 1½ per cent limitation (outside of debts), Arizona, and Oregon. Similar bills will be ready in 11 other States this year, according to reports to the committee on real estate taxation of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. Eight States already have over-all limitations. Pennsylvania has a bill up to abolish tax levies on real estate for school purposes.

FINDS CAPITAL SWINGING BACK TO MORTGAGES

Terms and Appraisals Still Conservative, National Real Estate Board Learns From Inquiry Among Members.

Recent inquiry among its members by the National Association of Real Estate Boards discloses, according to a statement touching the result, that capital is swinging back to mortgage investment and that new-type long-term loan plans for home-building are beginning to emerge. It is stated, however, that great conservatism in loan terms and in appraisals for loans still prevails; that many communities still have no mortgage money and that the much discussed 20-year 80 per cent loans, insured or otherwise, are practically available in few communities, if in any.

A notable change taking place in the lending policy of life insurance companies is a feature of the situation, the association points out. One of the larger companies informed the Association as of March 4 that it will entertain application for new loans or renewals on residential property, on its 200-month or quarterly payment plan, and will also entertain applications for new 240-month residential loans subject to minimum interest rates and percentages of loans to value rates ranging from 4½ to 6 per cent.

Meantime, many articles relative to new financing avialable are very misleading, J. C. Taylor of Kansas City, chairman of the Land Developers and Home Builders Division of the National Association, points out. "Many individuals are laboring under the misapprehension that the Federal Government is making 80 per cent home loans," Taylor says. "Of course, the truth is that the Government, under title II, makes no loans at all, but simply insures loans if, as and when they meet certain conditions. So far as I can find out, in most communities there is very little, if any, money available for these so-called 80 per cent loans. The truth of the matter is the FHA under title II, has not yet done very much to assist in the financing of new construction on a long time basis."

PINE ST. CORNER LEASED BY TYPE FOUNDERS SALES CO.

The American Type Founders Sales Corporation has leased 2131-35 Pine street, and 206 N. twenty-second street, comprising the ground floor and basement of the Pinol building, northeast corner of Twenty-second and Pine streets, for its branch business here. The branch has been at Ninth and Walnut streets for many years, and Edward A. Tracy, manager, said it has become necessary to occupy larger space. The new quarters contain approximately 12,000 square feet of floor space, extensive alterations are being made. The lease was negotiated by the Issac T. Cook Co.

The St. Louis branch territory includes the entire Mississippi Valley, from Iowa to the Gulf of Mexico. The corporation has 24 selling houses in the United States, and a number of connections and agencies in foreign countries.

FURNITURE AND STOVE CO. LEASES LARGE WAREHOUSE

The Bensinger Furniture & Stove Co. last week leased the five-story and basement building, containing 37,500 square feet of floor space, at 316 Clark avenue, for use as a warehouse. The firm is a store outfitter, with office and salesroom at 1017 Market street, and warehouse at Eleventh and Walnut streets. Arthur S. Martin & Son represented the lessee, and Cornet & Zeibig the Liggett estate, owner of the property.

The Santa Fe Trails System has leased the store at 25 South Sixth street, in the Rector Hotel Building, for a bus ticket office and terminal. The bus lines comprising this system serve all cities reached by busses and have 25 coaches running out of St. Louis daily. W. C. Bruns is manager of this and the 1801 Washington avenue office. The lease was made for the oLttie Realty & Investment Co., Arthur S. Martin & Son representing all parties.

Kaercher, to John Zenger, for home and investment; modern brick bungalow, 3802 Bowen street, for Wm. E. Beckman and wife to Mrs. Emma Boekenkamp, as a home; 3507 Winnebago street, modern brick cottage, for Mae Stamm, to Mrs. Minnie Mutz, for a home; for Mrs. Emma Boekenkamp, modern brick bungalow, 5628 Rhodes avenue, to a client; 3012 Wyoming street, cottage for Henry Krenning, to Mae Stamm; also a lot on Oleatha avenue; southwest corner of Bowen street and Arendes drive, in Holly Hills, for Max Schmidt, to Edwin Ahrenhoerster, who will improve with a modern brick bungalow.

I Built This HOME For My Home—NOT for SPECULATION
Cost me $16,500
Now reduced to ... $12,500

IT HAS: 13-inch matt brick walls, best Standard sanitary plumbing, triple asphalt shingle roof, copper spouts, brick (wood) fireplace, warm-air conditioned heat, hardwwood floor; 2-car matt brick garage with over-head doors and gable roof. First floor—Living-room, dining-room, kitchen, bedroom, sunroom with In-a-Door-Bed, bricked-in sleeping porch, seven closets, metal weather strips, copper screens; one block to Pershing Grade School; on southwest corner of Bartmer and Ferguson, University City. Lot 80x135; terraced. Second Floor unfinished.

I've described this home, given location and price in order to have time of the earnest buyer. If you want and must have either a $25,000 home or a $5000 place, this home probably would not suit you.

Drive by and if the outside appeals to you, and I believe it will, come in and see the ideal arrangement.

I prefer cash, but will consider $5000 cash and deed of trust.

FARMERS in Baldwin County, Alabama are fortunately located; desirable climate, productive soils, good home conditions, abundant rainfall, several thousand carloads of early produce are shipped to Northern markets annually, growers receiving cash at shipping points. The early crops are followed by second crop on the same land. Baldwin County is a proved, good, prosperous general farming, livestock, poultry and trucking region; about 80 per cent of the farmers on lower Baldwin are from the North; good land still available at reasonable prices. IN CALIFORNIA SMALL FARM HOMES beat the depression. Such homes are the solution of many of our economic and social problems. Less working hours per week make it possible to derive a good part of the living for the average family from a small tract. California offers this opportunity, where many varieties of fruits and vegetables are grown the year round. The Small Farm Home is a proven success in many localities in California. The Santa Fe Railway has no land to sell, but offers free information service to help you get right location. Low fares to California. Write for illustrated Southern California folder and our farm paper, "The Earth," free for six months. Agricultural Development Department, Santa Fe Railway, 934 Railway Exchange, Chicago, Ill.

HERE'S A STRAIGHT-FROM-THE-SHOULDER STORY:

Naturally we do not expect you to run down here and buy our cars just because we have a lot of them—but, it does mean bigger selection for you—and here is what counts: Our stock is so big we just must clean them out and we're willing to sell them at no profit—even at a loss to us in order to get them out.

IN MEMORIAM

BRUEMMER, ALICE—Sad memory of my dear daughter Alice, who departed this life March 16, 1934.

But dear to our memory you always will be.
Sadly missed by FAMILY.

'DEPORTATION SPECIAL' STOPS IN ST. LOUIS

Picks Up Chinese Who Entered Country Illegally and Pulls Out for Galveston.

The "Deportation Special," a closely-guarded, heavily-barred railroad coach, pulled out of Union Station last night bearing 19 prisoners who are being sent back to their native lands because of illegal entry into this country.

The "pick-up train," as it is called by immigration agents, was attached to a Missouri-Kansas-Texas passenger train bound for Galveston, Tex. Just behind the barred coach for deportees was a special car taking 31 Mexican aliens who were charity wards back to Mexico.

Leong Den Jueng, cook at the St. Louis Inn, 704 Pine street, was the only deportee to get on the train here last night. In company with five other Chinese he will be taken to San Francisco and then sent to China.

Prisoners Chat.

Leong got on the train shortly after it arrived here at 6 o'clock. Besides the five other Chinese there was one East Indian, one Greek and 11 Mexicans. The prisoners sat about chatting pleasantly in the brightly-lit car until the train pulled out shortly before midnight.

At Galveston the Greek deportee will leave the train. The Mexicans will go as far as Laredo, Tex., and the East Indian and six Chinese will go to San Francisco.

The deportees and Mexican aliens who are leaving voluntarily are carefully watched by five armed guards, under direction of E. M. Klein, United States immigration officer. While the train was in Union Station last night the doors on both coaches remained locked and under careful guard.

The "Deportation Special" started in New York last Thursday. Prisoners were picked up in Chicago who had been brought there from Columbus, O., Detroit and Gary, Ind. The special cars came here from Chicago over the Chicago & Alton line.

The guards explained that the special train for deportees goes across the country about once every six weeks, first from the west coast to the east, taking persons who are being deported to European countries, and then in the opposite direction, usually taking Mexicans and Orientals.

On many occasions, the guards said, the deportees have illegally entered the country a second time and ride a second time on the "Deportation Special." Although watched "like a hawk," the guards said, the prisoners are "happy as a lark." Apparently the prisoners were unconcerned as they sat about in their shirt sleeves, talking and smoking.

The special car carrying the Mexicans is not sent across the country as frequently as the "Deportation Special." Included in the group of 31 Mexicans was one widower with eight small children.

Smuggled Into Country.

Leong entered the country illegally in 1926, having paid $300 to a member of the crew of a sugar ship in Havana to smuggle him aboard and land him secretly at New York.

When he was taken in custody a year ago, his lawyers obtained a writ of habeas corpus, alleging the immigration inspectors had arrested him without a warrant. The writ remained in effect until Friday when Federal Judge Davis set it aside after the Circuit Court of Appeals had established a precedent by setting aside a writ in a similar case.

Leong, who is 43 years old, has a wife and child in China.

Kansas Negro Convict's Sentence Never Commuted, but Technicality Saves Him.

By the Associated Press.

LANSING, Kan., March 16.—Condemned to the gallows 30 years ago, William Quinn, 51-year-old Negro, still toots a horn in the Kansas State Prison band. He'll never hang—due to a strange twist of fate and technicalities of the law.

Quinn was sentenced to death for a murder in Wyandotte County. The law required he be kept at hard labor one year before his execution. He toiled a year in the prison's deep coal mine. The execution date came and went and Quinn continued to dig coal. Edward W. Hock, then Governor, chose not to sign the death wartn—another requirement of the law.

The Legislature abolished capital punishment. Quinn, his sentence all but forgotten, conducted himself well through the years and won a place in the band. Last week, however, another Legislature re-established capital punishment and the question arose as to whether the Negro could be hanged under the new law. County Attorney William D. Reilly pointed out the 1935 measure could not be made retroactive.

Dale, 18-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Aubuchon, died yesterday at Children's Hospital, where he had been treated since Thursday for burns of the hands and face suffered at his home, 4573 St. Ferdinand avenue, when he leaned from his crib against a hot radiator.

An inquest will be held tomorrow.

BURGLARS HEAR POLICE BROADCAST AND FLEE

Outdistance Two Squad Cars Under Fire After Getting Alarm on Own Radio.

Burglars, who heard a police broadcast early yesterday saying that they were in the drug store of Rudolph Walther at 4101 Shenandoah avenue, fled from the store and escaped from two squads of police, the second police car taking up the chase in another part of the city after the first had lost the trail.

George Gerke, who lives across the street from the drug store, was awakened at 4:25 a. m. by a noise, and saw two men forcing the door. He heard a police broadcast from a radio in the automobile which the burglars had parked nearby.

A moment after Gerke had telephoned to police a radio message directed Detectives Austin Borlinghouse and Robert Goldsmith to go to the store. They picked up Patrolman Chauncey Sterling, walking his beat a few blocks away, and started for the store.

On Shaw boulevard at Alfred avenue the police car passed that of the burglars, going in the opposite direction, and swung around to pursue them. Driving at a speed of 60 miles an hour, the officers fired four shots at the fugitives before they lost the trail in the vicinity of Clayton avenue and Sarah street.

At Police Headquarters Detective Sergt. John Fischer heard a broadcast description of the robbers and thought he knew them as men whom he had seen frequently near Twenty-third street and Cass avenue. With a squad of policemen he drove toward that neighborhood and at Twenty-third and O'Fallon sighted the car of the burglars.

Fischer and his men got close enough to fire several shots and get the license number of the automobile, but were outdistanced. During the first chase the license number had been obscured by a rag which later blew away.

The druggist, Walther, reported the burglars had taken cigarettes valued at about $12.

INQUIRIES ORDERED ON SHIP DISASTERS AND COTTON PRICES

Senate Will Try to Learn Why Cotton Fell More Than $9 a Bale on March 11.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The Senate today indulged its hobby by ordering two new investigations—an inquiry into the Morro Castle and Mohawk disasters and into the recent drop in cotton prices.

It voted $15,000 to inquire into the ship disasters that cost more than 100 lives and then made $10,000 available for the attempt to learn why cotton fell more than $9 a bale on March 11.

The funds for the inquiries were reduced in each instance. For the ship inquiry, $50,000 had been asked and for the cotton study, $25,000.

Eager to get under way, Chairman Copeland (Dem.), New York, of the Commerce Committee named himself, Fletcher of Florida and Shepherd of Texas, Democrats, and Johnson of California and White of Maine, Republicans, to take over the ship disaster investigation beginning Monday.

"We will hold executive sessions first," Copeland said, "going into the matter already developed by formal investigations by the New York District Attorney and the Marine Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Commerce, and then open hearings will be held to fill in the gaps."

Flames Consume 17,000 Cases and 900 Barrels of Whisky at Penn-Maryland Co.

PEORIA, March 16.—A spectacular fire which leveled the rectifying plant of the Penn-Maryland Co. today caused damage estimated by firemen and officers of the liquor company at more than $500,000.

Seventeen thousand cases and 900 barrels of whisky were consumed by the flames. Flames from the exploding barrels flared from 40 to 50 feet into the air. Company officers said thousands of dollars in Federal revenue and State tax stamps were destroyed.

The plant, which employed 225 workers, was one of the two maintained here by the Penn-Maryland Co., an Eastern concern in which Gene Tunney, former heavyweight boxing champion, is said to be a major stockholder. Taxes alone represented a loss of $160,000. A tax of $2 per gallon had been paid on the 95,000 gallons of liquor destroyed when it was removed from the nearby distillery to the rectifying plant.

THREE KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

HAYTI, Mo., March 16.—Three persons were killed and two others injured early today when their automobile crashed into the side of a bridge on Highway 61 near here. The dead: Albert Sorrell, 25 years old, of Hayti; R. L. Roberts, 55, of Armoral, Ark.; R. L. Roberts, 10, grandson of Roberts.

Hershel Pillow of Memphis, Tenn., and Miss Grace Masters, of New Madrid, were not seriously hurt. Pillow, the driver, stated at a Coroner's inquest, he was blinded by lights of an automobile and crashed into the side of the bridge.

WALKUP IS IMPRESSIVE; CLIFT GETS FOUR HITS

By John E. Wray

Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 16.—Turning on the heat in the ninth inning, Rogers Hornsby's Browns this afternoon beat the Baltimore Orioles of the International League, 4 to 3, winning their third spring training victory in four starts. But there wasn't much glory in the achievement, or much satisfaction to Hornsby, who saw his big leaguers hard pressed to hit three minor league pitchers, only one of whom was throwing a curve ball.

And but for wildness on the part of two pitchers, the Browns might have gone down in defeat.

Harland Clift was the hero of the game. He scored its first run and drove in the deciding count, making four singles during the afternoon and striking out in his only other time at bat.

Clift started the Browns on the road to victory in the first with a single. Thanks to Pitcher Lohrman's wildness in passing the next two batters, he was on third base when Bell hit into a double play. Clift scored, however.

Larry Bettencourt's triple in the second inning and an infield out gave the Browns their second tally and the game seemed on ice, as Manager Guy Sturdy's 1935 Orioles seem destined to repeat their feat of last year by finishing last in their league.

But in the third inning the situa-

BRAVES DEFEAT YANKEES AFTER RUTH RETIRES

By the Associated Press.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 16.—The biggest crowd of baseball fans that has ever turned out for an exhibition game in the celebrated "Grapefruit League," numbering 4726 paid admissions, packed Waterfront Park today to witness another of Babe Ruth's 1935 debuts—his first appearance of the spring season against his old club, the New York Yankees.

The Boston Braves pulled out the game in the ninth inning, 3 to 2, on Frank Hogan's double into the bleachers and Buck Jordan's wallop over Ben Chapman's head but Ruth was in the stands by that time, smoking a big curve-stem pipe and autographing baseballs. The Babe played six innings in his regular position, right field, for the first time in three exhibition games, but he was conspicuously outplayed by the young outfielder who has taken his old job with the Yankees, 23-year-old George Selkirk.

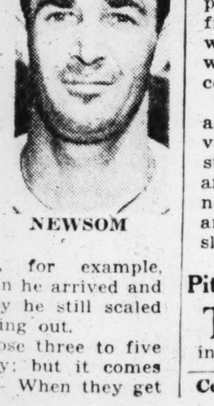
Reducing the Hard Way.

"I'M nearly down to weight," said Buck Newsom with a satisfied sigh after ten days of hard work in a hot sun had brought his poundage down from 212 to nearly 200.

But not all the Brownie athletes can say as much. The fact is that taking off excess weight the hard way, that is, by work in a hot sun swathed in rubber shirts, is most exasperating.



NEWSOM

Day by day, the weights in the club house, posted before and after practice each day, have shown surprisingly little change. Many of the men are still about where they began. Andrews, for example, weighed 215 when he arrived and on last Thursday he still scaled 214 before working out.

The athletes lose three to five pounds each day; but it comes back over night. When they get on the scales next morning they can hardly believe their eyes—they have the agony to do all over again.

Not all—the flesh after two or three weeks' training is different. It becomes solid. The water has been squeezed out. Workouts take fewer and fewer pounds away day by day, even from the big fellows, some of whom are still 10 pounds overweight and are inclined to become discouraged.

The reduction will be gradual and by mid-April most of the veterans with a tendency to overstuffed torsos will be shapely and fit. The fact is there are no really fat men on the squad and that's what makes reduction slow.

KANSAS CITY FIVE WINS MISSOURI BASKET TOURNEY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 16.—A coin flipped weeks ago tonight brought the Northeast Vikings of Kansas City their fourth Missouri High School Basketball championship. That, and a little more arduous work.

Tied with their metropolitan rivals, the Paseo Pirates, the toss decided their entrance into the State tourney. In the finals tonight they overcame a long lead to defeat Hickman High of Columbia, 23—21, after a straight march through the earlier rounds.

The Warrensburg Tigers took third place by swamping a scrappy quintet from diminutive Fruitland, tinest of the 16 entrants in a consolation game preceding the titular conflict.

NEW ORLEANS, March 16.—The old jinx—illness—struck the camp of the Cleveland Indians with a vengeance here today when two members of the team were operated on for appendicitis.

The two victims were Bill Knickerbocker, star shortstop and Al Milnar, rookie pitcher, formerly of the New Orleans Pelicans of the Southern Association.

Knickerbocker's operation was an emergency one.

BEAUMONT WINS STATE SWIMMING CHAMPIONSHIP

Beaumont nosed Cleveland out by five points, 31 to 26, to win the first Missouri State High School swimming meet last night at Wilson Pool, Washington University. Roosevelt was third with 22 points.

Although Dave Bartosch of Cleveland won two firsts, the 100 and the 220 yards free style events, the 10 points only helped the Carondelet squad into second place.

The other points were Central 10, Soldan eight, McKinley five, Kansas City Westport three and Christian Brothers one.

In a dual meet between Washington University and Butler, held at the same time the high school event was being carried on, the Bears defeated the team from Indiana, 66 to 18.

Since this is the first time that a State high school swimming meet has been held, the times recorded will be counted as records.

Hornbostel's Challenge Forces Cunningham to World Record

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 16.—Glenn Cunningham, the world's greatest mile machine, came down to the realm of middle-distance runners in Madison Square Garden tonight and with an amazing exhibition of unremitting speed shattered the world indoor record for 1000 yards.

A crowd of 13,000 at the Knights of Columbus Games roared an endless accompaniment as Cunningham thundered through the distance in 2 minutes 10.1 seconds, slicing 1.9 seconds off the indoor mark of 2:12 made by Harold Cutbill, the Flying Parson, at Buffalo, in 1922. Cunningham staved off a magnificent challenge by Chuck Hornbostel, University of Indiana graduate to win by two yards. In their terrific battle they left Glenn Dawson of Tulsa, Ok., the only man who has beaten both of them, 30 yards behind in third place.

In the knowledge that he must build up a safe lead to offset the tall Hoosier's closing burst of power, Cunningham took the lead on the first of the six and a quarter laps and built it up to 10 yards. Hornbostel quickly moved into second place, past Dawson, Elton Brown of Pittsburgh, Kan., and John Thompson of Manhattan College.

Swiftly, he set out in pursuit. The lead that was 10 yards at the end of the third lap was cut to but five at the end of the fourth. By the end of the fifth, Hornbostel was at Cunningham's heels.

Swinging wide, Hornbostel made his challenge and Cunningham met it. For a full circuit of the I C 4 A pine track, being used for the first time at an invitation meet Hornbostel sprinted at Cunningham's right shoulder. The Iowa student swung wide at the turns and thwarted his taller rival there. On the backstretch he sprinted with all he had. Finally, entering the last straightaway it became evident that Hornbostel didn't have the tremendous lift necessary to the task.

He wilted. Cunningham pulled away in the last 30 yards, a winner over Hornbostel for the second time in a world record race in New York. Hornbostel was a badly beaten foe when they met in the Casey mile a year ago that produced the world record of 4:08.4.

This was Cunningham's third record performance in New York's Garden. His time for the thousand was the best ever made in this country, surpassing the outdoor record of 2:12.2 by Larry Brown, of Penn, and Cunningham's 2:11.1, set outdoors at Norman, Ok., in 1934, but not officially approved. It missed by a tenth of a second of matching the world outdoor record of 2:10, made by Luigi Beccali, of Italy.

For Hornbostel, who was clocked in 2:10.3, it was the second time he had broken a world record only to be beaten while doing it. He forced Ben Eastman, the bespectacled Stanford graduate, to 1:49.8 for a half mile at Princton, N. J., last June and was under the old figures himself.

One hour after his sensational 1000-yard victory, Cunningham came back for the Columbian mile and rated himself along behind the pace of Gene Venzke, University of Pennsylvania junior, for ten laps to take him over on the final lap of a 4:14.8 race. Venzke, beaten by three yards, was timed in 4:15.2. Harry Williamson, of the University of North Carolina was third by 30 yards.

With a blinding burst of speed in the last 15 yards Ralph Metcalfe avenged the defeat he suffered in the National indoor championships when he won the 60-dash final from the three other speedy Negro finalists.

After jumping the gun twice, Metcalfe got away unusually fast but dropped back as Johnson, the national indoor titleholder, flashed to the front. Apparently beaten, the Marquette University sprinter dug in and hit the tape with only inches to spare over Peacock in 6.4 seconds. Johnson faltered just enough in the final strides to let Peacock and Owens nip him at the end, winding up fourth.

ALLOWS NO HITS AND NO RUNS IN THREE INNINGS; GENE MOORE POLES HOMER

By J. Roy Stockton

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 16.—Frankie Frisch raked his Cardinals over the coals this afternoon for the blunders they made against the Giants in the first game of the Grape Fruit league series and the Redbirds responded by playing baseball more worthy of a team wearing world championship emblems. Behind the excellent pitching of Paul Dean, Ray Harrell and Dick Ward, Frisch's men captured the second game of the series, 6 to 2.

Frisch had criticised his men for careless base running, throwing to the wrong base and doing other careless things. There was little cause for managerial complaint today. A first inning attack at the expense of Frank Gabler, Bill Terry's California recruit, netted two runs and the champions held the upper hand throughout the afternoon.

No Hits, No Runs Off Paul Dean.

Paul Dean's pitching stood out as a pleasing feature of the contest. The young man worked the first three innings and Bartell, who drew a pass in the first frame, was the only Giant to reach base during Paul's stay on the mound. The younger Dean was using his curve sparingly and the enemy could do nothing with his fast ball, which seems to be better than ever. The Giants hit nine fly balls while Paul was doing the chucking.

The two New York runs were registered against Harrell. But his pitching was not at all bad. After he had fanned Pinch Hitter Melvin Ott to start the sixth inning, Hughie Critz singled off Whitehead's glove and Bartell's line drive caromed off Ripper Collins' glove for a single. Clean singles by Leiber and Weintraub followed to give the Giants their tallies.

Ward Yields Only One Hit.

Ward, working the final three frames, issued two passes, but yielded only one hit, a single by Richards in the ninth.

Pepper Martin drew a pass to start the first inning and Rothrock dropped a single just inside the left foul line. Frisch popped out, but Medwick singled to right for his first safety of the season, scoring Martin and sending Rothrock to third. Rothrock then scored while Gabler was throwing out Collins and taking a scowl of disapproval from Bill Terry for ignoring the play at the plate.

Collins' double and a single by Virgil Davis, which almost knocked Clydell Castleman off the mound, gave the Cardinals their third run in the fourth inning. Then, after the Giants had cut the lead to a single run in the sixth, the Redbirds jumped on Larry Benton for three runs to make their advantage a commanding one.

Gene Moore Hits Homer.

Benton is in camp on trial and had shown sufficient stuff to interest Terry in adding him to the New York roster. However, after he had retired DeLancey, the first batter he faced, Gene Moore found a pitch that he liked and whacked it to deep center for a home run inside the park. There was a play at the plate, but Gene had heard Frisch say he wanted aggressive base runners, so Gene slid for the base with his weight and Richards and the ball went in different directions.

Durocher then beat out a grounder to short, took second on Mark Koenig's wild throw and scored when the great Dizzy Dean batted for Harrell and lined a single to left on Benton's first offering. O'Farrell ran for Dizzy, took second on Pepper Martin's single, third on Cuccinello's fumble of Koenig's throw of Whitehead's grounder and scored when Koenig fumbled Medwick's grounder.

RED 'N' BIRD NOTES

DIZZY DEAN, Nub Kleinke and Bill Hallahan will be the Cardinal pitchers tomorrow in the third game of the series. Fitzsimmons, Chagnon and Al. Smith are due for the Giants.

The second contest attracted 2000 customers.

Charley Gelbert got his first hit of the spring, a single off Benton in the ninth inning. Both teams had recruits in the lineups during late innings. Medwick, Collins and Pepper Martin were the only Redbirds to go all the way.

The Giant reserves are not impressive, but the Cards think Terry made a wise move in obtaining Mark Koenig, an experienced infielder.

Gene Moore had the only stolen base of the game. He is trying hard to stay with the Redbirds this time.

"So He Refused the $50,000," Did Fred Perry, the Amateur

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, March 16.—Now the story can be told.

Keeping his amateur tennis standing and helping England in the defense of the Davis Cup this year cost Fred Perry a sum conservatively estimated at $50,000 on a tennis picture alone, it was learned today.

The decision of the International Tennis Federation refusing to allow tennis players to make motion pictures of their "art" for personal gain means that the handsome king of the courts will have to surrender to charity his "end" of the earnings of a tennis picture he made in England last year.

Perry admitted this today at his Hollywood Hotel, adding that he was sailing back to England with his amateur standing unsullied as soon as he plays an exhibition match against Frank Shields at the Olympic Auditorium a week from tonight.

Regarding the possibility of accepting any breath-taking offers from Tilden Tours, Inc., next year, Perry is saying nothing at present.

Although he would not admit it, there is a chance that Perry may follow in the footsteps of Frank Shields and become a cinema figure on the strength of his acting alone, if a screen test made at M-G-M impresses the right officials. He was out at the studio yesterday making pictures.

STELLA WALSH ENTERS TRACK MEET AT THE ARENA FRIDAY

ACE TO COMPETE IN THREE EVENTS; SYB WOLF ALSO A CONTESTANT

Stella Walsh of Cleveland, one of the world's outstanding woman track athletes and holder of many of the women's world's track records, will compete here in the National A. A. U. women's indoor track and field meet to be held at the Arena next Friday night, under the sponsorship of the Olympia A. C. She will represent Poland, and will run in the 50 and 200-meter sprints, and take part in the basketball throw.

Miss Walsh's entry was received yesterday, along with those of two members of the German-American Athletic Club of New York. They were Fay Epstein, entered in the 50-meter dash and the broad jump, and Sybil Tobachnikoff, who will be in the 50-meter hurdle race and the high jump.

Miss Walsh holds world's records in the following races: 60 meters, 7.3 seconds; 80 meters, 9.8 seconds; 100 meters, 11.8 seconds; and 200 meters, 24.1 seconds. The last mark was made in Chicago in 1932, while the others were made in Europe.

Miss Walsh was a member of the Polish track team in the 1932 Olympics at Los Angeles.

She was suspended recently for an infraction of the A. A. U. rules, but her suspension was lifted last Thursday after a 30-day period.

Miss Tobachnikoff, better known as Syz Koff, was voted the outstanding woman athlete last year at the Maccabees' track meet.

A number of girls from the St. Louis district are also training for the event, including Catherine Maguire of Pacific, Mo., who is entered in the high jump; Gertrude Webb in the 200-meter dash and who will be a member of the St. Louis relay quartet; and Harriet Bland, Mae Brady, the Huning twins, Hilda and Helen, Theresa Wiesler and Ruth Wiley.

The Vi-Tone Laurel A. C. of Toronto is sending in a team of four runners.

In addition to the women's national championships, there will be five special events for high schools. They will be the 60-yard dash, 880-yard and one mile runs, the 60-yard low hurdles, and the relay for the Cardinal trophy.

N. Y. Americans Lose Cup Game; Rangers Advance

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEWARK, N. J., March 16.—The youthful Scots-Americans of Kearny, N. J., captured the first leg of their home-and-home Eastern semi-final series of the National Challenge Cup competition by taking the veteran New York Americans into camp by 2 goals to 0 at Clark's Field, East Newark, N. J., before 2500 spectators. The teams meet again tomorrow, and if New York wins, total goals for the series will determine the winner.

Superiority of the cup fighting qualities of the New Yorkers stood out in the early stages of the first period, but the Scots, after 36 minutes, took the lead when Lennon scored from the penalty spot on a foul awarded after Wyles handled in the forbidden 18-yard area.

During the second half, the Kearny eleven swarmed all over the Gotham defense and only the superb goal tending of Chesney prevented a one-sided score, although Clark put the Scots' two goals in front after 15 minutes with a beautiful shot on a pass from Drysdale.

The summary:

SCOTS AMERICANS (2).	POS.	NEW YORK AMERICANS (0).
Davis	Goal	Chesney
Patterson	R. B.	Grosz
Zibby	L. B.	Foran

Pawtucket Rangers Again Win.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., March 16.—Pawtucket Rangers defeated the Pawtucket Celtics here today, 2 to 1 in a national soccer cup match, making the score for the two games 6 to 3 in favor of the Rangers.

In the first half, Myrtle scored the first goal of the game for the Rangers and 10 minutes before the interval Scott scored for Celtics to make the half time score one each. Play in the second half was in favor of the Celtics for the first 20 minutes and several times they came close to scoring, but the Rangers strong defense managed to hold them out. With only five minutes playing time, Jimmie Smith scored for the Rangers to give them a two to one victory.

Browns Rally in Ninth to Beat Baltimore, 4-3; Walkup Impressive

tion changed. With one down, Larry Bettencourt found the sun in his eyes and dropped Sweeney's easy fly. That appeared to affect Pitcher Paul Andrews and the Orioles scored three runs, when three successive singles followed. Andy steadied down in the fourth and fifth, however, and that was the last of Baltimore offense.

The Browns tied the score in the fifth with Grabowski pitching. Melillo started with a single and Grube's sacrifice and Clift's safe hit netted the run that tied the count.

From that time, both sides were impotent at bat. Jimmy Walkup, who succeeded Andrews on the mound, pitched well, only one real hit being registered off his overhand shoots, and one scratch hit.

In the seventh, Moore started pitching for Baltimore, and he was the only Oriole to throw a curve. He also threw it with great abandon, issuing three passes. However, the Browns were amateurish at bat until the ninth inning final came around.

Moore then walked both Melillo and Garms (batting for Grube) and Walkup sacrificed them along nicely. Clift hit a teaser just out of every infielder's reach, his fourth safety of the day, and Melillo crossed the plate with the winning tally.

Browns' Hurlers Look Good.

The most encouraging feature of the game was the fine showing of Walkup and Andrews. Except for Andy's one bad moment, he was in complete control of the game.

The Browns' batting eyes were again obscured, as the Baltimore boys outhit the Browns 9 to 7. The Orioles are managed by a former Brownie, Guy Sturdy, who is also utility man for the club. Its general manager is John Ogden, a former pitcher for the Browns. The club is controlled by the widow of the late Jack Dunn, who formerly operated it, winning many pennants and selling many stars to the major leagues for fabulous prices. His best seller was Lefty Grove, who brought him $106,000 from Connie Mack's treasury.

The same teams will meet again today, with Weiland and Knott the probable pitchers for the Browns.

RACQUET CLUB IS VICTOR OVER KANSAS CITY

For the first time in his career, Jack Gordon, present Western champion, was able to defeat Hovey Kinsman of Kansas City, former Western champion. Gordon's victory enabled the Racquet Club's squash racquets team to win an intercity match from Kansas City, 3 to 2, yesterday afternoon at the Racquet Club.

Playing before a large crowd, Gordon and Kinsman put on a good exhibition. The Racquet Club honored the Kansas City team by admitting families of the members, a thing which is done only rarely. Gordon was only hard pressed in one game, the first, when Kinsman finally succumbed, 15 to 12. Gordon won the next two, 15-11 and 15-8.

The longest match of the day was that which John Barrett won from Newell Augur and which required four games. The final score was 15-11, 18-14, 9-15 and 15-5.

After the match the Kansas City players were the guests of the Racquet Club at a formal dinner dance.

The results of the squash matches:

Four Best Pilots In Match Race Of Midget Autos

The West's four leading midget car drivers—two from the coast, one from Chicago and the fourth from Milwaukee—will clash in the feature event of the next program of midget racing scheduled for the Arena, Thursday night, according to word received yesterday from Earl Reflow, who is in Chicago.

Reflow had decided to arrange another Willman-Lewis match for this week's card, but complications arose.

Willman, who had been beaten by Lewis by the margin of less than a foot after a daring piece of last-turn strategy, wanted a return race with Lewis. Ronney Householder, who had battled with Willman on three occasions late in the program and lost out each time by a bit of "hard luck," demanded a shot at Willman in the feature race.

Reflow suggested a three-car race. Householder then demanded that his racing partner, Jimmy Snyder, the Chicago daredevil, be included. And thus the four big favorites of the Arena crowd will be lined up for this race.

Eagles Play Their Final Game Tuesday in Toronto, Flyers on Display Tonight

By W. J. McGoogan.

Clare Brunton, business manager of the St. Louis Eagles of the National Hockey League, tomorrow will lead the members of the team remaining after early departures, to Toronto, where the Eagles are scheduled to play the last game of their season Tuesday night.

Fido Purpur and Frank Jerwa, forwards, have already left the team for their home, Purpur living in Grand Forks, N. D., and Jerwa in Boston. They were excused from playing in the last game.

Irving Frew has gone to Cleveland, from where he will rejoin the team in Toronto in time to play, while Glen Brydson and Vernon Ayers have already gone to Toronto, where they live.

The outcome of the last contest will mean little to the Eagles and nothing to Toronto, as the Eagles can't get out of the cellar and Toronto will merely use the game to keep on edge for the playoffs for the National League championship, in which they will meet the Boston Bruins.

Three former members of this year's Eagles will be in that battle—Max Kaminsky and Perry Shannon playing with Boston and Frank Finnigan with Toronto.

The Eagles Fly Low.

The showing of the St. Louis team this season was, of course, a disappointament to fans and owners of the club alike. The club has been able to win but 11 games and never made much playoff noise all through the schedule. And to make matters worse, they dropped 12 of their first 14 games, which just about sealed the financial fate of the club for the season.

All sorts of reports are going about as to the loss suffered by the Eagles and rumors are being bandied about as to whether there will be a major-league club here next season.

Officials of the team have kept close mouths about their loss, but it has been pretty closely estimated at from $15,000 to $20,000. More than 100,000 persons attended the 24 games, and the gross receipts were said to aggregate about $75,000 with sales of players bringing in $45,000 more for a total income of $120,000, as against an expense of from $135,000 to $140,000.

As the first three contests grossed $21,000, it may easily be seen what the losing streak at the start of the season meant to the club's treasury, as only a little more than $50,000 was taken in for the last 19 games.

That the Ottawa group which controlled the team through the season will withdraw before the 1935-36 schedule opens is believed almost certain and it has been reported that a St. Louis syndicate will acquire control. At the same time it has been stated the team will be sold elsewhere. Nothing has been said by authoritative sources except by Brunton, who has stated that his report will emphatically recommend that the team be left in St. Louis.

"There is no question in my mind as to the interest in major league hockey in this city," Brunton remarked. "The turnouts for the first three games proved that. Naturally the failure of several of the players upon whom we depended hurt us immeasurably. But I feel that a contending team here would be successful."

It is not likely that anything definite will be decided as to the future for several weeks, but it is known that the interested St. Louis group is already casting about for the players needed to strengthen the team for the next season in the event the Eagles remain.

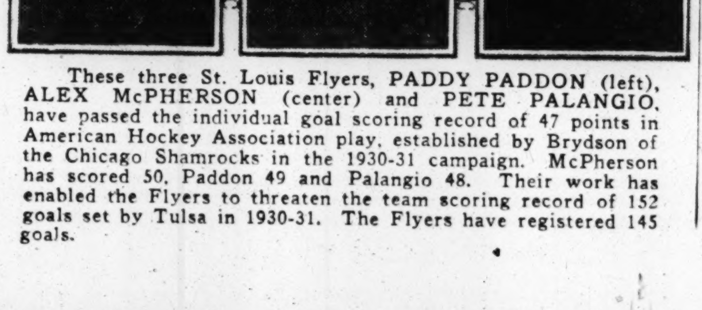
Meanwhile the St. Louis Flyers have two more games on their regular American Association schedule before the playoffs. They meet the Kansas City Greyhounds at the Winter Garden tonight and finish the regular season against Tulsa tomorrow night.

Kansas City and Tulsa then will engage in a home and home series of two games for the right to play the Flyers for the championship. The two games of the title series to be played here will be next Sunday night, March 24, and Tuesday, March 26.

Following the determination of the American Association title, the winner will engage the St. Paul team in a five-game series for the inter-league championship as the St. Paul club has easily won the Central League flag.

The two games at the Winter Garden the next two nights mean little except that the Flyers need eight goals for a new team scoring record in the association.

They Seek Scoring Record



These three St. Louis Flyers, PADDY PADDON (left), ALEX McPHERSON (center) and PETE PALANGIO, have passed the individual goal scoring record of 47 points in American Hockey Association play, established by Brydson of the Chicago Shamrocks in the 1930-31 campaign. McPherson has scored 50, Paddon 49 and Palangio 48. Their work has enabled the Flyers to threaten the team scoring record of 152 goals set by Tulsa in 1930-31. The Flyers have registered 145 goals.

TRACY AND EGAN TO AID MARRES IN TODAY'S GAME

With Halfbacks Ralph Tracy and Ray Egan and Forward Pat Reidy lending aid, the Marre club will oppose the Centrals in a soccer match at Sportsman's Park this afternoon. The three players named were borrowed by the Marres from the Hellrung club as replacements for Jim Cronin, Al Benoist and Jim Kenny. The latter is on the suspended list as a result of his ejection from the recent national cup game at Pittsburgh.

Today's program will open with a game between the Meyer club and the American Zincs, a team of Spanish players.

It is probable that the Centrals will try out several lineup changes including the introduction of Ollie Bohlman at a halfback position. The Centrals are scheduled to play a Western final cup match next Sunday, opposing the winner of today's match at Pittsburgh between Curry and the Chicago Wieboldts.

Alpen Braus Can Clinch Muny Soccer Championship Today

By Dent McSkimming.

Yesterday's rain served only to dampen the playing field at Fairground Park and it appeared likely that today's Municipal Soccer League final between Irish Village and the champion Alpen Braus would be played on a smooth, fast ground.

The Alpan Braus are at their best on a fast field, and in the first game of the elimination series, played on heavy ground, they had extreme difficulty winning from the Balsanos. More important, perhaps, than the condition of the field, is the question of the condition of John Macken, center halfback, who was injured two weeks ago and forced to quit the game. He has had two full weeks of rest, but the injured ankle has not responded to treatment sufficiently to warrant using him today. Another star of the champions' defense, Jim Brennan, fullback, is now employed in Memphis and will not be in the lineup, so that the Braus have a few things to worry about. They brought Brennan back from Memphis for one game and if they are defeated today, necessitating a third and final game, he may return next week.

The Holy Rosary and Spanish Caballeros, junior champions of Fairground and Carondelet Parks, will meet in the second game of the Junior championship final, as a preliminary to the Irish Village-Alpen Brau game. They played a 1-1 tie two weeks ago. The same clubs met in the finals a year ago, but in each case the personnel of the team is entirely changed, juniors of last season having graduated to the senior ranks.

In the first game of the series, won by the Alpen Braus, 2 to 1, the Villagers were desperately pressed at times, but their defense held up better than many observers expected. Eddie Begley, center halfback, who is scheduled to join the Central club when his Muny League engagement is terminated, was not only the star of his own team, but probably the best player on the field. The Alpen Braus appeared to have considerably the better teamwork, but the Village team made up for what it lacked in finesse with vigorous, fast football.

SHAW GIRLS GET ONE FIELD GOAL AND LOSE FINAL

By Reno Hahn.

Held to a lone field goal by Mary Dueker, the Shaw-Stephens team was effectively stopped by the Tulsa Stenos, 13 to 7, in the final round of the invitational girls' basketball played under men's rules at the Washington University Field House last night.

Although the Oklahomans got two tough breaks, one when Lillian Justice, center, played in spite of a dislocated shoulder and another when Francis "Sonny" Dunlap was knocked unconscious, the Stenos plodded to victory.

Miss Dunlap was hurt in the second quarter. She tried to dribble past Helen Moon and as she did so, Miss Moon struck at the ball, missed it and hit Miss Dunlap. This took place shortly after the second quarter had started and Miss Dunlap was out of the lineup until the last two minutes of play.

Going into the last quarter on the short end of a 10 to 5 score, Mary Dueker renewed the Shaw-Stephens' hope with a pair of free throws. Then Alberta Williams put Tulsa ahead, 11 to 7 on a free throw, after which Miss Dunlap entered the contest again to drop in a free throw for the last score of the contest.

The all tournament teams picked were:

FIRST TEAM.
Madge Sennett, Baby Ruths	Field
Evelyn Krubaeck, Frains	Field
Alberta Williams, Tulsa	Center
Mary Rudis, Shaws	Guard
Francis Dunlap, Tulsa	Guard
SECOND TEAM.
Marge Fischlin, Ruths	Field
M. Dueker, Shaws	Field
Violet Krubaeck, Frains	Center
Lillian Justice, Tulsa	Guard
Gladys Lommler, Ruths	Guard

The Baby Ruths of Chicago won the third place consolation game by defeating the Platt Coeds of Chicago, 48 to 20.

Gladys Lommler of the Ruths won the free throw contest with 28 out of 35 throws.

Flachmann of St. Louis Lowers Big Ten Record

By the Associated Press.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., March 16—Michigan won its fifth consecutive Western Conference swimming championship tonight with a total of 59 points in a meet that saw every standing Big Ten record, with one exception, shattered.

Illinois finished second with 25 points and Iowa trailed closely with 24. Other team scores: Ohio State 20, Northwestern 14; Chicago 9, Wisconsin 7; Indiana 4, Minnesota 2.

The title-winning Wolverines placed four individual championships and one relay winner. Chuck Flachmann won two first places for Illinois in eclipsing the Big Ten records in the 50 and 100 yard dashes, and Wes Busby of Iowa annexed first place in the fancy diving to account for the other first places.

BRAVES BEAT YANKS AFTER RUTH RETIRES

his third and last time at bat while Selkirk boomed out two safe blows, including a triple over Ruth's head in the first inning. The Yankee youngster, covering twice as much territory as the Babe, made four clever catches while Ruth missed his one attempt to make a play and turned a complete somersault in the process. The Bam came rumbling forward on a hard drive by Joe Glenn in the fifth. He tumbled headlong as he tried to make a shoestring catch, turned completely over and came up empty-handed while the ball rolled to the fence for a triple.

This heroic but futile defensive gesture by the Babe nearly cost the Braves the ball game. Frankie Crosetti, who had walked, scored on Glenn's hit, and the latter tallied the Yankee's other run on an infield out.

After being held to two hits in six innings by Johnny Broaca and Cliff Melton, tall, gangling southpaw rookie, the Braves took advantage of Melton's wildness to tie the score in the seventh. After singles by Hal Lee and Pinky Whitney, Melton picked up Mallon's sacrifice bunt and threw the ball into the bleachers off left field for a two-base error. This produced one run, and Melton passed Jordan with the bases full to give the Braves another.

A NEW DAY IS DAWNING AT MIZZOU; 118 MEN OUT FOR FOOTBALL WORK

Spring Harbingers of Productive Autumn

Coach Don Faurot's Coming Has Brought New Spirit to School Campus at Columbia

By James M. Gould.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 16.—Don Faurot's Missouri University "football factory" has begun production. Designed to once more make popular the "Tiger Brand" of gridiron goods and assured of a ready market from thousands of loyal alumni, Head Coach Faurot as production manager has installed Assistants Simpson, Stankowski and Edwards in charge of the various departments and these department heads now can report considerable progress.

Much of the material being used in production is raw, most of it green, indeed, but there is a leaven of tried and true stuff which makes for hope for the finished product. "Materials" are big, many of them fast and all are in deadly earnest. It is of such that football teams are made.

Coach Faurot's spring call evoked instant response. There was a week of work indoors. In recent years, many candidates fell out or were thrown out after the first week. This spring, the first indoor roll call showed 118 names. With work outdoors begun, not once have there been fewer than 105 men in action. "In action" is the proper descriptive phrase. There are no sightseers in football togs at Missouri any more.

A New Spirit in the Air.

What impresses the observer is the "change in the air" at Columbia. For three years, outsiders watching the Tigers prepare for their weekly slaughter were affected by the apparent hopelessness of the players. Oh, that doesn't mean they didn't fight during games. They did. But, nevertheless, there was an air of "Well, let's get it over," which was instantly sensed by the interested onlooker. That's gone—definitely departed. Chances are the Tigers, with a tough schedule, will take some beatings again this year. But, they won't take it or them lying down and, immediately after one game, they'll start getting ready for the next, and they won't be hopeless about it, either. Such is the effect of "Faurotism" as applied to the invalid sport at Missouri.

There's one determination of the young head coach which is worthy of more than passing comment. He was asked how many of the 118 would be left on the squad after spring practice.

Missouri Will Stick to Plans For Development

NO matter what measure of success they have this coming fall, coaches at Missouri will stick to their program of developing rather than trying to obtain seasoned players. They maintain that while it may be a long program, it is that best suited to the university's traditions and resources. A "Missouri-developed" football team is their goal.

Without official announcement, it is believed that the present coaching staff will do the developing.

Coach Won't Cut Any Players From Squad; Believes It Shakes Confidence of Players

"Why, 118," he answered, and seemed surprised at the question. "I'm not cutting anybody off this squad. I don't believe in that. It hurts the feelings and confidence of the youngster in the first place.

"Then," he added, "how are you going to tell that a chap who doesn't look good his first time out hasn't in him the making of a good football player? How many fine players have you known that have developed late? Gosh, come to think of it, I was a junor before I made the Missouri team myself! We coaches are not dealing with ready-made varsity teams here. We've got to develop them from men who voluntarily choose the university as their school. We believe this developing is in the true spirit of college athletics and that's the plan we are going to follow. If we attain success through the plan, that'll be fine. If we don't, we'll continue to believe that we were following the right path. No, sir, there won't be a single man cut off the Missouri U. football squad as long as I am in charge."

Taking a look at Faurot's material for 1935, we find that he has 16 lettermen out, with two more veterans due out in the fall. These lettermen are Barney Finkel and Clark Miller, guards; Saldofsky, Hader, Dick Miller and Ferguson, tackles; Bourne, Mason, Powell and Grenda, ends; Coombs, Londe, Houston, Beasley, Angello and Castle, backs. Two lettermen who have been excused from spring work because of extra studies are Biggs and Lochiner, regulars in 1934. Both are backs.

It is noticeable that Coach Faurot hasn't a "lettered" center to his name, but he has many splendid candidates. Three of the leading ones are from the St. Louis district—Houston Betty of Kirkwood, who captained the Tiger freshman last fall; Bill Harsh, also of Kirkwood, and Julius Jouret, formerly a Central High lineman.

Other prominent "new men" are Frank Heidel, a 215-pound tackle from Cleveland High, and Victor Gray, a tackle from Montgomery City who, weighing 247, is the biggest man on the squad. He's fast, too, and a mighty likely candidate. Londe, who spelled the quarterback position with the departed Angelo Carideo last year, appears to have the inside call for the signal-calling job this year. Londe weighs only 155 but he's smart and fast.

One of the best backs on the squad is the experienced Jack Frye. Frye, from Houston, Tex., transferred two years ago from Rice Institute and played a year on that team. Being a "transfer" student, he was ineligible at Missouri last season.

The squad, numbering, as it does, 118, is the largest in the history of the game at Columbia. It is probable that the 1935 varsity squad will outweigh the rather light 1934 group, but that won't be the main difference. That will be in morale. Somehow, in only a few short weeks, Coaches Faurot and Simpson, still together after several years at Kirksville, have brought back the old Missouri tradition. You remember, the one that used to let the Tigers push the Nebraska Cornhuskers off the field on occasion.

One drawback this spring has been the necessity for the older men to "unlearn" the Notre Dame system which has been in vogue at the university for the past three years. Faurot uses a Warner-Faurot system which is entirely different from the one Carideo taught. The plays are different, as are the blocking and defense in general. The system is similar to, but not exactly like that Coach Faurot learned from his predecessor, Gwin Henry. Of course, the new men have learned a variety of systems, but they, too, were taught the Notre Dame code last year as freshmen. So, they've some unlearning to do.

Faurot is a believer in spring scrimmage, though not an adherent of the "none at all in the fall" theory. He believes most of the "rough stuff" should come in the spring, because there is no game to take its place. Also, Coach Don isn't fooling himself a bit.

"We believe in our system and we believe we can develop a real team here," he says, "but we are not simple enough to think that we can accomplish miracles in a single year. We have a tough schedule after the opening two games, for we meet Colorado, Iowa State, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Washington, Kansas State and Kansas U., and that's a mouthful for any team in any class. But we know we're on the right track and we're going to follow it."

They are on the right track. Only a few weeks in charge, Coaches Faurot and Simpson have brought football consciousness back to the University of Missouri. It had been absent without leave for some time.

Present plans call for spring practice to end April 13, when the varsit will play a regular game with an alumni team.

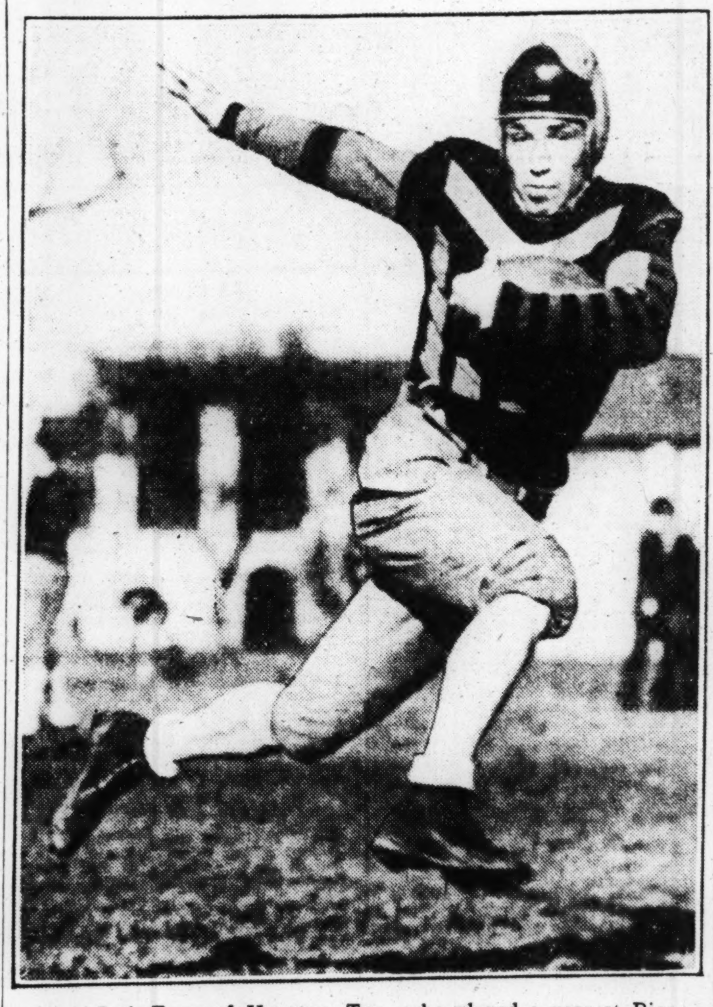
On only one or two days have there been less than 10 full teams in action on Freshman Field. The laws of percentage almost demand that two good elevens can be made out of that much raw material, no matter how raw.

The Tigers have no captain, but Coach Faurot has an open mind on the proposition. "If," he says, "the squad, after Spring practice, want to choose a captain for 1935, that's perfectly all right with me and I'll indorse their choice." That's typical of this smiling but hard-driving Faurot. He firmly believes that everything's going to be all right with him and his team and it probably will be. It should be.

Vernon Castle, last year a guard, has been shifted to the backfield and will be used chiefly as a blocking-back.

Ray Raleigh, former Maplewood High star, and Jim Lawler, who played at St. Louis University High, are prominent backfield candidates.

"Outstanding Prospect"—Frye of Texas



Jack Frye, of Houston, Tex., who played a year at Rice Institute before transferring to Missouri two years ago, will be eligible for the Tiger varsity this fall. He is listed as a strong possibility for a backfield berth.

Tigers to Meet Washington in St. Louis, Nov. 16

A YEAR ago, the Washington Bears met the Carideo-coached Tigers at Memorial Stadium in Columbia and won the game by the overwhelming score of 40 to 13. A passing attack by the Tigers scored twice in the late minutes after, observers concluded, the Bears were pretty well tuckered out by their many rushes up and down the field. The game was played Nov. 17.

This year, the Bears will be at home to the Tigers at Francis Field on Saturday, Nov. 16.

Jack Srenco Wins Handball Title

Jack Srenco, St. Louis handball star who went to the final in the National Y. M. C. A. tournament at Memphis recently, won the Ozark A. A. U. single championship by defeating Bill Littman of the Y. M. H. A., 21—6, 21—8, in the tournament final yesterday afternoon at the Downtown Y. M. C. A.

Srenco and Mike Cunningham, representing the Downtown Y. M. C. A., won the doubles title, defeating another Downtown "Y" combination composed of Sam Wolff and Jack Britt, 21—10, 21—3. The tournament started last Saturday.

Srenco and Cunningham will likely compete as Ozark A. A. U. representatives in the National A. A. U. handball tournament at Washington, D. C., starting April 1.

Put Life Into Dead Tiger

Here are the men who are shaping up the football material at Missouri. They are Coach Don Faurot (right) and his assistant, Chauncy Simpson.

WASHINGTON U. FOOTBALL TEAMS BATTLE TO A SCORELESS TIE

The prediction that Coach Jimmy Conzelman's two "equal-power" football teams would probably play to a scoreless tie when they met was fulfilled yesterday when the "Whites" and "Reds" were opposed for 54 minutes and neither team had scored a point at the final whistle.

Two powerful lines were opposed and it was evident early in the play that it would be a deadlock unless a long pass were completed. This almost came about in the last minute of the action when Don Wimberly tossed one for 40 yards to Bob Hudgens, who was downed on the "Whites'" nine-yard line. With time almost up, a pass again was called but this one was intercepted by Martintoni and, after one play, the contest, probably as gruelling as the Bears will have during the regular season, was over.

The two Washington teams looked in mid-season form so far as condition went and such substitutions as were made were of policy rather than of necessity. Dwight Hafeli retired early with his bad ankle but the injury was above the old one and is not considered serious. Joe Bukant also went out in the final quarter but many of the players went through the whole game. Among them were Iezzi and Martintoni, centers; Bentzinger, Lamb, Tomlinson, Hobbs, Brungard, Wimberly, Hudgens and Co-Capts. Droke and Zboyovski.

The Bears used some of their trick lateral-forwards but as the opposing team in each case knew the plays pretty thoroughly, they were not especially gainful.

Of the new players, good showings were made by Tomlinson, Bertagnolli, Locke, Walker and Bowman, but the main offense and defense was by the veteran members of Conzelman's squad. Some of the plays still need polish of course, but the few hundreds that braved a cold by watching the proceedings in the rain went away with a firm idea that the "Bears have got something" and plenty of it.

Perhaps the "Reds," with Zibby, Hudgens, Tutinsky and Wimberly as starting backs, had the better of it on yardage gained but, everything considered, the competition was even-stephen all the way through.

The starting lineups:

WHITES.	POS.	REDS.
Hobbs	L. E.	Brungard
Lamb	L. T.	Mansor
Bertagnolli	L. G.	Konvicka
Martintoni	C.	Iezzi
Londy	R. G.	Davis
Wendt	R. T.	Bentzinger
Hafeli	R. E.	Tomlinson
Smith	Q. B.	Zboyoski
Blumberg	L. H.	Hudgens
Droke	R. H.	Tutinsky
Bukant	F. B.	Wimberly

The team which faced the Boston Red Sox last Friday averaged 176 pounds, including two pitchers averaging close to 200.

Of the regular players none weighed 200 pounds, the heaviest man being Ray Pepper, 196, with Catcher Grube, 190, next high. The lightest members of the team were Melillo, 150; Strange, 155, and Heine Mueller, 155. Others scaled as follows: Garms, 165; West, 168; Burnett, 175; Clift, 171; Bell, 180; Bettencourt, 185; Burns, 167, Hemsley, 165.

Easy for Ball Players.

COMPARATIVELY speaking, the ball player's weight difficulties are mental. After all, he doesn't have to step on the scales just before game time, and be at a definite poundage.

If the diamond athlete thinks his lot is tough he ought to go through the trials of a jockey, who is reaching the point where he has to fight to keep within riding weight. Turkish baths just before a race, road work of several miles, abstinence from both food and water are some of the extremes to which ageing riders are put to remain active.

Constant repetition of some of these forced methods inevitably lead to illness, sometimes fatal.

Twenty years ago, when fighters had to make ringside weight, the sacrifices and sufferings some of the boys experienced were really severe. Young Corbett, who took on weight quickly, had to go without food or drink, except for a little meat jelly for 20 hours before one of his fights.

Joe Gans' endeavors to remain under the lightweight limit for his fight with Bat Nelson eventually caused his death from tuberculosis.

The ballplayer has no such heroics as these to suffer. Steady work and patience accomplish his result, and in the meantime he can eat drink and be reasonably merry.

Change Might Help.

JOCKEYS who can't do 120 pounds or under regularly might as well quit trying to shrink themselves by forced reduction. The number of cases in this country requiring jockeys of this weight are very few. It is rarely that a boy weighing 130 pounds or more can get a mount except in steeplechases.

It would be a simple matter to save a lot of good riders to the world by raising the weights out of the featherweight division and making riding possible professionally for men weighing say 140 pounds.

The horses can stand it. They do abroad. They do it in steeplechases here, and the obstacle races constitute much more severe tests than the flat races, many of which are mere six-furlong dashes with a featherweight up.

The Grand National Steeplechase, to be run at Aintree, England, March 29, indicates what race horses are capable of carrying. The Grand National favorite this year, Golden Miller, will carry 175 pounds. Think that one over. Furthermore, he will travel 4½ miles and clear (we hope) some 31 jumps ranging from three-foot brush obstacles to combination fence and water jumps 15 feet wide, carrying 175 pounds.

With this in mind, it seems too bad that in America great riders are shelved because our horses are not allowed to carry, for six furlongs, a weight 45 pounds less than a steeplechaser can carry 4½ miles over jumps.

The Mutuel Plague.

ARKANSAS, dispatches tell us, having legalized horse racing mutuels, is about to do the same thing for greyhound racing. That, at least, is logical. If mutuel betting is ok for the bangtails it would seem ok for the doggies. But the probabilities are that it will be ok for both before long—and for the community as well.

The amazing spread of racing, both dog and horse, due to the legislative desire for revenue at any cost, may develop into a plague mutuels. And the more states that adopt this plan of raising money, the sooner will racing of both types suffer a body blow.

Even here in West Palm Beach, home merchants complain that the dog track takes spending money away from the town and returns nothing for the loss. It also delays the settlement of household credits for staple commodities, they contend.

Texas had the same experience, although that was "fresh money" territory.

If too many wells bore for oil, the pool will quickly be drained.

Besides, the suggestion that racing promoted in this manner is sport is just a laugh. The track operators are looking for profits and the State for revenue. What the poor race track follower looks for, from watching selling platers and grocery wagon horses run, is beyond comprehension if sport is the objective.

It isn't, of course, unless it is sport to lose your money quickly and surely.

It is a foregone conclusion that if the expansion of horse and dog racing goes on, there will be another collapse like the Florida boom or the stock crash, in a smaller way.

Neither the horses, the dogs nor the spending money is available for the permanency of such enterprises.

MANGIN REGAINS NATIONAL INDOOR TENNIS HONORS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 16.—Gregory Mangin today won the national men's indoor singles tennis championship for the ird time, defeating Berkeley Bell, second seeded player, 8—6, 7—5, 2—6, 0—6, 6—2.

Mangin, who won the title in 1932 and 1933, after assuming a two-set lead, lapsed temporarily until Bell, fighting gamely for recognition as a Davis Cup player, tied the match at two sets each. But in the fifth set, which determined the championship, Mangin once more commanded the play, driving Bell all over the court.

LATE DATE HEADS FIDELIS IN HANDICAP AT MIAMI

PORTER RIDES SIX-YEAR-OLD; BYE BYE MARY PAYS 25 TO 1

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MIAMI, Fla., March 16.—Late Date, six-year-old bay mare, carried the colors of the Brentwood Stable to a surprise victory in the Royal Palm Handicap, $2000 added mile and one-sixteenth feature at Tropical Park today. A crowd of 15,000 witnessed the eight-race program.

Usually a "come-from-behind" horse, Late Date, with Jockey Earl Porter in the saddle, went into the lead at the half mile pole and held it all the way to stave off a closing rush by B. N. Kane's Fidelis. Fidelis finished a few inches behind the winner, with E. F. Seagram's Stand Pat, the top-weighted favorite, a well-beaten third.

Late Date, paying $15.10 straight, covered the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:44 2-5 over the fast track.

Survey Fishing Streams.

MANY of the finest fishing streams in Missouri's Ozarks are now being surveyed by United States Forest Service workers preparatory to comprehensive improvement as fish breeding and rearing sites, it was announced by forestry officials in the State. This stream improvement is to be done in addition to game area development already underway.

Civilian Conservation Corps workers already enrolled in the forestry camps are to do the stream improvement work under the direction of forestry officials. All streams through the six extensive national forest areas of Missouri are included in the improvement project. This includes such well known fishing streams as the Gasconade, White, Current, St. Francois, Meramec, Black, James, Piney and Eleven Point Rivers.

Natural feeding and breeding sites in the streams will receive considerable attention. Wing dams and a similar artificial construction will be used to scour river beds, provide areas where aquatic plan life can thrive to provide food and cover for fish.

Establishment of these improvement areas does not mean fishermen will be banned from the streams but that their chances of getting good catches will be improved, those in charge say.

Floods Cause Havoc.

FLOODS on the lower reaches of the larger rivers in Missouri have caused considerable havoc with game and fish life in the river valleys, game officials declared. Included in the areas which suffered because of the high waters are Roaring River, Bennett Spring, Meramec, Montauk and Big Spring State Parks.

Special efforts to save fish in the trout streams from being swept away by rising flood waters were taken at the State parks. Although the flood waters have receded to a less dangerous stage considerable aquatic life is yet in danger. As is usual during the flood seasons, especially in the southeastern part of the State, rapidly receding waters are expected to deposit thousands of fish in sloughs and bar pits where, unless rescued, they will perish when these artificial waterholes are evaporated or drain through the porous soils when dry weather comes.

Many of the State's biggest fishing streams have been effected by the floods, a check-up shows, and the rescue work may require considerable activity over a large area.

The trials will include junior stakes to which dogs whelped after April 15, 1934, will be eligible to compete and the senior stakes for dogs whelped after Jan. 1, 1934.

When the trials are completed at Sturgeon for the young dogs there will be a subscription stake for shooting dogs.

More Law Violations.

Joe E. Green, chief of wardens for the Missouri Game and Fish Department, this week reported to Commissioner Wilbur C. Buford that his report for 1934 shows an increase of 24.64 per cent over 1933. Most of the violations were for failure to have proper hunting and fishing licenses.

To Award Cash Prizes.

Some of the duck hunting clubs which have leased areas in the St. Louis vicinity are expected to participate in a nation-wide contest for establishing waterfowl refuges and sanctuaries. Cash prizes of $500 and 20 silver trophies are offered winners of the contest being sponsored by the More Game Birds in America, Inc., 500 Fifth Avenue, New York.

This contest is being conducted in co-operation with the game birds group, the U. S. Biological Survey and officials of other national wild life organizations.

LUCKEN AND WEBB FEATURE AMATEUR CARD

Matchmaker Benny Kessler last night signed Jimmy Webb, one of St. Louis' leading middleweights, and Duke Lucken, a former district champion, to trade blows in one of the feature matches on Wednesday night's amateur boxing card at the Coliseum.

Anxious to land a place on the team which will represent St. Louis in the National A. A. U. tournament next April, Lucken, a two-fisted hitter jumped at the opportunity of opposing Webb.

Another match was closed when Kessler signed Bill Henley, city Negro lightweight champion, and Leroy Thomas, colored fighter from Jefferson City. Henley was one of St. Louis' representatives in the United States championships a year ago and is in line to be on the local team again this year.

In another return battle Louis Wallach, Ozark A. A. U. bantamweight king, and Billy Born of Belleville, will mix it up. Their recent meeting resulted with Wallach winning an unpopular decision from Born in the final match for 118-pounders in the district tourney.

John Randazzo, who has both the Post-Dispatch Community Center and Ozark A. A. U. welterweight titles in his possession, is expected to be put to the test in his match with Rolla Taylor of Jefferson City, who has won eight of his 10 matches on knockouts.

Rugby Game to Be Played Today At the Stadium

A rugby game between two picked St. Louis teams will be played this afternoon at the Public Schools Stadium, Kingshighway and St. Louis, starting at 2:30 o'clock. There will be no admission charge.

Robert E. Scannell, who is acting as coach and matchmaker for the squad, announced that the purpose of the game was to select an All-St. Louis team to meet a Chicago team in the latter part of April or the early part of May in Chicago.

Practice sessions have drawn about 35 candidates but Scannell stated that all those who try out for the squad will be given a chance to make the trip to Chicago.

CHAMPIONS ENTER WEIGHT-LIFTING MEET

Judging from the number of entries already received, the Ozark A. A. U. weight lifting championship meet at the downtown Y. M. C. A. Thursday, March 28, promises to be the finest tournament St. Louisans have ever had a chance to witness.

Among the entries are Ed. Rose, light-heavy, from the South Side Barbell Club. Others from the same club are Henry Fritz, middleweight; Ed. Routt, middleweight; Chester Williams, bantamweight, and Bill Givens, welterweight champion. Givens is one of the best lifters in this section.

Lifters from other clubs are Steve Litwetcki, light-heavy champion; Fred Wollenberg, lightweight champion, and Harold Reed, welterweight, from Concordia; Ed. Zercher, middleweight champion of the Knights of Columbus Recreation Center, Webster Groves, and is national dead life champion, holding record of 536 pounds at 155 pounds body weight, also is entered. From the Y. M. C. A. are Victor Lund, lightheavy, and E. Sullivan, middleweight.

Ozark A. A. U. Officials Name 14 Boxers for Team In National Tournament

Fourteen members of the team of 16 to represent the St. Louis District in the National A. A. U. boxing tournament at The Arena, April 10-11-12, have been selected and another tentatively chosen, Benny Kessler, chairman of the Boxing Committee of the Ozark A. A. U., announced yesterday.

Those already named are Irwin Striebel, South Broadway A. C., heavyweight; Herman West, Buckner, Ill., light-heavyweight; Bill Schreiber, South Broadway A. C., and Jimmy Webb, Business Men's A. C., middleweights; John Randazzo, Sherman A. C., welterweight; Bill Beauhuld, South Broadway A. C., lightweight; Paul Spica, Sherman A. C.; Sam Marino, South Broadway A. C., and Tommy Starr, Granite City A. C., featherweights; Lou Wallach, Sherman A. C., and Bill Born, Belleville, bantamweights.

In addition, three Negro boys have been selected. They are Bill Henley, lightweight; Leonard Bostick, light-heavyweight, and Monroe Harrison, heavyweight.

Harry Groll, middleweight, has been tentatively selected and it is likely that one more boy may be added.

Striebel in Final Last Year.

Striebel went to the final of last year's tournament, while West and Harrison also had experience in the 1934 event.

Randazzo won the recent Post-Dispatch Community Center 147-pound title and followed that with a victory in the Ozark A. A. U. championships.

Schreiber scored the biggest upset of the Ozark when he outpointed Webb, who had been looked upon as a sure thing for the middleweight title. The selection of both was a happy choice.

Beauhuld was named on last year's team but illness forced him to withdraw before the tournament.

Paul Spica, sturdy little bantamweight, has been going good lately, even though he had a hard time winning from Marino in the Ozark tournament, while Wallach, one of the most improved boxers in the district, had his hands full with Born in the tournament. Wallach won the decision and the title but many in the crowd disagreed with the verdict.

Bostick Outstanding Negro Choice.

Bostick was named the outstanding boy in the city-wide Negro tournament at the Coliseum recently, while Henley and Harrison both won the titles in their weight divisions.

All of the boys will continue to train for the event at their respective gymnasiums under their own trainers and coaches.

Kessler also announced that he expected a total of 200 entrants for the affair as against fewer than 150 last year. In 1934 only 19 of the 29 districts were represented, while Benny reported that he has already heard from 27 districts this year, including the Hawaiian team, which was one of the most colorful in the 1934 event.

Kentucky Derby Candidates Go to Post Today in Louisiana Classic

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 16.—Twelve three-year-olds, including McCarthy and Clang, candidates for the Kentucky Derby, will match strides at the Fairgrounds tomorrow afternoon in the $3000 Louisiana Derby, mile and an eighth closing-day feature.

Top weight for the classic has been given to McCarthy, which races in the colors of Morrison & Keating. The route-running chestnut gelded son of Star Master will tote 117 pounds, spotting each of his rivals at least five.

E. K. Bryson's Our Mae, a sprinting daughter of Our General, is next with 112, while Glittering, Clang, Silver Blue, Bulstrode, Chief Osceola, Golden Throne and Gay Days will carry 111. The remaining three, Dark Woman, Princess Belle and Leana G., are in with 106.

McCarthy, which has shown the best staying ability in the field, should be a short-priced favorite tomorrow, with contender honors to Dark Woman, Glittering, Clang and Bulstrode. Dark Woman, W. Hinphey's color-bearer, defeated McCarthy at a mile recently in the good time of 1:38 4-5, and, favored with the light weight, may come through with a win under a good ride.

TRIPLE A STARS ENTER INDOOR TENNIS TOURNEY

By Davison Obear.

Ray Wiese and McNeill Smith, two of the leading players of the Triple A Club, have entered the ninth annual St. Louis district indoor tennis championship which opens at the Washington University Field House next Saturday. They will form a strong team in the men's doubles and each player will also participate in the singles event.

In the tournament last year Smith played brilliantly in the men's singles. After winning from Wiese and Robert Weinstock, he gained the final bracket, where he lost to Karl Hodge. Wiese paired with Teddy Eggmann to reach the final of the men's doubles, losing to Karl Kammann and Charles Barnes.

Hodge has entered the men's doubles with Ned Simmons, St. Louis Country Club star. Another doubles entry is that of Harry Roberts and J. R. Blevins from Benld, Ill. They will also play in the singles. George Prelutzky, another Triple A player, is entered in the singles. He has shown steady improvement during the past several years and will very likely provide strong competition this year.

Shields Hauhart, of Kirkwood, one of the leading players at the Woodlawn Country Club, is another entry in the men's singles. Ferd Heine, Leroy Mertz and Elmer Rehmer, top ranking municipal players, will participate. Rehmer will also play in the doubles with Joe Petrik, Carondelet Park star.

Entries for the women's singles have been rather slow in coming in. Marjorie Diernberger, Reservoir Park star, was the first to file.

Russell Hadden, tournament chairman, announced that the entries for the men's singles will close Thursday afternoon. The list will be limited to 48 players while the limit in the women's singles will be 24. Men's doubles will be limited to 16 teams, with a maximum of eight teams for mixed doubles.

SPORT SALAD
by L. Davis

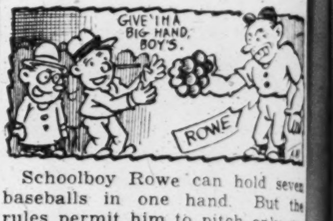
The Beef Trust.

I SEE Carnera licked the Imp.
Who on the ropes was hanging limp
But never on the floor.
The beef trust tried to make it clear
That they were giving no bum steer
And Prime Beef won the war.

Jack Dempsey helped to stimulate
The rush of persons through the gate,
And refereed the feud.
'Twas said Impellittiere was fat,
And by the way, we notice that
The verdict wasn't booed!

Next!

Carnera's victory over Impellitiere almost puts him in line for another trimming by Max Baer. However, the winner of the Lasky-Braddock fight or Max Schmeling might intervene and grab the meal ticket right out of Maxie's hand.



GIVE 'IM A BIG HAND, BOY'S.
ROWE

Schoolboy Rowe can hold seven baseballs in one hand. But the rules permit him to pitch only one at a time.

Although not in the heyday or the payday of his youth, Rogers Hornsby is still the most widely quoted player or manager in baseball. When Rogers opens his mouth scribes spread their nets to catch the pearls of wisdom as they trickle forth.

Atta Spirit!

See where the firewood has been cleared out of Babe Ruth's old locker and it is now occupied by a scribe. Probably one of Babe's old ghost writers.

In the Seals' stadium at San Francisco, the bleacher fans will sit behind the home plate. Had the vegetarians sat behind a screen in Detroit, it would have saved Joe Medwick much embarrassment.

The Boston fans will not see the greyhounds race at Braves Field this year but if Babe Ruth's dogs stand up the Braves might do something about the pennant race.

How Come?

"Trade Rumors After Hornsby Meeting With Manager Cronin."

Hey, Joe, you're not with the Senators any longer!

One for the Book.

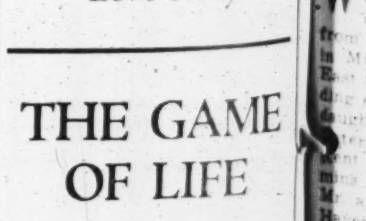
The Yankees, who once had one $80,000 a year ballplayer, bobbed up in 1935 with five $1 a year men.

FIVE dollar-a-year men,
Stars in days of yore;
Babe Ruth became a Brave,
Then there were four.

How It Started.

While touring through Texas on a cotton-picking expedition some years ago, so the story runs, Dizzy Dean and his brother Elmer, riding in separate automobiles, were parted by a long freight train. Dizzy didn't see Elmer again for four years. And then and there was born a famous cry that was destined to echo from the Everglades of Florida to the icy igloos of the Arctic Circle and from the rock-bound coast of Maine to the sunkist slopes of the Pacific, to-wit: "Where's Elmer?"

It is rumored that Sunny Jim Bottomley is slated for promotion. S. J. B. is said to be Cubward bound.



RUTH
SAME HERE!

Right now it looks as if the two outstanding rookie first basemen of the year will be Babe Ruth and Rogers Hornsby.

Tea Party Sends Catherine Davis On Movie Career

ONE afternoon four years ago, when Miss Catherine Lynn-Lachlan Davis and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George L. L. Davis, were living near Westchester, in Chester County, Pa., she attended a tea party, as a result of which she is changed, terporarily at least, from a party-going former debutante, to an ambitious movie actress.

She met the guest of honor, Cecil B. de Mille, who asked if she would like to go to Hollywood. Miss Davis, who had been interested in the theater as a student at the Finch School in New York, but had given no serious consideration to acting as a profession, replied that she would.

Conferences with Producer de Mille followed and, late in January, accompanied by her mother, she left St. Louis for Hollywood. She is ensconced in the Studio Club, and working almost 12 hours a day on sets, in her first picture. She is under contract, at least until the picture is finished, some time next summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis and their daughter left St. Louis eight years ago, when Miss Catherine was a Mary Institute student, to live in Westchester. The afternoon of the tea she went with her parents to the commencement exercises at Pennsylvania Military College at Chester, where her father had been a cadet. Mr. de Mille, also an alumnus of the school, was having an honorary degree conferred on him by Bishop Francis Tate of the diocese of Philadelphia. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dyer Clyde, old friends of the Davis family, who were

Dorothy T. Lund Engaged to Wed Austin P. Leland

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Y. Lund Make Announcement at Cocktail Party—Wedding to Be Soon After Easter.

THE engagement of Miss Dorothy Talbot Lund, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Lund, 5968 West Cabanne place, and Austin Porter Leland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Leland, 18 Windermere place, was announced yesterday afternoon. The announcement was made informally at a cocktail party given by Miss Lund's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Y. Lund, at their apartment, 7627 Wydown boulevard. Purple iris and white stock were contrasted in a centerpiece for the dining-room table; clusters of Easter lilies adorned the piano, and colorful spring flowers were arranged about the apartment.

The wedding will take place shortly after Easter.

Miss Lund is a graduate of Mary Institute and of Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, N. Y. She was formally introduced to society three seasons ago at a reception at the St. Louis Woman's Club, after serving as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball that October. She is a member of the Junior League. She has traveled frequently and extensively both in this country and abroad. In addition to Joel Lund, she has another brother, William R. Lund, who lives in Bartlesville, Ok.

Miss Lund and her fiance are interested in music. She is an accomplished pianist and a member of the Junior Division of the Women's Symphony Committee. Mr. Leland, a Princeton graduate, was not only an officer of its Triangle Club in his undergraduate years, but played several leads in its productions and one year wrote the libretto for the entire play. He prepared for college at the St. Louis Country Day School. His clubs include the University and the Bellerive Country Club. He is a brother of Mrs. James Richmond Ingham, president of the Buffalo Junior League, who was Miss Florence Leland. The Lelands spend their summers at their home in Charlevoix, Mich.

Recently when Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Lund made their annual winter visit to Sea Island, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. Joel Lund and Miss Lund awaited them in New York, where they were joined by Mr. Leland, and the engagement was disclosed one night at dinner.

Robert L. Lund is chairman of the National Committee for Economy in Government, and is a former president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Social Activities Of Americans at French Capital

PARIS, March 6.

AMBASSADOR AND MRS. JESSE ISIDOR STRAUS have in the last year instituted a new custom at the embassy here. Several times a week they entertain small groups of Americans, members of the diplomatic corps of Paris and notables at tea or dinner. Thus, the embassy has become the center of social life of the American colony here. Last Saturday afternoon they entertained at tea for members of the embassy staff and their wives and a group of Americans who have lived in Paris for several years. Among the guests was Miss May Brinkhead, who recently returned to her apartment on the Rue Petrarch after several months in the United States. She visited in St. Louis, Chicago and New York.

Ambassador and Mrs. Straus will leave next week for London to be present at the first court of the season. They will be guests of Ambassador and Mrs. Robert Worth Bingham.

Ambassador and Mrs. Breckinridge Long and their daughter, Miss Christine Long, have returned to Rome after several months in the United States. Mrs. Long entertained last week at the embassy residence in Villa Traverna, at the first of a series of teas and receptions which she will give during the season. Miss Long is at Kitzbuehel, in the Austrian Tyrol, for the winter sports. With her is Miss Marianna Dunn of Washington, who returned with Ambassador and Mrs. Long to be their guest in Rome. Queen Mary Picks New Court Gowns

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, March 16.

MAKING an early choice, Queen Mary already has selected two of her court gowns. She has decided that one shall be all in gold, while for another she has selected a heavy, pastel-tinted satin, over which antique lace from her collection will be draped.

For the March court materials like brocade and velvet will be popular, particularly some of the newest frosted velvets that look as though they had been powdered with silver.

Most Anglo-American society persons have left London for Cheltenham and then Liverpool, where the Grand National will be run March 29.

"Jock" Whitney, Pete Bostwick, the Ambrose Clarks and the rest of the fox-hunting set already are there.

The Duke and Duchess of Marlborough are due in London from Havana next week, in the van of international society folk who will come to London for the jubilee celebration of King George's reign.

Lord and Lady Calthorpe—she was formerly Mary Burrows, daughter of Hoffman Burrows of Newport—have arrived from South America.

The court is still at Eastbourne, where it is likely to remain until April, the King's physicians insisting that he and Queen Mary remain in the sunshine.

entertaining Mr. and Mrs. de Mille, gave the party after the exercises. Mr. de Mille and his wife were on their way to Russia, but he asked Miss Davis to communicate with him on his return.

Meanwhile the Davis family returned to St. Louis two years ago and leased an apartment at the Oxford, where Miss Davis made her debut a year ago last fall. She had completed her preparatory work at the Hillside School in Norwalk, Conn., and courses offered by the Finch School. She had studied dramatic art in both institutions, but had been discouraged from pursuing it further. Her sisters, Mrs. William E. Parke II, formerly Miss Carter Davis, and Mrs. J. Soulard Ctaes, who was Miss Henrietta Davis, both made their debuts here and were active in St. Louis' social life.

Last August while Mr. de Mille was in St. Louis for a lecture, he telephoned Miss Davis for a conference on her trip to Hollywood. He spoke of beginning work on "The Crusades," his next picture in January. The trip west followed, and Mrs. Davis, who returned home a few days ago, tells interesting stories of her daughter's experience. Studio discipline had to be mastered, make-up problems solved, and costume routine learned.

In the picture Miss Davis' identity changed rapidly. In one scene she is a dark-skinned Moslem woman, in another a peasant, and in a third, a woman of the better class.

The Studio Club, 1215 Lodi place, is a spacious building with elaborate furnishings, its own theater, patios and flower gardens.

On the way home Mrs. Davis visited in New Mexico after touring California, and also went to New Orleans. Her daughter will have a vacation in the summer.

THIS NEW YORK

By LUCIUS BEEBE

IF Jock Whitney got aboard the Ile de France last week and into his suite it wasn't the fault either of Bob Benchley or Paul Palmer. They did their best to keep him in the U. S.

It appears that the new editor of "The American Mercury" and "The New Yorker's" drama critic went straight from Jack and Charlie's to the French Line pier to see Mr. Whitney off. He hadn't arrived yet, so they made themselves at home in his suite with such accustomed ease that the steward thought Mr. Palmer was the rightful occupant and began calling him "Mr. Whitney." This tickled Benchley, and when the ship news reporters came in he introduced them to the bogus Jock, who gave a resounding interview advocating polo teams with eleven men on a side.

At five minutes to sailing time they departed, having minutely described the personal appearance of Mr. Whitney to the steward, but identifying him as Mike Romanoff, and leaving instructions to have him thrown off the ship if he put in an appearance. At two minutes to sailing time Mr. Whitney hadn't got aboard, and Messrs. Benchley and Palmer called it a night and went back to Jack and Charlie's.

Langdon E. Mitchell, venerable playwright and man of letters, might well be the recipient of a medal or some other honor from the Madeira Association, as he is just about the last boulevardier to give old-fashioned Madeira parties. His guests on such occasions are selected from discriminating persons who will not confuse a Rainwater with a Crown Sercial, or one of Cossart Gordon Co.'s Crown Boals with a vintage Old Solera. The glasses are carefully dipped, brims down, in bowls of water chilled just a little cooler than room temperature and the wine is passed ceremoniously in decanters—first to Walter Damrosch, who is an amateur of Madeiras, and then to Vinton Freedley, who is usually present on these occasions.

Madeira parties, like sherry parties, where nothing but the one wine is served, used to be a common if somewhat elegant form of entertainment only a few years ago. Before then, especially in Colonial times, nobody stopped until he had absorbed approximately a pail of Boal, and it was the standard American table wine. Nowadays, too few people know that in Madeiras are some of the world's most splendid wines, and that the rarest vintage years and soleras can be had at prices that are extremely reasonable beside the scarcer hocks and burgundies.

The vegetable valentines and other pastoral scenes evolved out of carrots, turnips, squashes and string beans by Scott Wilson for the Madison have presented a problem that baffled a number of the town's most astute chemists. The first of the series, "Le Baiser," which depicted a carroty gentleman embracing a broccoli sweetheart, was a successful bit of foolishness that attracted widespread attention, but which, on the second day of its showing, began to show signs of wilting. Arms and legs dropped, ears fell off, senility and decline were written all over the figures in the group.

Mr. Wilson, at the behest of the management, tried adrenalin shellac, glue and heaven knows what, but after each treatment the onion cupid would fall off the celery pedestal or the vegetable lover would collapse, whammie! right on his face. Mr. Wilson and the Madison registered despair, and neither the chemists nor even an embalmer who was called in for consultation could suggest any remedies.

Now the second of the series, "Noah's Ark," has been unveiled by Pierre Fresnay, who has been playing the father of Shem and Ham in "Noah," and seems to be preserving all its original color and vitality. Mr. Wilson, recalling his college chemistry, decided the cause of decay in his vegetable love scenes was the simple presence of bacilli in the turnips and spinach leaves, which had been feeding off the gelatin with which the scenes were coated to hold them together. Now he sterilizes every vegetable with white iodine and say the eggplant elephants, potato hippopotami and string bean snake will last until Judgment Day.

A major industrial crisis was avoided last week, it appears, when Max Baer took it into his head that he needed some new luggage, and, as the French say, of the most elegant. Wardrobe trunks and golf bags, hat boxes and toilet sets were all secured to the taste of the most fastidious of box fighters, but the shoe trunk presented an impasse. Finally a luggage designer came to the rescue and built a special crate for the Baer boots. His size is 13E, which made it necessary for the compartments to measure 15 by 7 by 6 inches, and eventually the trunk accommodated 20 pairs of ordinary shoes (if you call 13E ordinary), and two pairs of riding boots. It stood Maxy $150 to have his footgear properly crated, but now he's thinking of having another just like it for spares, he says.

Washington Quiet In Lenten Season

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 16.

LENT has caused a let-down in elaborate social affairs. Many are declining all formal invitations during the Lenten season, others are taking vacations out of town.

Mrs. Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, is accepting practically no invitations. She will leave in a few days for a holiday in the South.

Mrs. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, has gone to Atlantic City for a rest. Mrs. Morgenthau, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, will leave next week for New York.

Mrs. Cummings, wife of the Attorney-General, has returned from New York and is entertaining informally. When she gave a luncheon for Mrs. Garner, the wife of the Vice-President, Mrs. Cummings announced that none of the guests would be in their right places, except Mrs. Garner.

USE POWDER

DR. LYON'S TOOTH POWDER

- 100% Cleansing Properties Twice that of tooth paste
- Contains No Grit or Pumice Cannot possibly scratch the softest enamel
- Outlasts Tooth Paste 2 to 1

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

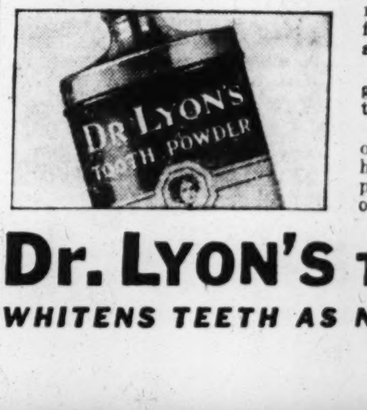
Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cleans off all stains and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums and the least possible tooth decay. Powder leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Once you use powder you will never go back to tooth paste. People by the thousands are changing daily.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.



Dr. LYON'S TOOTH POWDER
WHITENS TEETH AS NOTHING ELSE CAN

WOMAN FILES SUIT TO SET ASIDE DIVORCE SHE OBTAINED

Mrs. Mildred Fach Says She Lived With Ex-Husband, Who Said He Would Set Aside Decree.

Suit was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Mrs. Mildred Fach to set aside a divorce she obtained from William Fach, manager of the Ritz Hotel, 4137 Lindell boulevard, Oct. 13, 1932. At that time her maiden name, Boteler, was restored.

In her petition, she said they were married Nov. 18, 1931, and separated April 1, 1932. She alleged that Fach employed the lawyer who represented her and paid the fee and other expenses of the case. Fach entered his appearance, but did not contest. She charged general indignities in that he had a "hot, rash and ungovernable disposition," and had said he did not love her.

Immediately after the divorce, Fach prevailed upon Mrs. Fach, she said, to resume with him as husband and wife. She consented to such arrangement, she said, on his promise to have the divorce set aside, and he later informed her that such action had been taken. Last November Fach told the plaintiff, according to her petition, that the divorce had not been set aside, and he would no longer recognize her as his wife, nor would he recognize the child born Jan. 11, 1934, as his child.

Besides a request that the divorce be set aside, the petitioner asked that a decree be entered upholding the legitimacy of the child, naming Fach as the father. Fach declined to comment.

SUIT FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES AGAINST ORVILLE JENNINGS

Former Union Leader and Chester Chapline, Electrical Contractor, Named.

Suit for $2500 in attorneys' fees was filed by the law firm of Foristell, Mudd, Blair & Habenicht at Clayton yesterday against Orville E. Jennings, former international delegate in charge of affairs of the local electrical workers' union, and Chester Chapline, an electrical contractor.

The law partners allege that they were employed in November, 1930, to defend Chapline and Jennings after an indictment charging conspiracy to restrain trade in violation of State anti-trust laws. The case ended favorably for the defendants, it is alleged, but a fee has not been paid.

Chapline and Jennings were indicted by a Circuit Court grand jury during an investigation by former Attorney-General Shartel that led to the ouster by State Supreme Court decree of four electrical organizations, dominated by the two men. The indictment was dismissed after the ouster decree.

READ HOW SKIN SOFTENER INSTANTLY SMOOTHS HARSH DRY SKIN

It is an accepted scientific fact that harshness is only stale skin. Just dead particles which, clinging to your true skin, make it rough. Recent tests actually prove that these dry cells can be melted with a skin softener.

Dermatologist explains how—

"When a keratolytic cream comes in contact with the dry, horny surface cells, they melt," a leading dermatologist says. "Then the smooth skin appears. It looks clear and of finer texture.

"This vanishing cream also prevents the too-rapid evaporation of needed skin moisture. Thus it wards off, as well as corrects, harshness and dryness."

That is exactly how Pond's Vanishing Cream acts when you smooth it on your skin The very moment this feathery cream touches your skin, scaly cells dissolve. Horny particles vanish. Then your skin looks clearer. Its texture appears finer More silken. It becomes actually translucent

Pat it over face, neck, hands, arms after your nightly creaming. Its satinizing effect is amazing! With your skin filmed in this cloud-like cream, your rest becomes a real beauty sleep. When morning comes, you have a radiantly fresh, smooth skin.

Powder clings indefinitely. Veil your face—neck—hands with this cream during the day, too. It will shield your skin. Powder and make-up will cling fresh and even through the hours. Your skin will have that suave—finished—well-groomed look that invites admiration.

We want you to test this cream before buying. See harshness, dryness melt away and your skin grow silken-smooth with each day's application. Mail this coupon today and we will send a generous 10 days' supply.

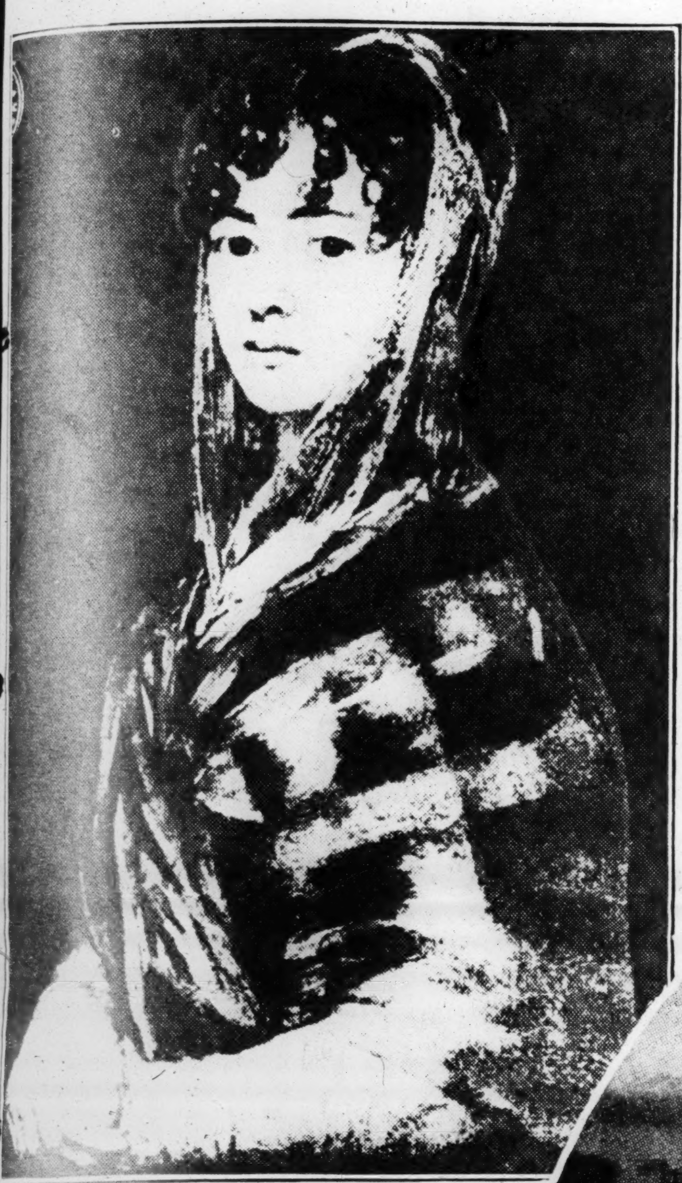
Why Andrew Mellon SPENT 19 MILLIONS FOR PICTURES

The Former Secretary of the Treasury Was Trying to Build Up the Greatest Gallery in the World—in Secret—to Present to the People at Washington, D. C.



Portrait of Senora Garcia, by Goya.

PITTSBURGH.

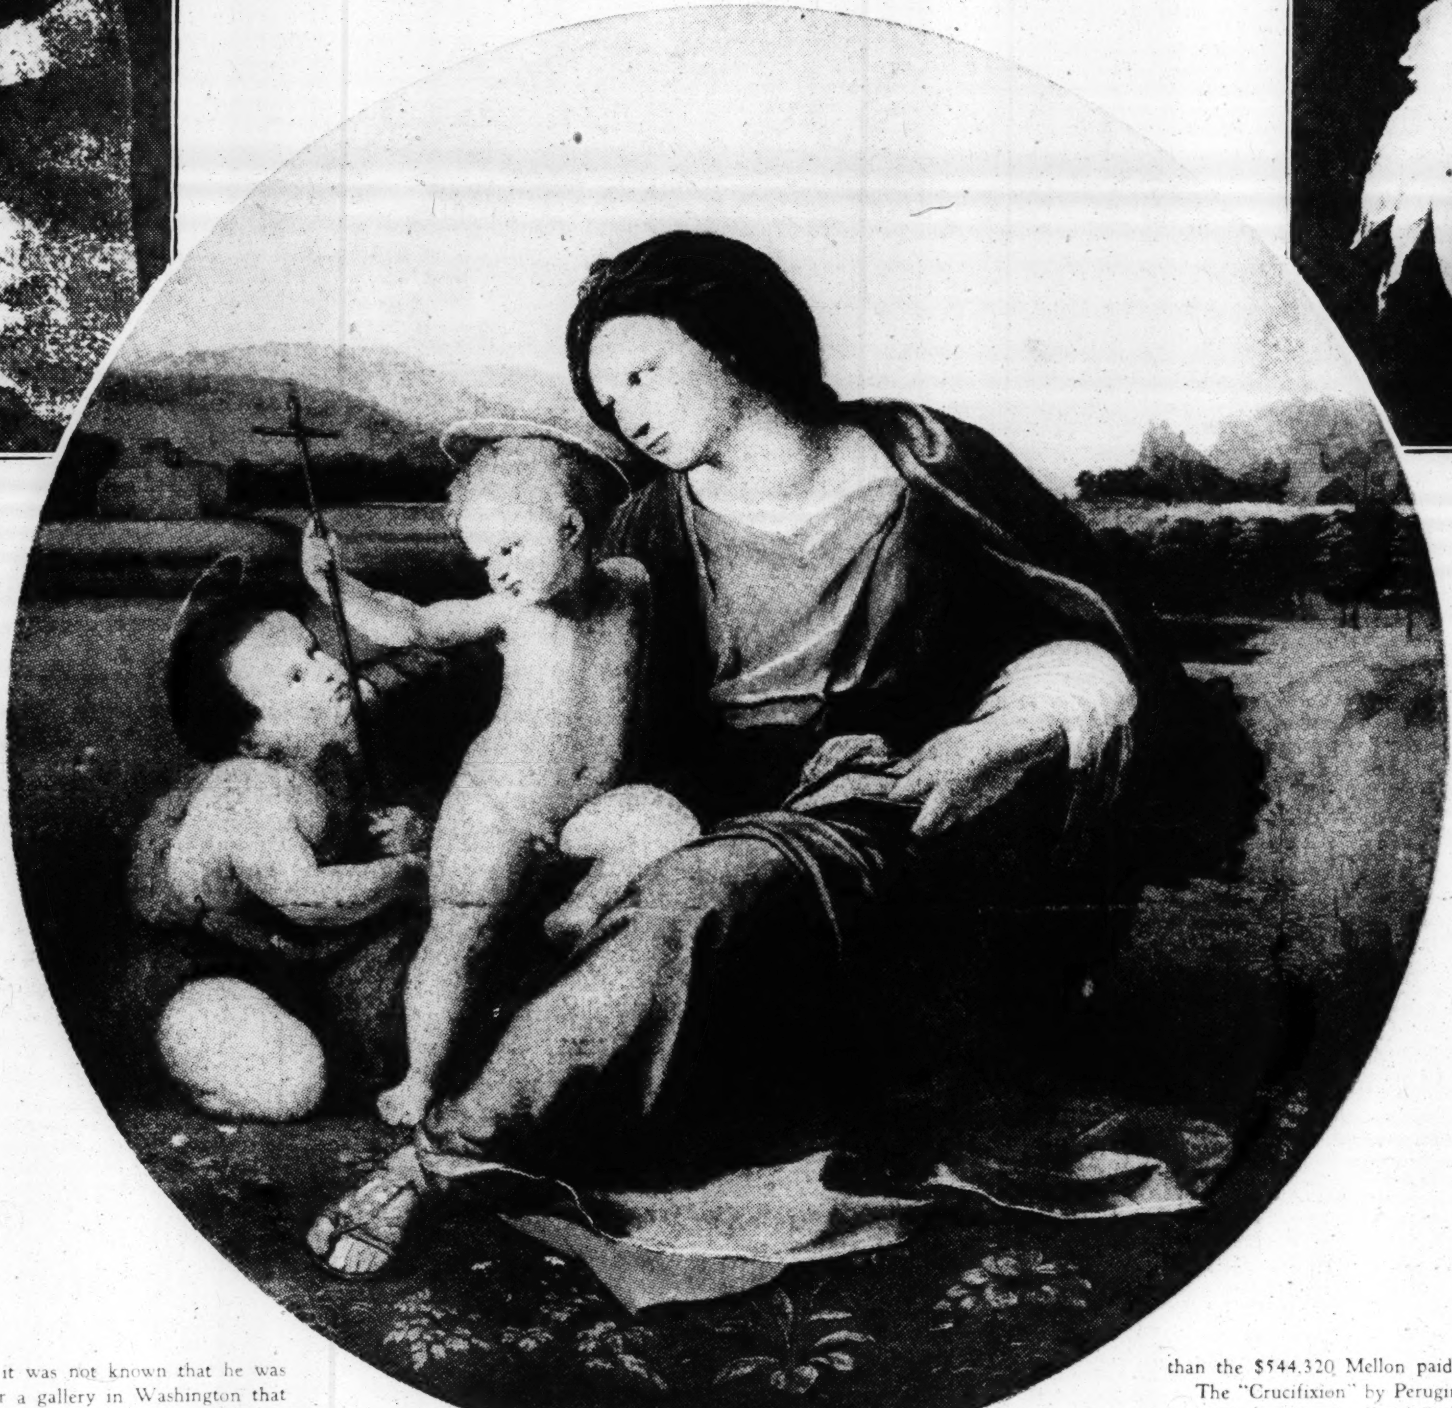
WHEN the Board of Tax Appeals at Washington began prying into the affairs of Andrew W. Mellon it was interested only in his income for 1931, and the amount of any additional income tax that might accrue, but its inquiry shed light upon the [illegible] art collection in America, and compelled him to divulge a nice little $19,000,000 secret [illegible] for years guarded with great care and [illegible] deception, for he had denied from time to time that he had purchased certain very valuable paintings which he now admits are in his possession.

What the board wanted to know was why Mellon paid $647,000 income tax in 1931, when it [illegible] from its investigations that he should have paid $3,089,000 more. Mellon contended that there were exemptions to which he was entitled. There was, for instance, the $3,241,250 that he spent for pictures that year. Something should be knocked off for that, he thought, especially as they were to be part of a $19,000,000 collection which he was planning to present, as a little surprise, to the nation.

It had been known, in spite of the consistent denials of the former Secretary of the Treasury, that he had some very fine pictures at his home here that must have cost a pretty penny, and it was considered certain that he had other art treasures hidden away [illegible]. And it leaked out occasionally that he had bought another masterpiece for a million or so, but it was not known that he was quietly building up a $19,000,000 collection as a starter for a gallery in Washington that he hoped and expected would overshadow the galleries of London and Paris. That was his little secret.

When a report came from Europe that he had bought another expensive picture over there, he would not admit it. He even derided the idea, but whether he meant that he would not be so extravagant or that a million dollar picture was nothing to get excited about was never quite clear.

It was that way when he bought the "Cowper Madonna," by Raphael, so named because it was brought to England by Lord Cowper, who was Ambassador to the Court [illegible] in the 18th century. There was an extra good reason for deprecating publicity about that, because it was not even in the million dollar class, having been acquired from the collection of Lady Desborough of Panshanger House, England, at a cost of only $800,000.



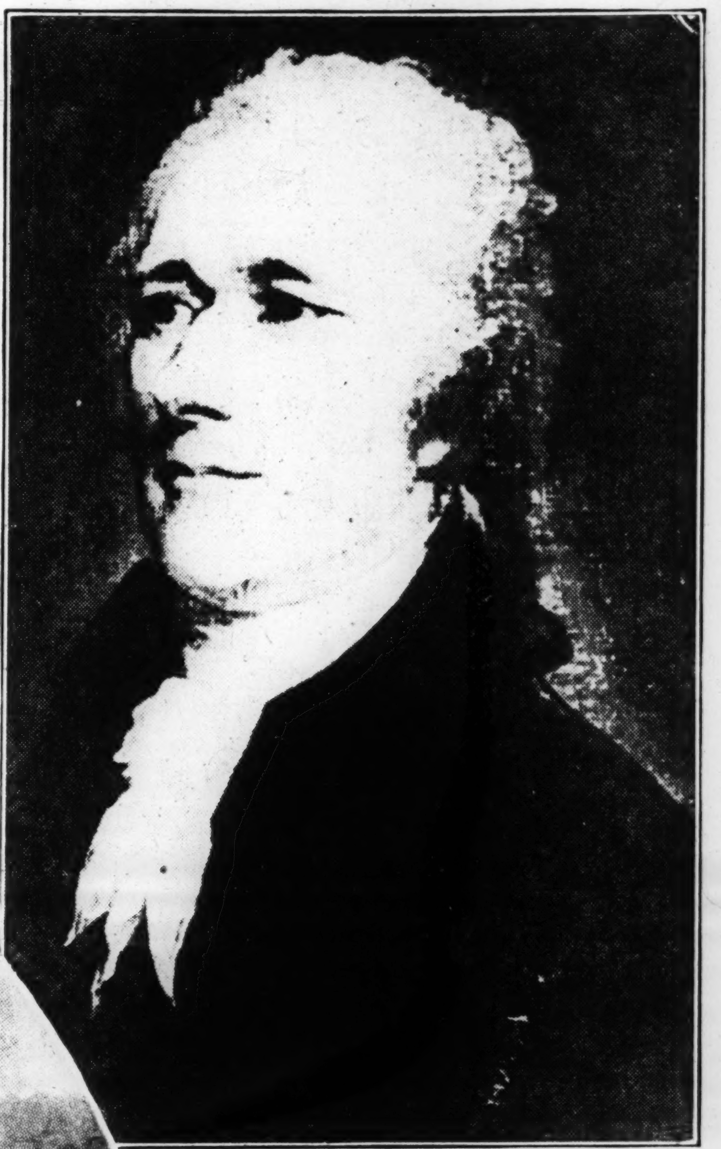
Raphael's "Madonna of the House of Alba."

That appears, however, to have been only one of his purchases that year. It was, at any rate, announced in the Russian newspaper, Renaissance, in September of that year, that Mellon had purchased for $800,000 from the Hermitage at Leningrad the "Annunciation" ascribed to Jan Van Eyck, with Knoedler of London and New York handling the sale and Paris dealers confirming it. Mellon denied it then and included it in a general denial that he launched on August 17, 1934, from his Dundelk Estate in Perthshire, Scotland. That denial was evoked by a report that he had bought Raphael's "Madonna of the House of Alba" from the Hermitage for $1,500,000. The report, published by the Journal des Debats, Paris, on the authority of its correspondent at Riga, Latvia, was that it was one of four Raphaels that had been sold to Mellon. Mellon's denials were sweeping. He had not bought the "Madonna of the House of Alba" or any other Russian paintings.

Art critics said there was no reason for Mellon to be ashamed of a purchase like that, as the "Madonna of the House of Alba" was regarded as the best of the Raphaels in the Soviet Musuem and the $1,500,000 which Mellon was understood to have paid for it would not be too much. There was no way to catch Mellon in a $1,500,000 fib, because original masterpieces come into the country duty free and there would be no records of the purchase in this country.

It appears, however, that there was a slight inaccuracy concerning the price that was paid, for it was announced that the amount was only $1,166,400.

The painting, a masterpiece of the Renaissance, executed in Rome in 1510, depicts the Virgin Mary with the Christ Child on her knees, accepting a cross from St. John. Its name is derived from the fact that it was once owned by the Duke of Alba, in Spain.



"Portrait of Alexander Hamilton," one of Mr. Mellon's distinguished predecessors in the Treasury, by John Trumbull.

It was not strange that reputed purchases from the Hermitage caused a buzz in the art world, even though they were denied by Mellon, for the Hermitage is comparable to the Louvre in France and became famous as the Imperial Gallery in the days of the Czars. It was started by Catherine the Great and has sheltered one of the most precious art collections of the world.

OTHER purchases by Mellon from the Hermitage, hitherto denied but now admitted, are Titian's "Toilet of Venus," Perugino's "Crucifixion," showing the Virgin, St. John, the Magdalene and St. Jerome, and Bonticelli's "Adoration of the Magi." For the lot Mellon is said to have paid $3,500,000. It was good business for Soviet Russia, especially in the case of the "Madonna of the House of Alba," for the price which Czar Nicholas I paid when he bought it from the Danish Ambassador at Madrid is said to have been a mere $70,000, so that the profit on the Mellon sale was $1,096,400.

"The Toilet of Venus" is one of the most famous of Titian's works. It is thought by many to be an idealized portrait of Titian's daughter. It had not found a purchaser at the time of Titian's death; it was sold by the artist's son to the Barbarigo family, to be sold later to Emperior Nicholas I for the Hermitage collection. What the Emperor paid for it is not disclosed, but it was probably a good deal less than the $544,320 Mellon paid for it.

The "Crucifixion" by Perugino, for which Mellon paid $195,615, is a triptych presented in 1496 to a church of the Dominicans in San Gimignano. It hung over an altar in this church until the French invasion under Napoleon, when it was sold and passed later into the hands of Prince Galitzin, from whom is was obtained by the Hermitage.

Recently, seeing that the secret was out anyway, the financier divulged some additional details about his purchases from the Soviet. It seems that when Knoedler and Co. had made preliminary negotiations for purchase of the Hermitage pictures, they came to Mellon and asked him to finance the venture. He agreed,

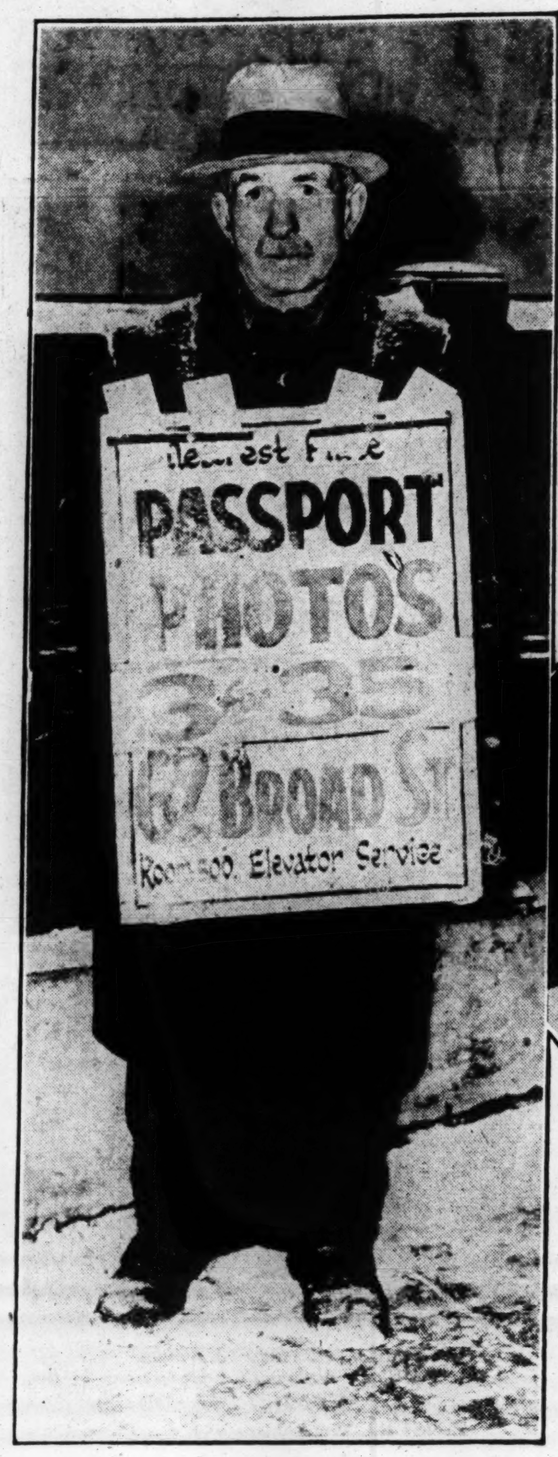
From Sandwich Man to the Man-Who-Thought-He-Was-God

The Pathetically Ironic Case of Frank Greges Who Stumbled on a Fortune, Restored It to Its Owners, Became Famous and Then Ran Amuck.



Frank Greges, as he looked in the days before fortune turned her ironic smile upon him.

Then one day—"I am God," thundered Greges. "I can kill a man by looking at him."

And then the final phase—Greges being led off to Bellevue Hospital by a policeman.

By JACK ALEXANDER

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

DUMB, cow-like Frank Greges, 67-year-old Lithuanian, squatted down between his sandwich boards one shivering day recently to pluck a wallet containing $42,000 in securities from the trampled slush outside the austere portals of J. P. Morgan & Co., Broad and Wall streets.

By the time the evening editions were on the street with the story of his restoration of the wallet to its owner, an America which had treated Greges shabbily for 48 years began to assume the gleaming glitter of his youthful dreams. He put aside the sandwich boards and accepted the patronizing praise and emoluments of the wealthy. Big people lauded his honesty and tossed him coins. Brokers and bankers shook his hand and slapped him on the back. Greges ate rich food and strutted in rich clothes.

Within three short weeks the pathetic immigrant became The-Man-Who-Thought-He-Was-God. From his luxury-twisted mind he hurled a curse of death at a fellow lodger and by one of the weirdest of coincidences the man dropped dead on the spot.

Screaming his identity with God, Greges was crammed into a straitjacket. Today he sits dully on a cot in the psychopathic ward of Bellevue Hospital, dumb and cow-like once again, under observation indefinitely. His delusion persists and it is unlikely that he will ever recover his mental balance. Even if he does, he will just be an anonymous $5-a-week sandwich man again, shuttling each day in a deadening routine from his Bowery flophouse to the financial center of the world and back again in the evening to the shambles. But The Street has had its laugh and its glow of almsgiving and once more they are saying along Broadway that New York Is The Town With a Heart.

Greges was born in Sadrw, Lithuania. When he was 19, he abandoned his plow and sailed for America on a tramp steamer in search of wealth. He learned the trade of metal polisher and worked at it until the beginning of the World War when he became a munitions worker at Penns Grove, N. J. This job lasted one week. The week marked a milestone in his life because he earned $35. It was the only week of his life in which he had earned more than $15. He never married. Once he wanted to, but the prospective bride made the mistake of inquiring how much his wages were. Greges backed out cagily and never got involved again.

Five years ago he lost his last steady job and became a floater. On the Bowery he learned of the $5-a-week to be made trudging the streets between sandwich boards. Soon he was patrolling the financial district, his signs proclaiming the virtues of passport photographs taken by the Bimberg Passport Photo Company, at 62 Broad street, at three for 35 cents. In the normal order of things Greges would probably have perished in a dark doorway in a few years of the ravages of age and Bowery "smoke" and gone up the East River on the sombre death barge to the Potters' Field; perhaps a cracked snapshot of himself and the few cents in his pocket would have been sent back to relatives in Lithuania who had already forgotten him.

But there in the dirty snow outside the greatest financial institution in the world lay a wallet dropped by Edward Stegmaier, 22, of 2734 McIntyre street, Elmhurst, Queens, messenger for Belden & Co., brokers, 1 Wall street, and toward it, as if irrevocably propelled by the hand of fate, shuffled a tiny man, almost lost between his boards. No one saw the wallet, few saw the nondescript pawn of the gods, with his scraggly gray mustache, his stubbly face and his ragged garb. But the ragged man saw the wallet.

ONCE before in Pittsburgh such a thing had happened to Greges. At a dance he had picked up a woman's purse containing $60. He had made the rounds of the hall asking who had lost it and had come upon a woman who was weeping. When she had finished describing the purse, he had handed it over without question.

This simple, kindly habit pattern returned. He sought out Patrolman John Grace, of the Old Slip Station, and Patrolman Grace sought out Acting Lieut. James Fitzpatrick and thus the lost goods were returned. Greges went on his uneventful way, up Nassau, over Liberty, down Broadway, over Wall, down Broad street, dully, ploddingly.

Belden & Co. counted the securities. Astonishingly, they were all there—seven of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., five of Phillips Petroleum Co. and six of General Electric. Word traveled through the district of the sandwich man's honesty. Reporters, photographers and newsreel men flocked to the scene. They found Greges walking his beat. The newsreel men had him re-enact the finding of the wallet.

Greges was at first suspicious.

"Oh, what the hell," he said, shrugging. "The package she no belong to me."

But fame was not to be denied. An agent for Belden & Co. persuaded Greges to doff his boards and come to the marble and gold office of the firm. Greges obeyed with a look of near-panic in his pale blue eyes. He seemed to want to bolt.

No less a personage than W. H. Combs, partner, greeted him and sat him in a plush upholstered chair. The firm's gratitude was vouchsafed to the drifter—a steady job as messenger at $20 a month "until the warm weather comes."

"But I don't know," Greges protested. "You say so, but I don't know. Maybe you say soon, get the hell out of here, you bum. I don't know."

But the flood of congratulations soon quieted his distrust. And the blessing of Abe Bimberg, his old employer, clinched the deal. Abe said if the new job didn't pan out, he could always come back and tote a sandwich sign for him again.

"O. K.," said Greges.

As Combs walked out of the building with him, Greges' eyes were beginning to glow faintly with anticipations of luxury. Soon he was posing before a mirror in the Weber & Heilbroner men's store at 27 New street, arrayed in a new powder-blue suit, a grey hat with a snap brim, a black tie, a clean white shirt and shiny black shoes. Over his arm was a new dark grey overcoat with a belted back. A handkerchief protruded from his breast pocket.

Greges stared at the image. Not a muscle moved for a full minute and then tears began to trickle down his face and splash on the thick red carpet.

"And I don't have to pay," he breathed. "God must have done it. I never thought——."

Combs footed the bill of $73.55. Now, he told Greges, you must wear this new suit every day. Greges objected—his old tattered suit was good enough for week days. He would wear the new one on Sundays, the splendid new one. Combs finally convinced him that his new job would call for use of the new suit on week days. Greges was installed in an office where he could push a row of pearl buttons on a desk when he wasn't carrying securities. More money came rolling in. Robert H. Mainzer, lawyer, sent him a gift of $25 and was photographed giving Greges homely advice. Mainzer also wrote him a long sentimental letter on the rewards of honesty and clean living which was printed in full in the newspapers with his signature.

Other gifts raised the donation list to $180. Greges moved from the Savoy Hotel, a Bowery establishment, to the Columbus Hotel, also a Bowery establishment. He got a 30-cents-a-night room instead of a 20-cent one. The 30-cent rooms have a mirror and are closer to the common bath room. His breakfast budget rose from 5 cents (bowl of soup) to 25 cents (bacon and eggs). He took the elevated to Wall street, instead of walking. He bought shaves, sometimes twice a day.

Wall street read on the ticker: "Frank Greges, the sandwich man, is earning the envy of many on Wall street as the only person who has made any money down here in the last week."

Standing before a microphone that night, Greges haltingly told a radio audience: "I think God directed me to that wallet in the snow. I'm going to church now and I'm not going to let this get to my head."

Not many days had passed before the Belden employes began to note a change in the meek Greges. He halted newspaper men seeking interviews with firm members and insisted they interview him. He accused the office management of diverting his fan mail. He came close to violence when reporters, calling for statements on the Supreme Court's gold clause decision, ignored him.

At the Columbus Hotel employes grinned when they saw the little man knock on his own door and announce himself before entering. Other lodgers heard him conversing animatedly with himself.

One night, shortly after midnight, Greges began shouting as he ascended the stairs to his room. Frank Hughes, night clerk, ran up to rebuke him for disturbing the other lodgers. Greges swung ferociously upon him and knocked him down the stairs.

DOWN the hall ambled Michael J. Gryzwackz, a Bowery derelict.

"Stop!" shrieked the mighty Greges.

The man halted, staring at the mad midget through rheumy eyes.

"I am God!" thundered Greges. "I can kill a man by looking at him;" See!"

The eyes of the newcomer bulged. He staggered, stumbled and fell to the floor, dead. Doctors said that he had died of fright and the inroads of three serious diseases.

At Bellevue, Greges raved: "I got a $15 hat and $10 shoes and people stare at me all the time. That's why I kill them. People are jealous of me. I am God. So I kill them."

To Dr. Caster N. Colbert, psychiatrist, he said: "People are jealous of me. I am God. I guess that is why. J. P. Morgan and my brother are in this hospital. I can hear them now, the devils. If I could look at them I would kill them with my look. My brother got lots of money and what do I get? My head chopped off. I am going to kill you with my look."

Dr. Colbert reported as follows on The-Man-Who-Thought-He-Was-God: "He is the victim of too much food. His system is not used to it. Abundance of rich foods developed so much blood that his weak heart could not take care of it. A form of arteriosclerosis followed, affecting his mental processes. Recovery is questionable. His mind is not strong."

American Yacht to Race in English Waters—

For the First Time Since the Reign of Queen Victoria—and Gerard B. Lambert, Formerly of St. Louis, Will Be Skipper of the Contesting Sloop, the Yankee.

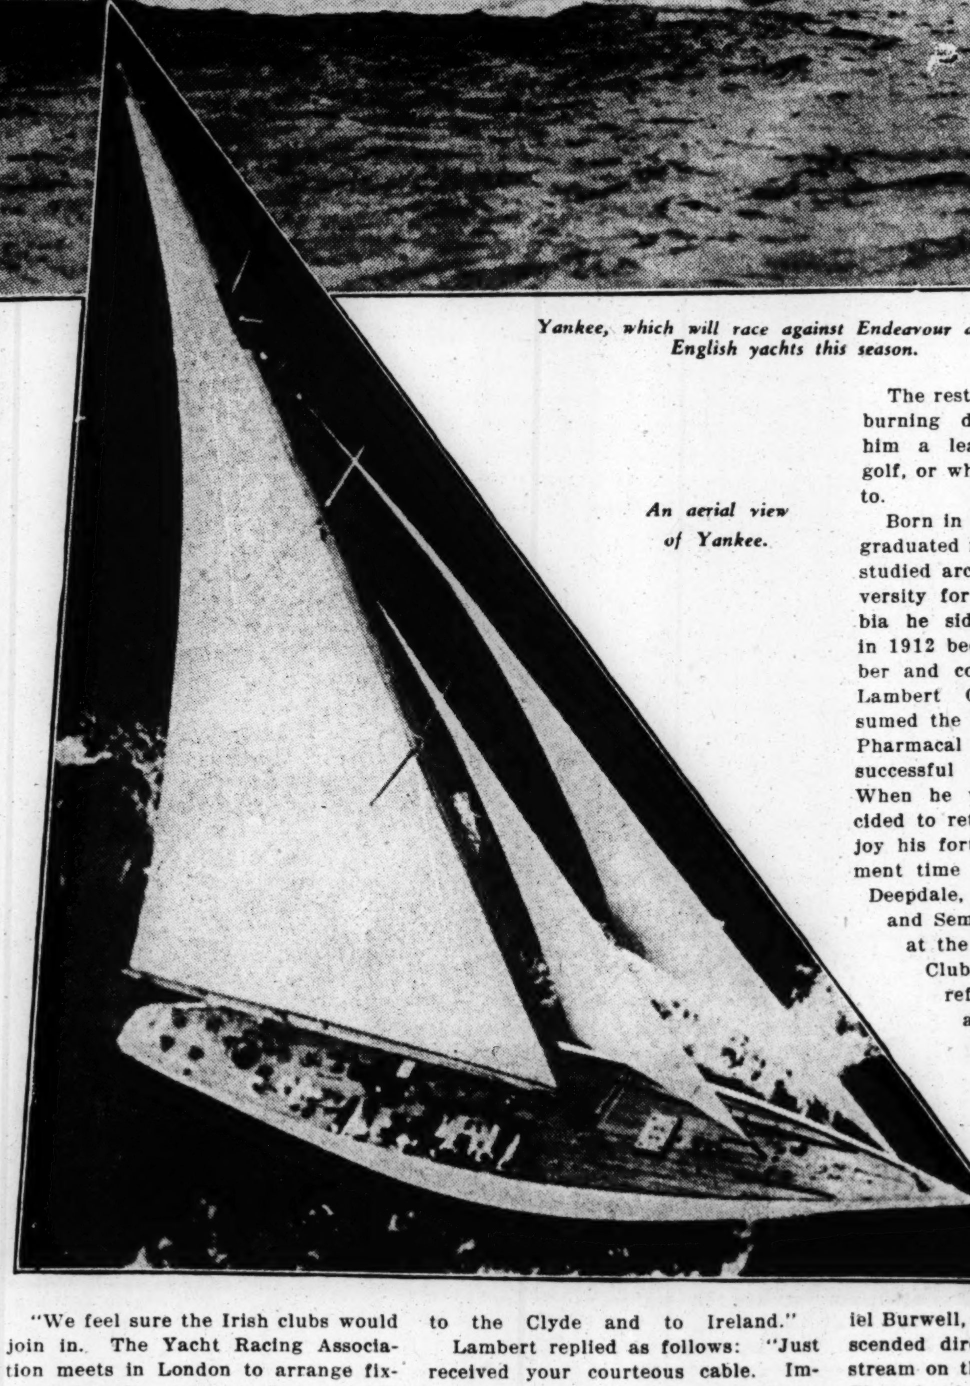
Yankee, which will race against Endeavour and other English yachts this season.



An aerial view of Yankee.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

THIS season, for the first time since the reign of Queen Victoria, an American Class J sloop, the Yankee, will race in British waters and the honor of representing the United States falls not to one of the nation's veteran skippers, born to the salt air, but to a native of St. Louis and a comparative newcomer to the sailing world. Yachtsmen here and abroad have acclaimed the decision of Gerard Barnes Lambert to break with tradition and sail in the European events. In England, especially, yachting circles are buzzing with activity and discussion of the coming event. King George has ordered a special renovation of the royal racing yacht, Britannia, and is reported itching to get at the helm and match canvas with Lambert's Yankee. The last time Britannia met an American sloop was in 1894, when she took the measure of the Vigilant, which was fresh from success in the international cup races off Sandy Hook, with the late George Gould as skipper. At that time Britannia was owned by the Prince of Wales, later to become Edward VII.

In 1928 the owner of the sloop Katoura announced his intention of taking her to England and created such a stir that two British sloops were built to meet her, Astra and Cambria. But Katoura did not come up to expectations and the special matches were canceled.

From the standpoint of American yachtsmen, the contest with the royal yacht is overshadowed by Yankee's performance as an indication of what the United States may expect in the next defense of America's Cup, since Yankee at this writing is the outstanding candidate for the defense honors. Rainbow, which successfully defended last fall, probably will not be put into service this year by Harold S. Vanderbilt. The only other prospective candidate is Frederick H. Prince's Weetamoe. No other Class J boats, so far as is known, are to be commissioned.

Lambert's overseas venture is traceable directly to his intimate association with T. O. M. Sopwith, skipper of the challenger, Endeavour, during the cup races off Newport last September. The pair were constantly in each other's company and Lambert kept his yacht Vanitie in commission solely to act as trial horse for Endeavour. At the close of the event, the losing British sportsman expressed the hope that Lambert would acquire a new yacht and race on the other side of the Atlantic. Within a month Lambert had purchased the Yankee and issued orders for her extensive overhauling.

Besides Britannia and Endeavour, Yankee will meet Velsheda, Shamrock V, Astra and Candida in a long schedule of races. The season for big yachts starts at Harwich on June 1 and covers 44 contests in various ports on the east coast of England and in the English Channel as far as Falmouth, Cornwall. In the middle of July the scene shifts to Havre, France, for three races, then goes back to English waters for the Ryde and Cowes weeks. Cowes week, best known race week in English yachting, is the first week of August. Then for the rest of August regattas are held in the "west country," winding up at Dartmouth.

"IT will be an ambitious program for Yankee, but she is a great yacht and will be at her best," writes one yachting expert.

For the undertaking Yankee is being re-rigged and equipped with a welded steel mast, like the Endeavour's, and a new solid bar rigging.

When news of the projected adventure came to Scotland, the commodores of the Clyde yacht clubs forwarded an invitation, through Sir Thomas Dunlop, commodore of the Royal Clyde Club, in the following cablegram: "At a meeting of the flag officers of the Clyde yacht clubs it was learned that you were contemplating visiting British waters with Yankee next season. This would be very opportune, as we are having special regattas in connection with the twenty-fifth anniversary of King George's accession. We on the Clyde extend to you our most cordial invitation to take part and warrant you a hearty reception. The Clyde fortnight begins at the end of June and gives nine days' racing.

"We feel sure the Irish clubs would join in. The Yacht Racing Association meets in London to arrange fixtures for the season and we would like your permission to say this would interest you, provided other Class J yachts are also coming to the Clyde and to Ireland."

Lambert replied as follows: "Just received your courteous cable. Impossible, of course, for me to know definite plans at this early date, but unless something arises to prevent, I shall look forward with pleasure to joining other J boats in your regattas. I appreciate very much indeed the cordiality of your message."

The possibility of accepting the Scotch invitation definitely waned when the Yacht Racing Association at its London meeting decided that the J-boats would not be taken to the Clyde but would stick to British waters, except for the jaunt to Havre.

Lambert's meteoric rise to the top bracket of American yachtsmen is a phenomenon which alternately dumbfounds and tickles the veterans. Old salts have dubbed him the "mystery man of yachting" because it is an axiom that clever racing helmsmen are born, not made. He was middle-aged before he took a deep interest in sailing, yet inside of seven years he has learned yachts from keel to mast head and become a feared adversary. Some observers rank him among the first 10 in America. And as a sportsman he is universally rated a topnotcher. While he was learning, former Secretary of the Navy, Charles Francis Adams, dean of American helmsmen, and George Nichols, famous yachtsman, were frequent guests in Vanitie's afterguard. Lambert learned many a trick under their tutelage.

The rest of his success is due to the burning determination which made him a leader in business, finance, golf, or whatever else he set his hand to.

Born in St. Louis in 1886, Lambert graduated from Princeton in 1908 and studied architecture at Columbia University for two years. After Columbia he sidetracked architecture and in 1912 became president of the lumber and cotton firm of Gerard B. Lambert Company. Later he assumed the presidency of the Lambert Pharmacal Company, a marvel of successful business management. When he was 42 years old he decided to retire from business and enjoy his fortune. Much of his retirement time was spent on the links—Deepdale, Shinnecock, Gulf Stream and Seminole golf clubs—and part at the hunt at the Myopia Hunt Club, Boston. More was spent refurnishing Carter Hall, his ancestral home at Millwood, Virginia, in the picturesque Shenandoah Valley, a stately, white-pillared mansion which is one of the historic manors of the South. It was built in 1788 by Colonel Nathaniel Burwell, from whom Lambert is descended directly. Lambert stocked a stream on the estate with 2000 trout. Then he built a Colonial house at Princeton, New Jersey, for week-ends.

But his energies demanded a more dynamic outlet and during 1928 yachting claimed him. Since 1911 Lambert had been a member of the New York Yacht Club, but his only sailing experience had come during a cruise in 1927 on the chartered schooner Sonnica. Later in 1928 he gained additional experience in racing a little Sound Interclub sloop, 28 feet over all, and during that winter purchased Vanitie and Atlantic. Vanitie had been built in 1914 for the Gardner Cup race. Atlantic was an old-timer, a schooner which in 1905 had won the Kaiser's Cup. Lambert had Atlantic refitted as she had been in 1905 and entered her in the 1928 race to Spain with a professional master in command. She set a record which still stands for the Atlantic crossing in her class—12 days, 4 hours, 1 minute.

Enthusiastic as he was over Atlantic, in which he makes his home when the weather grows warm, Lambert found himself even more greatly attached to Vanitie, a fleeter craft.

By 1930, finding Vanitie outclassed by the newer boats, he experimented with new rigs aided by Starling Burgess, noted designer. Soon he had a taller mast than any other and 600 feet more sail than before. These alterations put Vanitie out of Class J, but Lambert kept her for trials.

IN 1931 entreaties from business associates persuaded Lambert to interrupt his career of gentleman sportsman long enough to become president of the Gillette Safety Razor Company. Taking the post without salary, Lambert became one of the hardest working men in the organization and his yachting lagged a little. Then came the cup races of last fall and the stimulating companionship of Sopwith. Yankee was added to the Lambert stable and his career as a helmsman approached its zenith.

Yankee was one of the series of 1930 boats that forced Vanitie to remodel her dress. Constructed at a cost of $500,000, she was Boston's entry in the trials to determine the America's Cup defender. But while remarkably fast in a strong breeze, Yankee proved a failure in calm weather, losing out to Enterprise and Weetamoe. The fact that in strong weather she set a record for a 30-mile triangular course that still stands—2 hours, 47 minutes, 59 seconds—failed to revive the hopes of the syndicate backing her and she was hauled.

Not until last year did another syndicate, headed by Charles Francis Adams, look once more with favor upon Yankee. With a fund collected in part from public-spirited Boston yachtsmen, the syndicate lengthened Yankee's water line, sharpened up her forward sections, purchased new sails and rigging.

With Adams at the helm, Yankee trimmed Rainbow in the early preliminary sprints and up to August was the outstanding candidate for the honor of defending the cup. Then Rainbow showed a sudden improvement and won out.

Yankee is of steel construction and is bronze plated. She was designed by Paine, Belknap & Skene and built by George Lawley & Son Corporation, Neponset, Massachusetts. Her length over all is 126 feet; net tonnage, 136. She has a keel, with auxiliary centerboard, and is of the flush deck type.

PHILADELPHIA. DEAN CHARLES H. LaWALL of Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science met a minor setback, a few nights ago, in his campaign to widen gastronomic horizons. He believes that all mankind, at the table, is divided into two parts: people who will eat anything, the "toujour gai," or always happy; and people who will taste nothing without a proper introduction, the approval of Emily Post and the seal of a housekeeping institute.

The latter are classified by Dr. LaWall as the "immer traurig," or eternally glum. It is his conviction that food prejudices are unreasoned and impermanent, a vexatious restraint on the blissful potentialities of the trenchermen, and an economic liability. It is his chosen mission, in his modest way, to make the world's palate truly cosmopolitan, to educate it in the pleasures and benefits of "eating in all languages," and to this end he performed an experiment.

All through supper he had hopes of that experiment. His guests seemed in excellent mood. They ate with relish, and there were compliments for chicken a la king. It was not until the coffee was served that doubts arose—to be exact, at the precise moment when he told them they had eaten, not chicken, but rattlesnake.

Dean LaWall was able to inform the disturbed—and not all his guests felt perfectly at ease—that the experiment was, after all, quite modest, for rattlesnake meat is gaining some recognition as a delicacy. Why, he said, people have eaten and enjoyed black beetles, palm weevils, train oil, hides and tallow, puppy dogs, dried octopus, elephant toes, monkeys—and "cold missionary salad!"

No American of 75 years ago ate tomatoes; 50 years ago grapefruit was unknown; the honeydew melon came to the table only in 1908; frog legs or snails turned the stomachs of our Yankee forefathers, and the Puritans never heard of caviar—and in 1935, Americans think the Parisian idea of caviar on pancakes is pretty terrible until they try it.

American housewives were adamant against a food conservation campaign, in the World War, to make them see the food value in the flesh of whales and reptiles. But other Americans, down in the Canal Zone, order iguana sandwiches as casually and often as their friends "back in the States" order chicken, and some of them can't tell the difference between lizard flesh and white meat. And the inevitable conch of the native Caribbean races—conch soup, conch a la Creole, conch in every guise and variety of dish—is accepted by Americans with just as much relish as the inevitable rice.

"ACCORDING to Holy Writ," says Dr. LeWall, "man was at first a vegetarian. Later he had permission to eat 'every moving thing that liveth.' After a thousand years of unrestricted diet, along came Moses with a lot of prohibitory laws still observed by the Jews and Mohammedans. Several thousand years after Moses, St. Paul said, 'Whatsoever is set before you, eat; asking no questions for conscience sake.'

"Since then man has not only eaten what has been set before him, but has gone out of his way, in many instances, to find new and surprising foods. There is very little that has lived or grown, or is living or growing, which somebody, somewhere, did not eat and enjoy."

Porpoise steak was a delicacy to Queen Elizabeth. Henry VIII liked nothing better than eel pie, and in Roman times, Vadius Pollio went him one better by having the lampreys fed on the bodies of slaves slain for the purpose. Heliogabalus, whose taste in brains was less academic than literally gustatory, once ordered the heads of 600 ostriches, and Cleopatra once supped on a melted pearl, weighing 74 carats, worth 6,000,000 sesterces.

The Romans left nothing untasted, "from the ostrich to the cicada, from the dormouse to the wild boar," said Brillat-Savarin, the French jurist made famous by a book on food, and he gave the dormouse recipe: "Bake in pork fat bits of dormouse meat, stuff with pepper, kernels, asafoetida, cover with sauce, place in a tiled receptacle and cook in the oven."

It may surprise some readers that asafoetida, a smelly substance used by simple folk in amulets to keep disease away, was a choice spice in ancient times. But it may surprise them a lot more to know that it is an ingredient of some of their favorite sauces today.

In early France, 144 oysters as an appetizer was not unknown. At a banquet, Grimod de la Reyniere was moved by a new dish to exclaim, "I'd eat my own father with such a sauce!" Alexander Dumas, especially fond of birdnest soup, boasted that he had tasted every available food in the world. And Robert Louis Stevenson asserted that "to discover the savor of an olive denoted as noteworthy an advance in civilization as to learn to appraise the beauty of the coloring of the setting sun."

While the early French went in for larks, mullets, eels and the soup of swallows' nests, the British menu—as at the coronation of James II, when 1445 different dishes were listed—included cocks' combs, cockles, young hares and tags' tongues.

Dining in Britain today is notoriously unadventurous, though the isles abound in hedgehogs and squirrels, dormice and skylarks, delicacies now in other lands or once in their own. Frenchmen eat frog legs, eels, clams and snails; Englishmen scorn them all, but choose mussels, which Americans, in turn, usually refuse to taste.

Dandelions, poppies and the sea holly all make fine salads, says Dr. LaWall. The tansy is a delicious herb for omelettes. Acorns make fine bread. The cowslip is "every bit as good" as spinach, and ferns and seaweed, which Anglo-Saxons consider inedible, are favorites of the Japanese.

In fact, the Japanese eat less meat than seaweed. Their popular foods include bamboo sprouts, Hindu lotus roots, lilies, shark, squid and smoked sea cucumber. Neither they nor the Chinese nor the Koreans use milk, cheese or butter, while the Tibetans consume a great deal of dairy foods.

"In the Chinese markets," Dr. LaWall relates, "rats sell at two shillings a dozen; the hind quarters of dogs hang beside those of sheep; edible birds' nests fetch double their weight in silver. The bird nests are considered tasty because of a gelatinous substance secreted through the salivary glands of the swift, a bird of the Malay Peninsula. The Chinese consider these gelatinous bits in their soup extremely choice.

"Singapore has the largest birdnest markets in the world. Nests without feathers, the most valuable, bring as much as $30 a pound. There are about 50 nests to the pound, and wealthy Chinese often serve this soup at the end rather than beginning of a meal.

"Perhaps the national poverty of China has led its people to great lengths in economy. After they have wound the silk from the cocoons, they have been known to eat the chrysalis of the silkworm. They also eat salted earthworms, pigeons' eggs, pounded shrimps and maggots. They make dumplings out of sharks' fins by boiling the fresh fin, removing the skin, bone and meat, and leaving only the cartilage, allowing it to dry and then cooking it with foods and spices so that it absorbs their taste and becomes soft and tender.

"Chinese menus of the upper classes list duck's tongue, the nose of moose deer, the feet and trunk of elephants, and 'deudeng,' an expensive delicacy imported from Siam and consisting of buffalo muscle dried in the sun.

"Another peculiarly Chinese dish is eggs preserved by pickling. These are of two groups: eggs kept in strong brine for three months, and eggs coated with a mixture of clay and rice husks and kept for one or two years.

"Ten-year-old eggs, served raw with ginger, are saved for the grandest ceremonies. They are really milder than some of the strong cheeses we eat."

The Brahmins of India dine on porcupine, rhinoceros steak and tortoise. Grasshoppers, in the Philippines, are dried, cured and carried around like candy. Dr. LaWall says they taste something like ginger. Choice bits of meat, for the natives, are obtained from the bats of the Philippines. The Maoris of New Zealand eat woodgrubs. Australian aborigines eat ants, caterpillars, cicadas, kangaroo tails and rats, consider snakes a delicacy and feed convalescents with sea slugs.

SHARKS and dogfish are eaten in the Hebrides, and the flesh of the skate, preferably when it is beginning to spoil, on the Island of St. Kilda. Young seagulls are delicacies in Labrador. The people of Lapland make bread from the bark of a pine or birch and make a drink from whale oil.

Which is the more fantastic, he asks: the brick tea of Hankow, the blood bread of Finland, the Italian's chocolate paste in sausage skins, the dahlia wafers of the Antilles, the beeswax-covered roe of Greece, the mutton-stuffed vine leaves of Turkey—or the American's chops, made from an animal immemorially synonymous with filth?

Environment, custom and prejudice, he says, determine what each nation eats and what it abhors. Environment loses importance with the development of transportation, custom and prejudice remain. "What seems necessary," in order to widen gastronomic horizons, "is really courage," he says. "Can you imagine a coward being the first man to swallow an oyster?"

MIMOSA A LA SOUTHERN FRANCE—Take the golden balls of the mimosa plant. Solidify them in sugar. This makes a fine sweetmeat.

GROUNDNUT CHOP A LA WEST AFRICA—*Boil a goodly portion of rice. Add to it some plantain, one boiled egg and a portion of okra. Boil again. Make several dough dumplings. Stew a chicken. Pour it over the dumplings and the boiled ingredients. Over the entire concoction pour a gravy thickened with finely ground peanuts and seasoned with a generous amount of pepper. A different movie star will make his or her appearance in this space every week. Accompanying will be three costumes this particular player wore in various roles played on the screen. Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in the proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly. This week's star is Mary Boland. THE CHARACTERS

BILL BUNNY—Buddy's and Bob's father.

BETTY BUNNY — Their dear old mother.

Buddy's and Bob's mother and father don't know them since King Winter turned them into snow. When they tried to go into the house their mother thought that they were just some snow that had drifted in, and pushed them outside. Then their father came out and shoveled them away from the door. Poor little Bunnys, they don't know what to do. We see them telling their troubles to some snowflakes as

THE PLAY BEGINS

BUDDY BUNNY—Gee, it's terrible when your own mother and dad don't know you and won't let you in the house.

BOB BUNNY—I wish King Winter hadn't changed us to snow. There isn't any fun being a Snow Bunny.

FLUFFY—How you talk. Soon spring will be here and we'll melt and go dancing along in a brook and run into a big river and then we'll flow into the big ocean and—

BOB BUNNY—You mean we'll melt and turn into water?

FLEECY—Yes. You'll like it, it's lots of fun. (But Buddy and Bob aren't listening. They are thinking that if they turn into water their mother and dad never will see them again. Then suddenly they feel very warm. They look around and see a beautiful lady and a little old man who is carrying a torch. They are terribly frightened and climb a tree to get away from the man with the torch. Miss Spring, for the beautiful lady is she, sees this and comes over.)

BUDDY BUNNY—Please don't let him melt us. We're not snowflakes. We're Buddy and Bob Bunny and we live here. King Winter turned us into snow because he wanted us to live in his Land of Snow.

MISS SPRING—All right, my little talking Snow Bunnys. Come down and Mr. Thaw will melt you and when you are dry you will be your old selves again. (And now it's morning, and Betty and Bill Bunny are up and preparing to eat breakfast.)

BILL BUNNY—Gee, isn't it great? It feels just like spring!

BETTY BUNNY — (Sadly.) Yes, it does. I wish Buddy and Bob were here. They always liked spring. (She sighs.) I'm going to open the window. (She goes to the window, and, looking out, sees Buddy and Bob drying in the sun. She is too surprised to say anything. She just dashes madly out of the house and the next minute is holding her two boys tightly in her arms.)

BETTY BUNNY—Oh, I'm so glad you came home! Where have you been? (And wasn't she surprised when the boys told her, among other things, that they were home the night before, but she had pushed them out!)

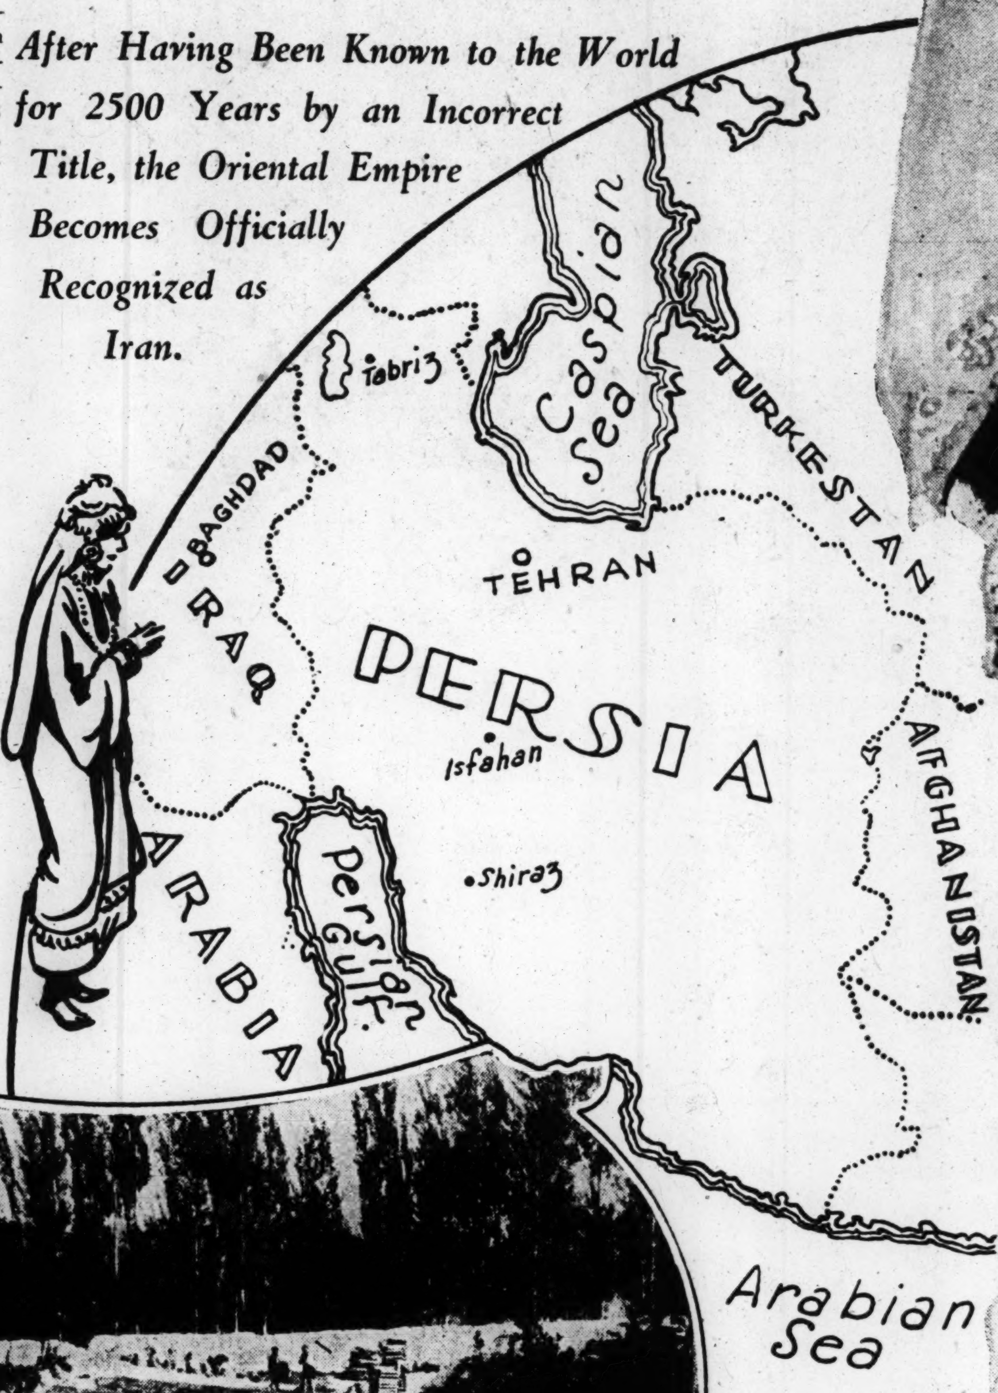
PERSIA CHANGES ITS NAME

After Having Been Known to the World for 2500 Years by an Incorrect Title, the Oriental Empire Becomes Officially Recognized as Iran.



Riza Shah Pahlevi.

TEHRAN.

THROUGH an official order, the Shah's Government has decided that the use of the ancient and famous name of Persia must cease on March 21, the Persian New Year, from which date the vernacular term "Iran" (pronounced E-rahn) will take its place.

In some quarters, especially among the historian-philosophers, also the philologists, the change is viewed as but another symptom of the mania of nationalism that is now sweeping the whole world. Be that as it may, the rulers of Persia, a land long steeped in the mysticism and romance of the East, believe that the world should call their country by the name the Persians themselves use, and have used from time immemorial, namely, Iran, which means "the land of the Aryans." Thus the new name is not without ethnological as well as geographical significance in that it recalls the nation's proudest boast that the Aryan race was cradled there.

The Shah's Government is convinced that the nation's old name is no longer fitting, since it derives from Pars, only one of the country's provinces, whereas Iran invokes the ancient glories by its former application to the entire region where Cyrus, Darius and Xerxes had their mighty empire.

Throughout the world foreign embassies and legations have been notified of the change, and nervous diplomats accredited to the court of the Pahlevi Shah are doubtless already intoning such agreeable phrases as 'le beau pays d'Iran" in preparation for the New Year reception on which the inadvertent utterance of that once forbidden "word" would surely cast a chill. But, while foreign residents in Persia will have to fall in with the new official use, the Persian Government can hardly hope that the names which Herodotus first made familiar to the outside world will be discarded after 25 centuries.

FOR those who take their geography seriously—the hobbyists whose sole joy in life is the studying of maps and poring over the pages of atlases and spinning around the paper-mache globes based on Mercator's projection—the change in names is most unwelcome. They will ask why they should conform to Persian usage or why their non-conformity should offend Persian susceptibilities.

Again, for many, not necessarily geographers, historians or philologists, the "Law of the Medes and Persians" is proverbial, and one not subject to governmental whimsy. This particular class of anti-name-changers will not easily be persuaded to invest in Iranian carpets, to compliment their wives on the Iranian lamb collars of their winter coats, or to write next month to the nurseryman for a consignment of "Iranicaries."

Amongst the cat lovers of the world, especially those who go in for rearing Toms and Tabithas of distinguished Oriental lineage, the change from Persia to Iran seems not so much a geographic and historical heresy as a grievous slur upon animals that once were gods.

But this name-changing business of the Shah's Government cannot be compared to changes that have taken place elsewhere. It is true that the name Pars, from which "Persia" springs, is applied only to one province of that kingdom. After all, England takes its name from only one of its medieval invaders. The Germans call their country Deutschland, but raise no objection to the American and English use of the classical "Germany" or the French "Allemagne."

Some recent changes in the names of cities are defensible. Take, for example, Christiania, a relatively modern name, though utterly disliked by Norwegians, since it was a constant reminder of Danish supremacy. And so it became Oslo.

Russia now writes itself with initial letters—U. S. S. R. Strictly speaking, politically, geographically, or even historically, there is no Russia today, and there hasn't been any such country since the day on which the former land of the Tsars became the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

But the world still talks about Russia, as if it were a live political entity.

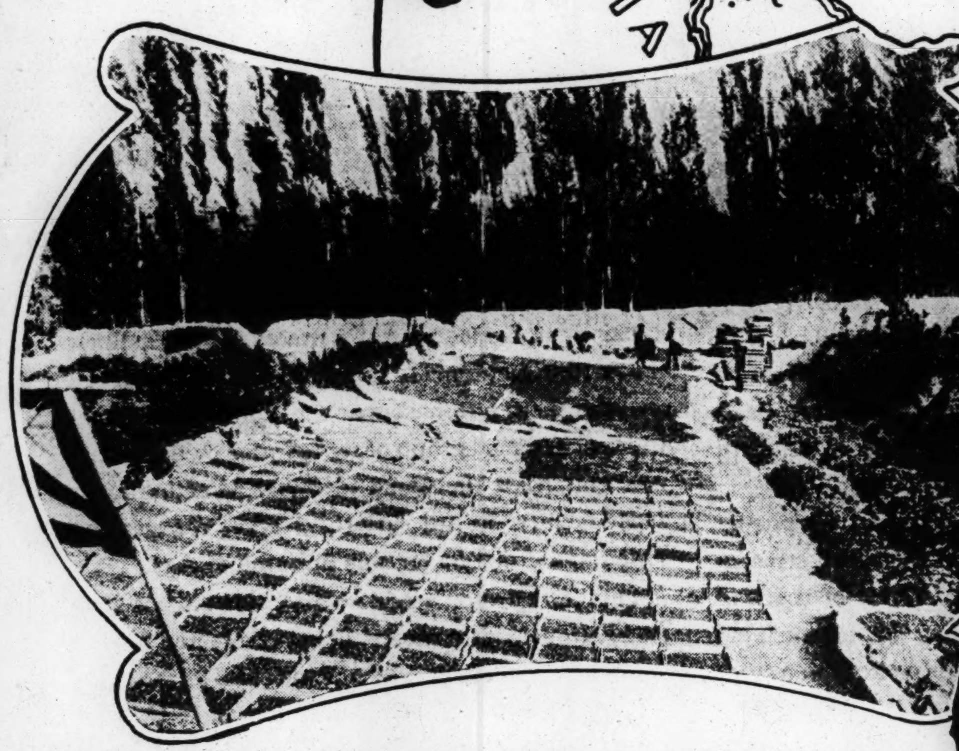
Ireland—the Erin of song, romance, poetry—is now the Irish Free State or the Saorstat Eireann. No longer, politically speaking, is there an Ireland. The 26 counties of the South constitute, since December 6, 1921, a new nation, with its own place in the political firmament of the world's Powers. Northern Ireland—not Ireland—is made up of the six counties of the North.

However, despite its political and geographical inexactitude, the world continues to talk and write of Ireland.

IN connection with names and nationalism, it remained for Adolf Hitler to stir up the Netherlanders as to the significance of the word 'Dutch." In the language of the Netherlands (Nederlandschtaal), there is no such word as 'Dutch." And, again, the world talks of Holland instead of The Netherlands.

The world today hears little of Manchuria, but, thanks to Japan, Manchoukuo looms largely in the headlines of international politics. On February 18, 1932, the three northern provinces of Manchuria, China—Fengtien, Kirin and Heilungchiang, together with Jehol, were by Japan proclaimed an independent state under the name of Manchoukuo.

Name changes of cities and provinces in China have been so frequent during the last two decades—a period of continuous internecine strife—that it has kept the geographers busy keeping up with the "new" places.



Fruit drying in a Persian orchard; commerce in fruits is one of the nation's chief industries

The Treaty of Versailles has changed the whole face of Europe and the Near East. Since the ratification of that document there has been much cutting out of new countries and giving new names to them. Some countries were practically swallowed up altogether, while others were simply ravaged and left to smolder in their wrath.

The average school child of the United States knows little or nothing today of the boundaries of the multiplicity of small nations constituting the Balkans or the Baltic region. Latvia and Lithuania, Estonia and Finland are just names to many of them, while not a few are not at all aware of their existence.

Ask even a high school student whether it is Czecho-Slovakia or Yugo-Slavia that is north of Austria and Hungary, and the chances are fair he or she will return the wrong answer.

Istanbul—itself a corruption of a Greek phrase meaning "in town"—signifies nothing to most American readers who have heard of Constantinople from their childhood. Yet Istanbul has been the name of one-half of Constantinople for many centuries.

Citizens of the United States proclaim themselves Americans, and too frequently in the belief that they are the only people entitled to such a designation, whereas a Canadian, Mexican, Nicaraguan or a Brazilian is every whit as much an American as the Bostonian. St. Louisan, Detroiter or New Yorker.

But all the peoples living under the Union Jack, while acknowledging themselves as loyal subjects of King George, are not enthusiastic over being listed as Britishers, and especially is this true of those living in the United Kingdom. The Scotsmen and Welshmen prefer the title of their origin: that is, the names linked with the land of their birth. And this is equally true of Canadians, Australians and South Africans. They may all be Britishers, but their first and most sacred tie is with the land in which they were born.

The world-wide surge of nationalism betokens more name changes. In order to understand what this change from Persia to Iran means one may imagine a similar demand on the part of some other countries, for there are many great countries which are known to foreigners by names totally different from those employed by their inhabitants, while some of them have several different names in foreign languages.

As already stated, the Germans call their country Deutschland, while foreigners call it variously Germania, Allemagne and even Teutonia. The Hungarians speak of Madyar (Orszag), the Egyptians speak of Misr, the Chinese of Chung Kuo, the Finns of Suomi, the Greeks of Hellas, the Syrians of Sham and the Japanese of Nippon, or Nihon.

In this connection, the case of Greece is different. Though the West uses various forms of the word Greece, in the East it is known as Yunan or Varan, which are, of course, old forms of the tribal name Ionian. This peculiarity offers an interesting parallel with the use of Persia to represent the name of the whole of Persia.

Another example of calling the greater after the lesser is offered by the use of the word "Rum"—that is, Rome—by the Arabs when speaking of the Holy Roman Empire. In the sixteenth century the Ottoman Turks were always called Rumes by the Portuguese in India. Still another and more prominent example of calling the greater after the lesser is that of England, which owes her name to the Angles, who were numerically inferior to the Saxons.

As a result of the decree of the Shah's Government, relative to the change in name from Persia to Iran, the early history of Persia now becomes of real interest to the Western World. The Persians first settled in the province of Fars, in the southwest of Persia, only after the Assyrians had destroyed the Elamite Kingdom in 640 B. C.

Persian police

THE country they settled in came to be called Parsa, which was possibly a tribal appellation. Two Babylonian documents dated 630 B. C. speak of Kurah (Cyrus), King of Parsuwash; from this name came first the name of the province of Pars, and hence the general name for all Persia used first by Herodotus and since by the whole world.

That the Persian plateau is the land of the Aryan race and the Persians are entitled to be called Aryans is a fact upon which, save for a few dissenters, historians are agreed.

Herodotus, the Greek historian, in giving a full description of the Aryan tribes' settlement in Persia some 2000 years B. C., definitely mentions 10 tribes, one of which he describes as "Germanian." Certain authorities accept this as the origin of the name of the present Germany.

According to the latest statistics, the population of Persia numbers 15,000,000, of which 3,000,000 are nomads—Lohr, Bathtiary, Kuhglu—all believed to be of pure Aryan stock, as a result of their dwelling in the inaccessible mountains. Through their exclusiveness the nomads kept themselves free from mixing with the Semitic races, who invaded the country between the seventh and tenth centuries.

There are also 675,000 Kurds in the country. They are likewise thought to be of pure Aryan stock. Through their residence in the fastness of the mountains they have escaped racial mixing. Even their language is pure Pahlavy.

The Persians, or Iranians, still hold to their old Zoroastrian religion. And this steadfastness of religious faith holds true for those Persians who emigrated to India after the Arab invasion. Armenians, also, are of the Aryan race. As to the tolerance shown by the Persians towards other religions and races, such as Nestorian and Jewish, it is an inherited, magnificent characteristic of the Aryan people. In the Bible will be found mention of the fact that it was Cyrus who, after conquering Babylon, freed the Jews and restored them, with their independence, in Jerusalem.

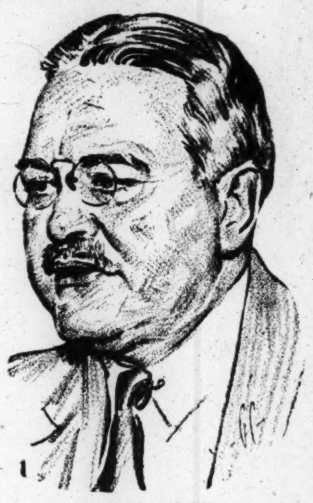
High Lights on Unusual Personalities

COL. HUGH MILLER

The Engineer Who Became Missouri's PWA Boss

THE PWA and the New Deal were made to order for Hugh Miller, who came to St. Louis 19 months ago to open the Missouri office of the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works, and who has received a call from Washington to enter the engineering division of the agency's headquarters.

He is an enthusiast for the task of building public works with Federal funds and in Missouri he played a large part in stirring up interest in a construction program of considerable volume. Arriving a stranger, he speedily made friends throughout the State and also made enemies among representatives of privately owned public utilities, who disliked his active espousal of public ownership of utilities.



Col. Hugh Miller

A Princeton graduate, class of '01, a college professor and a bit of a dandy, he still knew how to talk the language of rural Missouri. He would go out-State and with his pince-nez glasses, his cane and his spats win the confidence of men who would be suspicious of some persons in such trappings. His personality commands attention. Tall and portly, with graying hair brushed back, he has a trim mustache and a ready smile. His energy is seemingly inexhaustible; tennis helps sustain it. Miller and his wife are friends of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

A high light of Miller's career in Missouri was the whirlwind trip he made in three days at the end of 1933. He covered 1000 miles by automobile in all sorts of winter weather, encouraging applications for PWA funds and denouncing the State Senate for its refusal to pass Gov. Park's bills to permit smaller cities to issue revenue bonds on public utility plants. He charged that the privately owned utilities were responsible for this. In the course of the trip he addressed audiences in 18 cities and towns.

When Miller was sent here in August, 1933, people hardly knew what the PWA was. He organized an office and set out to get applications for loans and grants. Missouri, he thought, should receive at least $100,000,000 of the PWA funds. The whole State, including notably St. Louis and St. Louis County, were reluctant to apply. He conferred with officials, made speeches, issued statements. By Thanksgiving, 1933, his office in the Buder Building was so swamped with bulky papers requesting money that his staff had to work 12 to 15 hours daily. More than 300 applications were filed before the time expired.

Out of this mass, the PWA finally provided loans and grants amounting to $25,200,000, on 156 public improvements of wide variety, the cost of which will be $69,500,000. About 30 smaller improvements have been completed to date.

When the question of the proposed Table Rock Dam in the White River in Southwestern Missouri was revived, Miller took it up. He advocated rescinding the dam rights of the Doherty interests and undertaking a combined project for cheap electric power and flood control in a large district of the Missouri and Arkansas Ozarks, together with a social development for the people there comparable on a smaller scale to the Government's work in the Tennessee Valley.

Miller wanted to spread the benefits of electricity to every village of the State. He became interested in the effort to eliminate smoke in St. Louis.

When some persons questioned Miller's right to participate actively in local public affairs, he announced that he intended to make St. Louis his home. He voted here last year and paid personal property taxes. Born at Roselle, N. J., in 1881, Miller did engineering work for a number of years after leaving Princeton and also taught civil engineering at his alma mater for a year. He was with a copper mining company for a time, but in 1909 became an engineering professor at Clarkson College of Technology, Potsdam, N. Y. Later he was at Rice Institute, Houston, Tex., and from 1922 to 1926 he was engineering dean of George Washington University, after which he was at Union College until he joined the PWA. During the World War he was a Captain of Engineers. Since then he has been a Lieutenant-Colonel in the Reserve Corps, whence the title of "Colonel" by which he is generally known. Miller, as might be suspected, is a Democrat.

Nineteen Millions for Pictures

after making a contract whereby he might have first choice of any pictures they bought, paying them a commission for these, but sharing in the profits of other paintings they might sell. The total number of purchases has not been revealed, but a recent statement from A. F. Neymann, first secretary at the Soviet Embassy in Washington, indicates that only a small part of the 1700 paintings which formed the original collection of the Czars has been sold. The Hermitage directors have sold certain European paintings, but have enlarged the whole collection to three times its former size, specializing in the acquisition of Oriental art, which had formerly been a less distinguished branch than the well-stocked and important European collection which apparently could afford to lose some paintings.

The reason for all the secrecy and denials was that Mellon wanted to wait until a gallery had been built in Washington by the A. W. Mellon Educational and Trust Fund, and then, when the gallery was opened and the people were permitted to enter, they would find among the paintings the masterpieces from the Hermitage, giving them a great surprise. That was something worth looking forward to. And that would not be all. There would be other famous paintings picked up from time to time and hidden away in secret places against the great day. Such as Goya's "Senora Sabasa Garcia," which art experts rate as probably the finest Goya in the world; and Holbein's portrait of the little Prince Edward, which was painted as a New Year's gift for the Prince's father, Henry VIII; "St. Ildefonso, Writing," by Goya; Lancret's "Portrait de Mlle. Camargo, Dansant," the "Portrait of a Lady" by Van Der Weyden; the Rembrandt "Self Portrait," and Goya's "Portrait of La Marquisa de Pontejos." All of these, on the authority of Knoedler Galleries, are in the Mellon collection.

The portrait of "Senora Sabasa Garcia" was painted about 1805-10. It was loaned by Mellon for the art show at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago and was selected by C. J. Bulliet for reproduction in his art volume on the show.

ANOTHER of the Mellon paintings is a "Portrait of Alexander Hamilton," by John Trumbull, painted for his physician and friend, Dr. David Hosack, surgeon at Hamilton's fatal duel with Aaron Burr.

Mellon was busy planning the Washington gallery, keeping his little secret, when along came the inquiring Board of Tax Appeals and spoiled his surprise. He found out then that a secret which involves one's income tax affairs may be pretty expensive. Paying millions secretly for paintings was one thing, but paying a big income tax for the privilege of keeping his secret was something else. So he told his lawyers to go ahead and tell the tax probers about his pictures.

They told about the $3,241,250 that he had spent for pictures in 1931 and the $19,000,000 in all that he had spent to make Washington a cultural center to outrank Europe's best.

Mellon had to sit there and hear his prized secret laid bare and had to endure the added displeasure of having it laid bare before an audience that was not especially art-conscious.

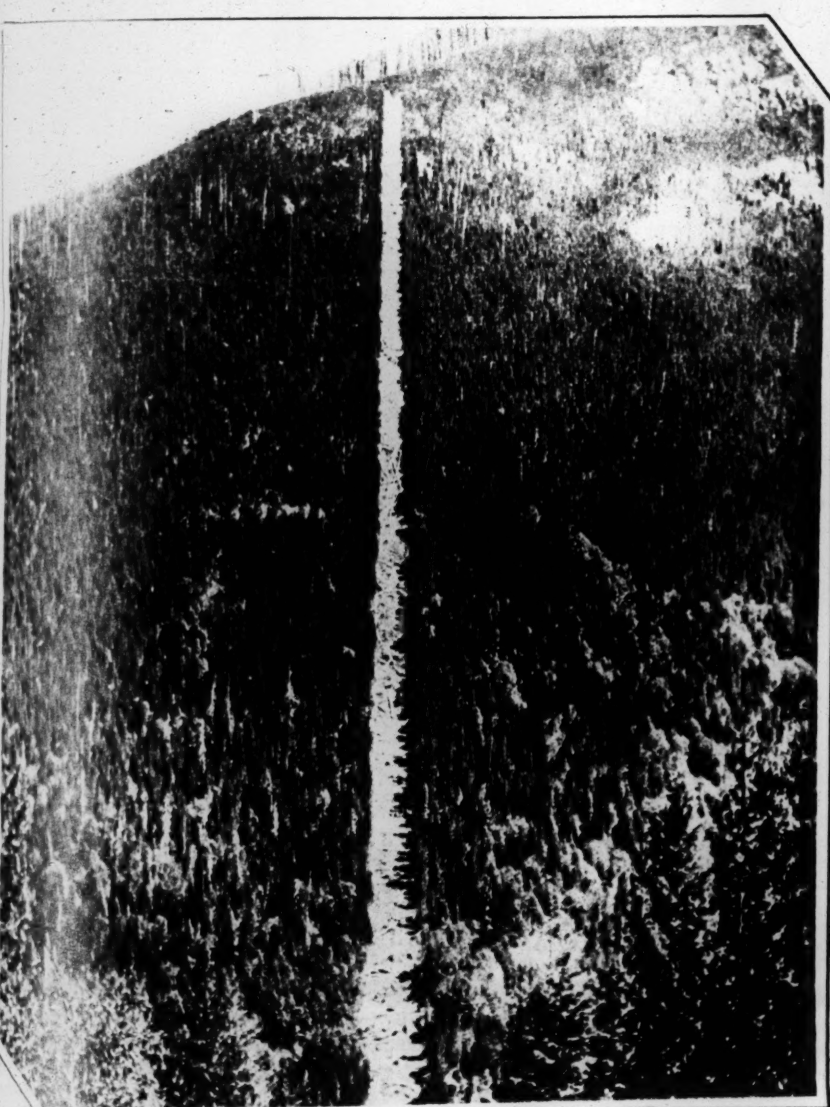
MARCH 17, 1935

LEARNING THE DIZZY TWIST—A group of enthusiastic admirers get a tip from the famous "Dizzy" Dean on a field at Bradenton, Florida, where the Cardinals are now in winter training. —By a Post-Dispatch staff photographer.

REBELLIOUS—Mrs. Wilbur Fribley of Chicago is president of the Housewife's League of America and a leader of discontent with the rising price of foodstuffs. "Women will rebel," she says. "We blame it all on the AAA and the Government." —Associated Press Wirephoto.



NO IMAGINARY LINE

The border between Canada and the United States has been partly delineated by a 20-foot swath through forests which also acts as a fire break. The work was done with a PWA grant. The photograph shows a section, looking west.
—Associated Press Wirephoto.

ALSO REBELLIOUS

An orderly group of 500 Minnesota farmers marched on the State Capitol at St. Paul demanding the Legislature aid them to raise the price of farm products. Proressive Gov. Floyd B. Olson met them at the steps, cordially; told them he advocates economic revolution and blames the Government policy and AAA for the "degradation in the country."

STATE OF WAR IN CUBA

Since this photograph was made Cuba has come completely under martial law. Fresh violence a short time previously had caused an order that soldiers and marines search all who approached public buildings. Here is a typical "frisking" party at Havana's customs house.

NOBLE EXPERIMENT

Almost 150 years ago the mutinous crew of H. M. S. Bounty came to Pitcairn Island, 3000 miles off Chile, bringing 21 Tahitian women for wives. The American Museum of Natural History has sent a party to investigate the 200 present British-Tahitan inhabitants. This is a typical family of the remarkably healthy natives.

FORTIETH NATIONAL BIRD DOG CHAMPIONSHIP TRIALS AT GRAND JUNCTION

The most theatrical performance in the trials, which came as a climax to the season for eminent dog owners throughout America, was the one put on by Homewood Flirtatious (shown at point), a female black and white pointer who was paired with Dr. Blue Willing. Handled by F. E. Bevan, she won this first heat, then established a record for Grand Junction by finding four bevies in 27 minutes—the second series. Altogether she found 12 bevies and two single birds. This champion of the trials is owned by Henry W. Curry of Pittsburgh.

Portraits of some of the distinguished pointers and English setters which participated in field trials at the Tennessee sporting center, where the first events of this type were introduced in America over 40 years ago. These dogs represent the highest type of breeding in field trial bird dogs. The winner is the dog who finds and handles the greatest number of bevies during a limited time—in this case three hours.

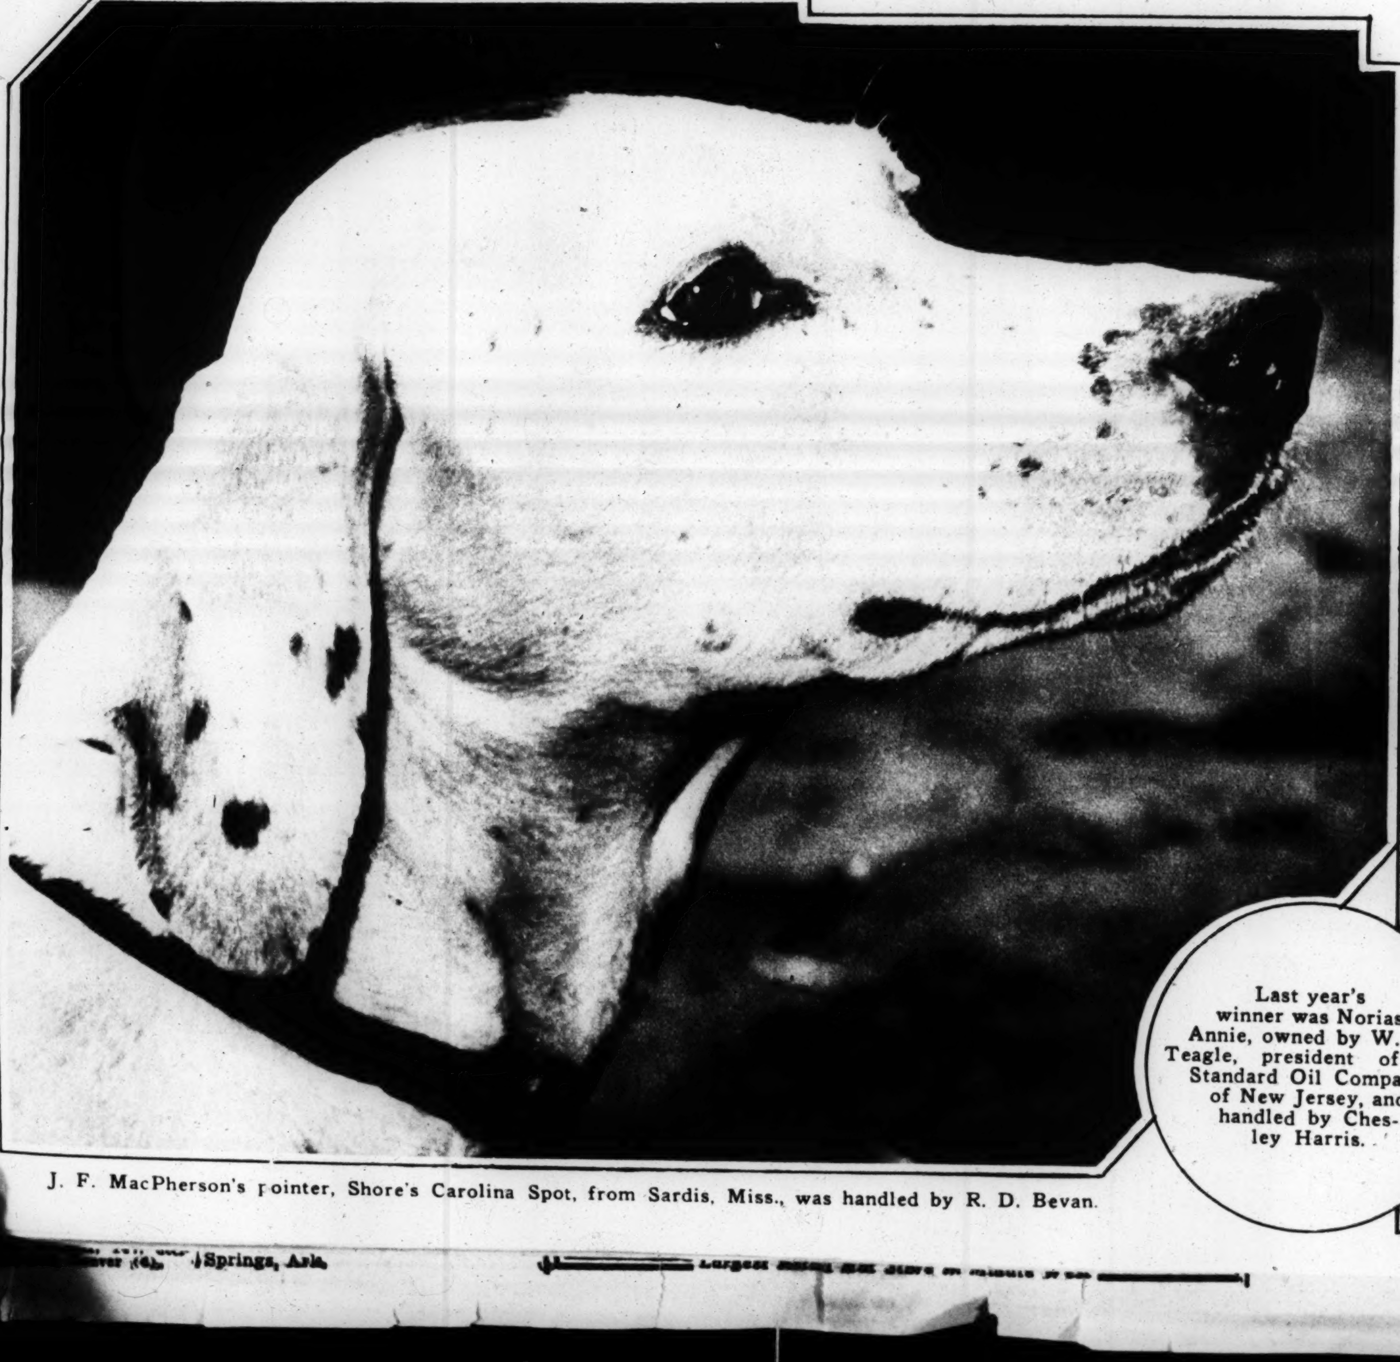
Sulu, owned by A. G. C. Sage of New York and handled by Clyde Morton, was runner-up in the trials. She was matched in the final heat with H. W. Curry's Homewood Flirtatious.



J. F. MacPherson's pointer, Shore's Carolina Spot, from Sardis, Miss., was handled by R. D. Bevan.

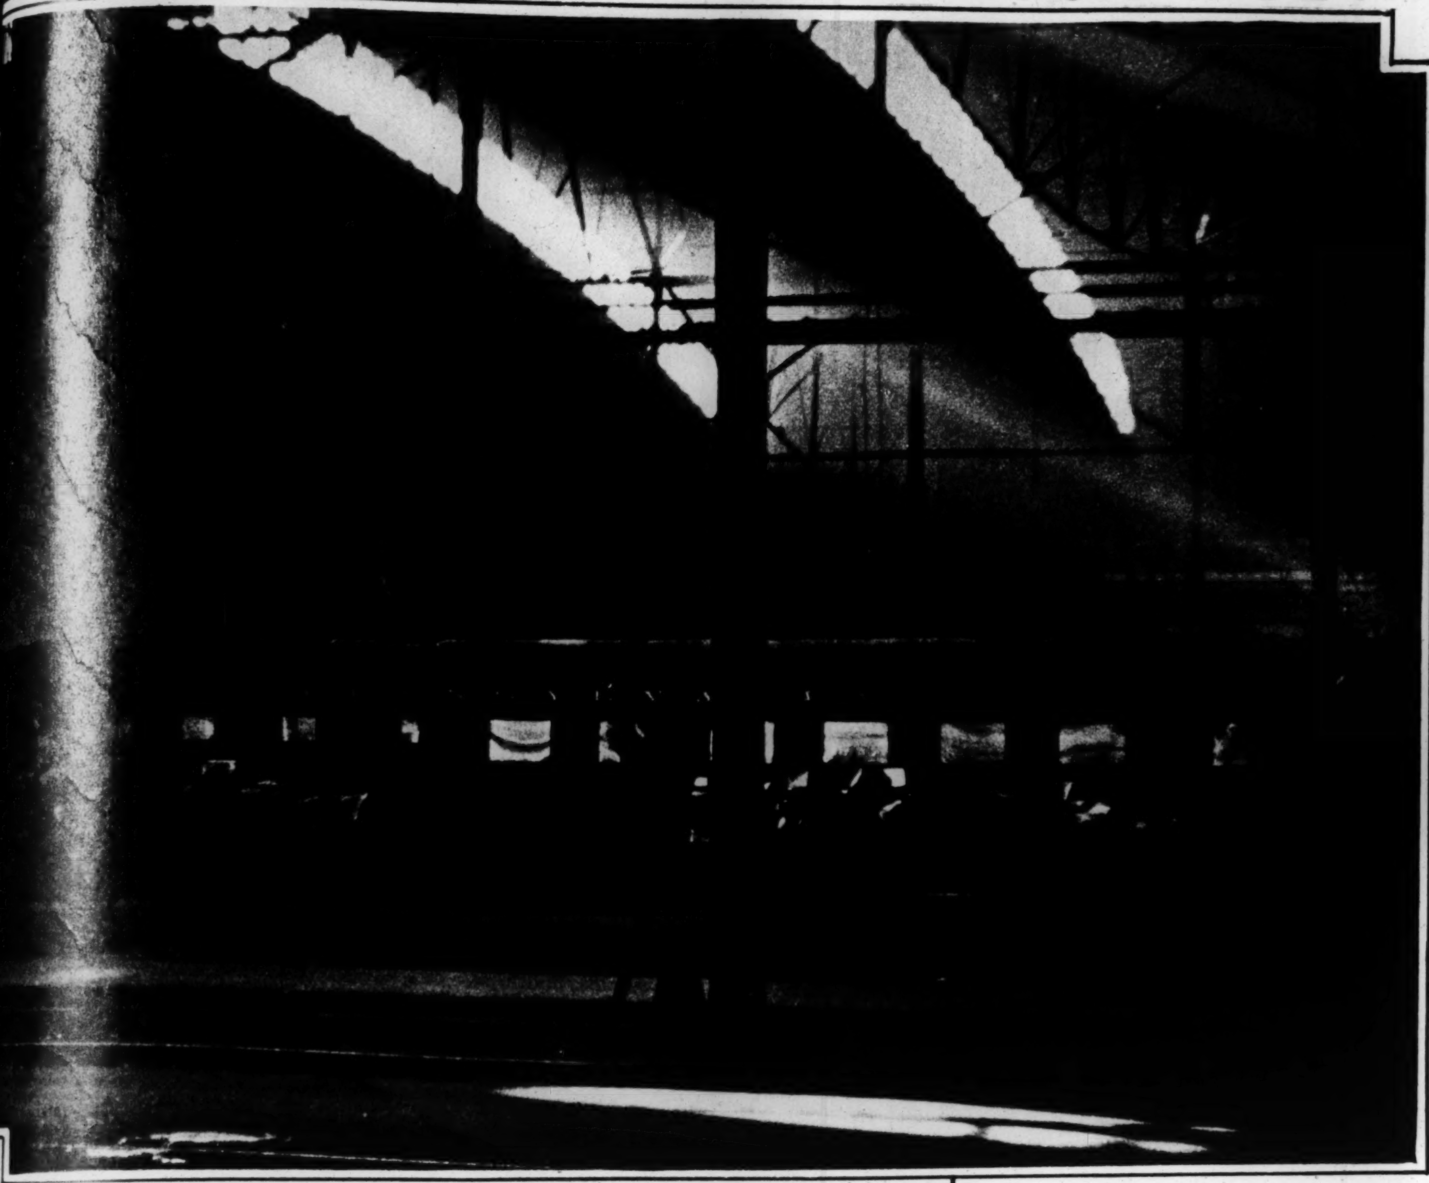
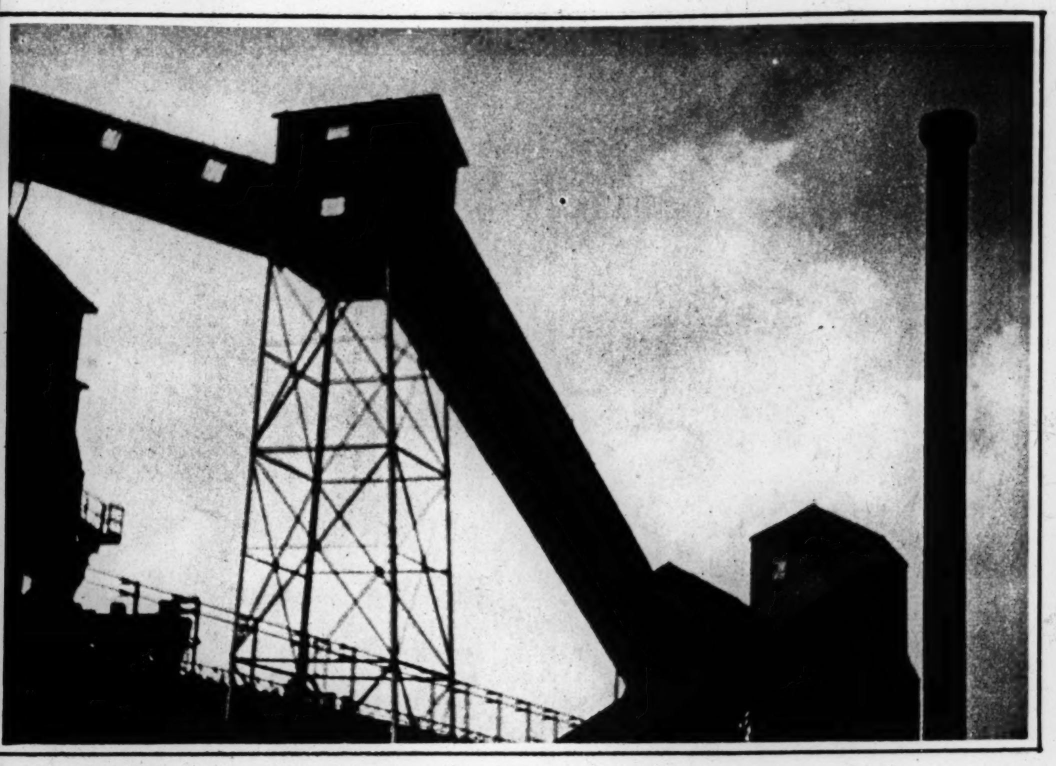
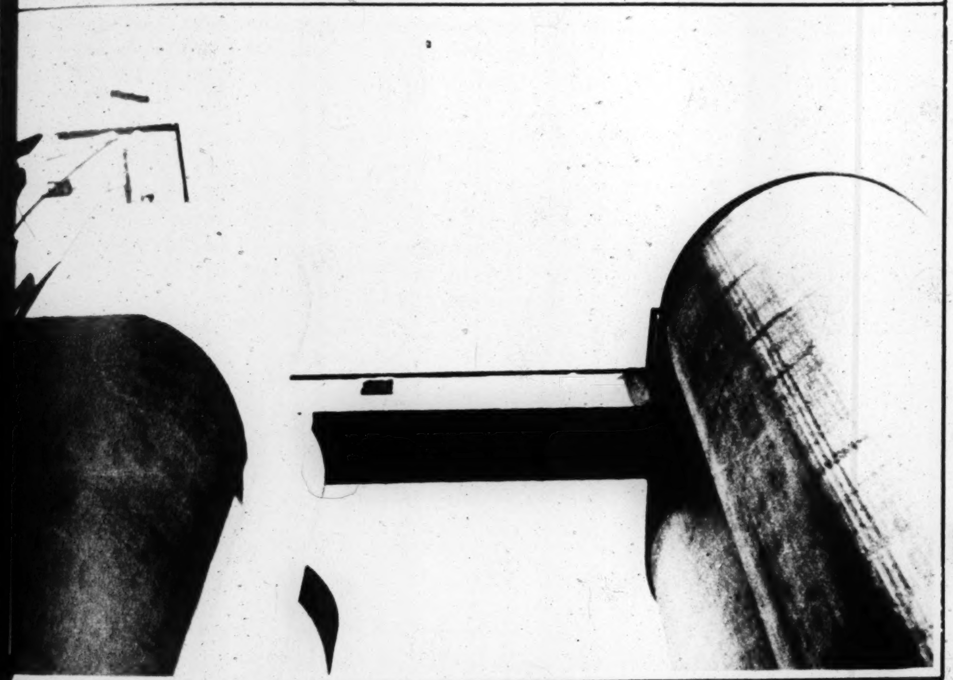
RAILROADS AND INDUSTRIALS



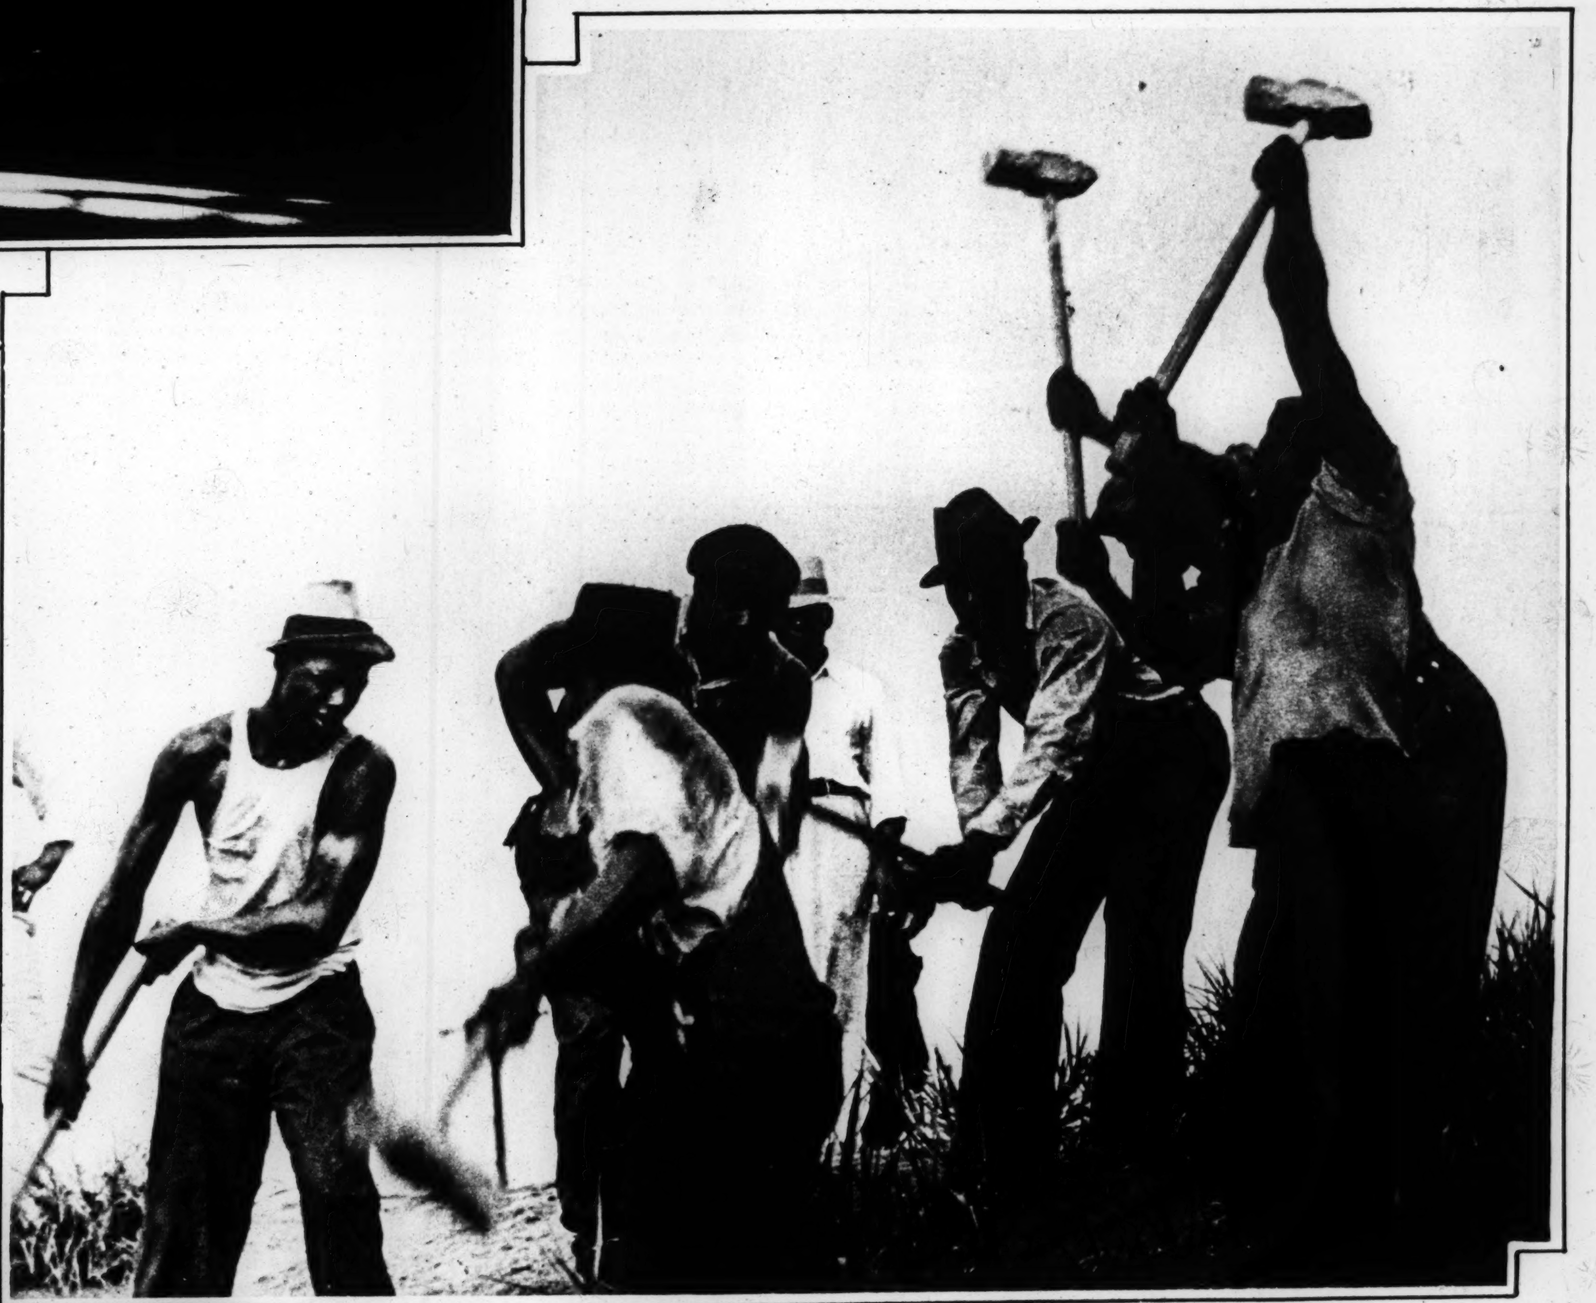
SKYLIGHTS AND GIRDERS—A striking study of criss-cross shadow lines and streaming light bands, made in the arched shed of Union Station by Oscar Johnson of St. Louis.



GAS HOUSE—Interesting for its economy of shades, this photograph by A. W. Prasse of St. Louis is also a unique pattern of stark and angular straight lines.



MODERNISM IN DOMESTIC ARCHITECTURE—A grain storage elevator in Milwaukee provided this photographer, Aubrey Ritter of St. Louis, with concrete masses of singularly rhythmical contours.



MEN WORKING — Grouping adds to the success of this picture of throbbing muscular activity, made by Charles Lorenz of St. Louis. The workers were driving stakes to hold up a big tent when the circus came to town.

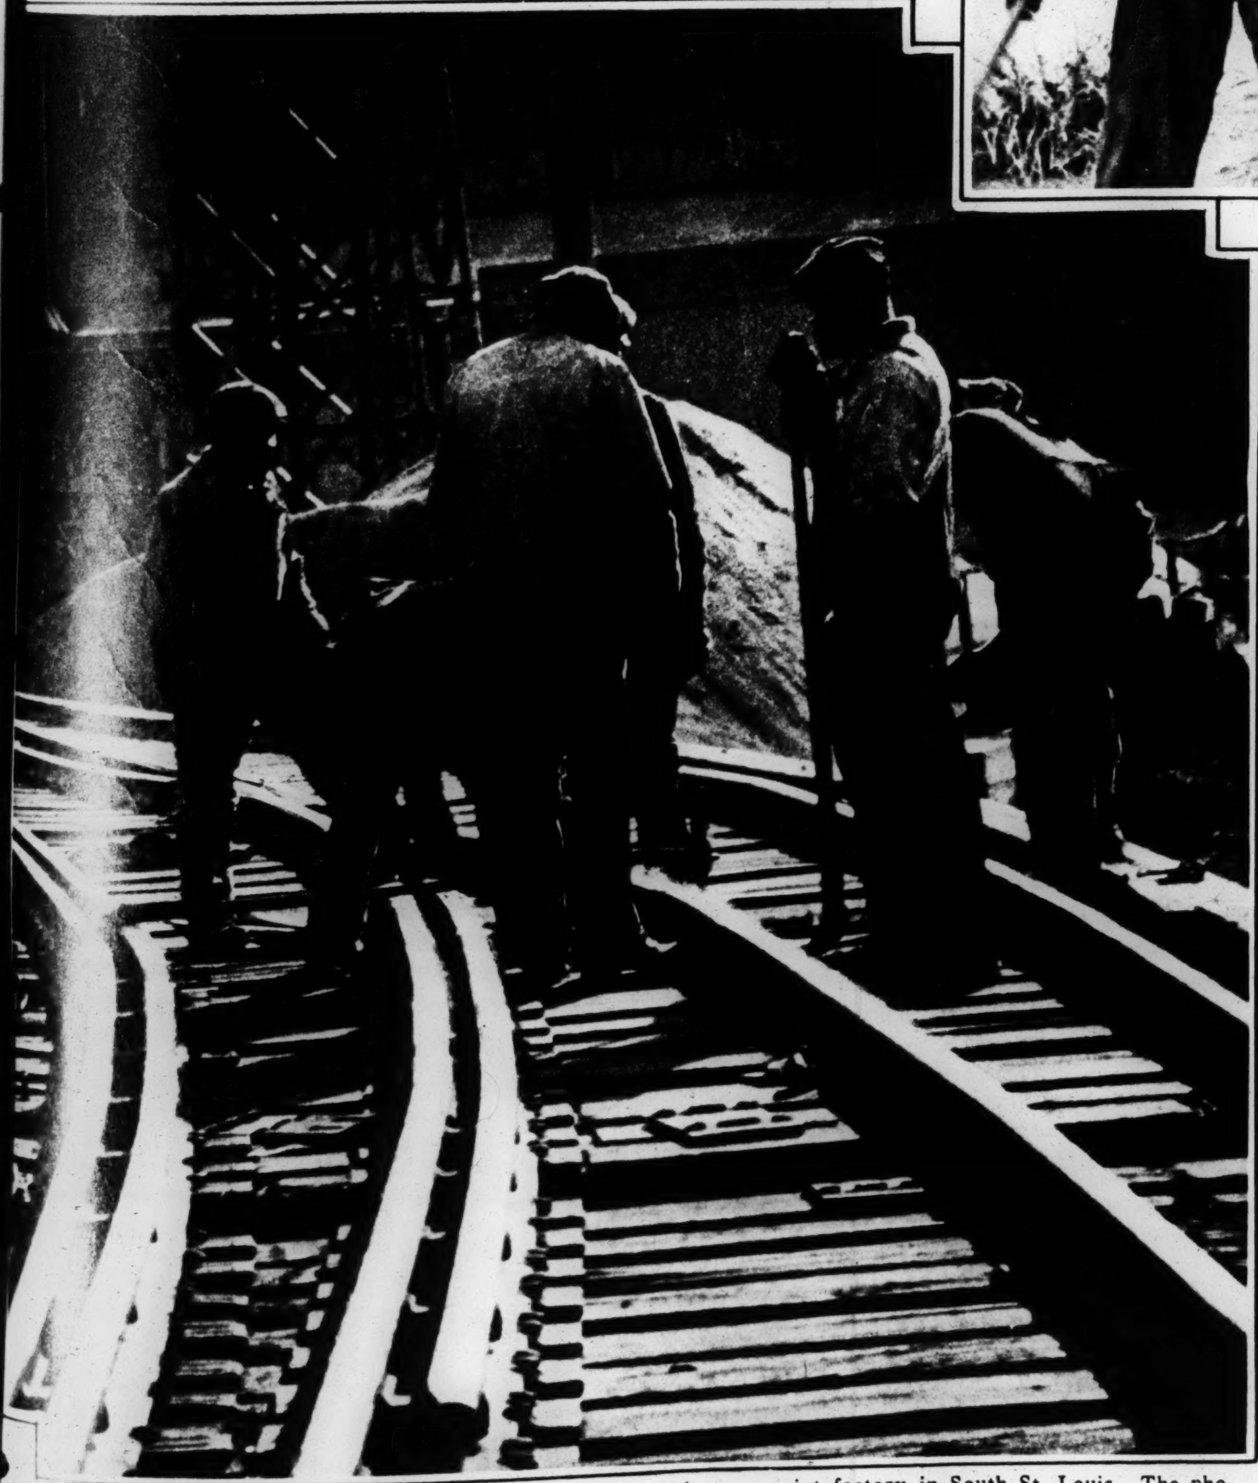
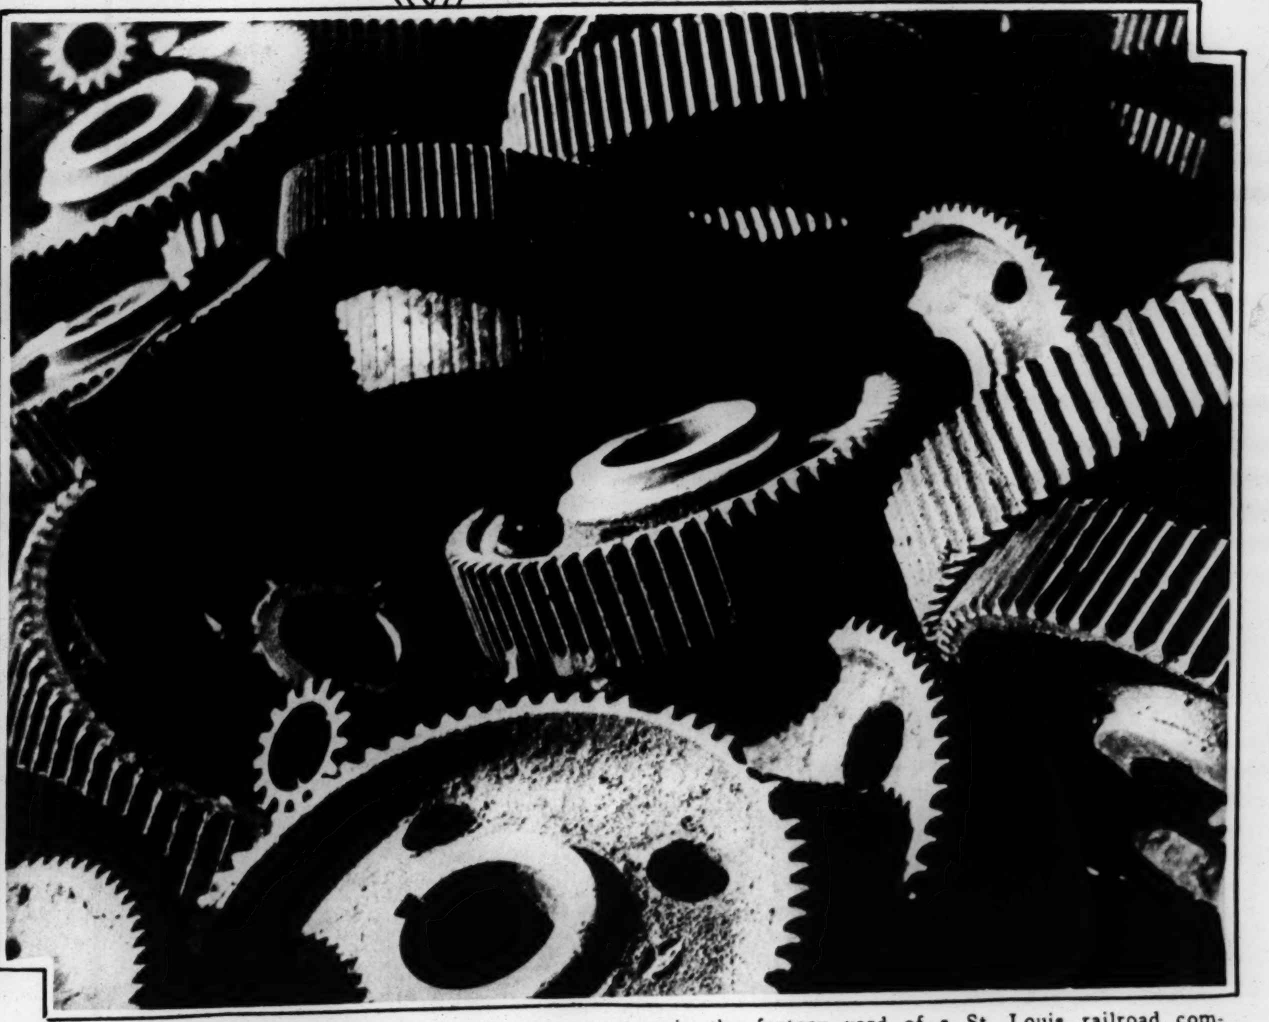
Contributions are invited by the Sunday Editor and those used are paid for at regular rates. Only five-by-four prints (or larger) with name, address, return postage and a description of the subject, can be considered. Further information will be sent if requested by mail.



SECTION GANG—A group of laborers repairing railroad tracks at a paint factory in South St. Louis. The photographer is A. W. Dreyer of St. Louis.



WHEELS WITHIN WHEELS—A pile of worn-out gears in the factory yard of a St. Louis railroad company, awaiting another melting down, make an original and dramatic subject for the photographer, Charles Lorenz.

SUNDAY MORNING THE ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH MARCH 17, 1935

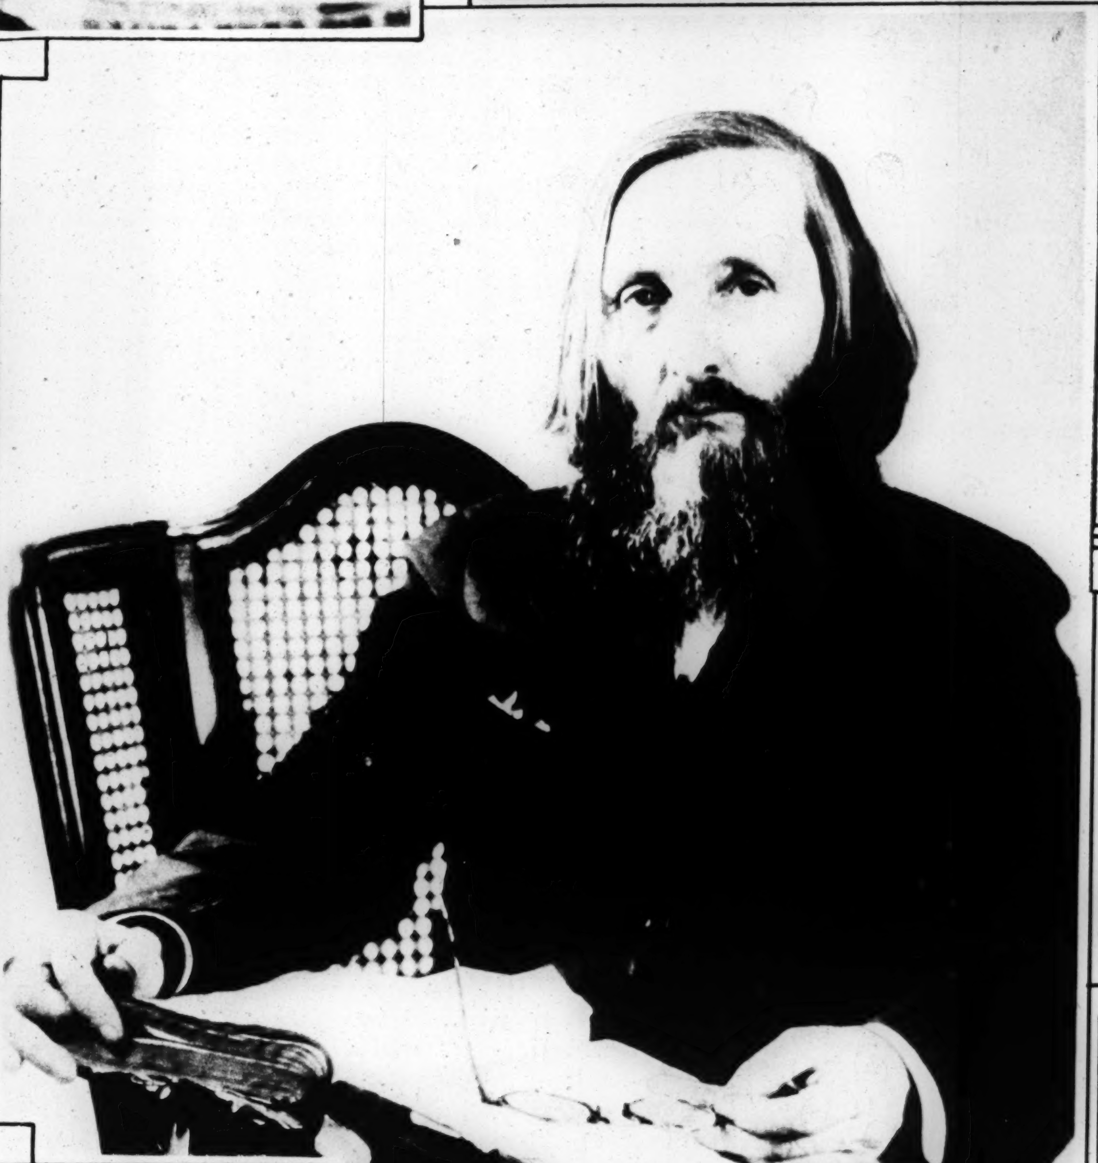
"UNBEATABLE"—French women athletes are said to hold a place in cross country running which is unapproached by women of any other nation. Here are some of the reasons—a few of the thousand participants in the famous marathon held annually at St. Cloud, near Paris.



CANDIDATE

Munnell Wilson, a former member of the Kentucky Legislature, had decided to join the House of David, but changed his mind when he became a candidate for Lieutenant-Governor of the State. Afterwards his doctor forbade him to shave and have his hair cut, saying the sudden change of coiffure might endanger his health. He is shown at Lexington, where he is campaigning.

WITH A LIST OF EVERY TAFT TWELVE OWNER IN TOWN, JANE HAS ELIMINATED THEM ALL BUT ONE IN HER SEARCH FOR THE HIT AND RUN DEATH CAR—THAT CAR IS TONY REGAN'S AND HE SAYS IT WAS STOLEN IN CHICAGO—

I PHONED CHICAGO—TONY REGAN REPORTED HIS CAR STOLEN THERE—BUT LONG AFTER THE ACCIDENT!
A CONVENIENT WAY TO GET RID OF IT!
WE KNOW THE CAR WHICH KILLED THAT CHILD WAS A TAFT TWELVE—IT SEEMS ODD THAT THE ONLY CAR WE HAVEN'T ELIMINATED SHOULD BE MISSING—
WELL, WE'LL FIND THAT CAR SOMEWHERE!
MAYBE WE DON'T NEED TO FIND IT—IF THEY'RE GUILTY, WE CAN PROVE IT ANYWAY!
HOW? WHAT DO YOU MEAN?
HOW ABOUT THAT GARAGE WHERE THEY PARKED THEIR CAR? THAT MAN CAN IDENTIFY THEM, IF THEY ARE GUILTY!
BUT SOMEONE ELSE ALSO THOUGHT OF THAT—
IT'S THE SAME FELLOW, TONY!
HELLO, FRIEND—REMEMBER ME?
YOUR FACE IS FAMILIAR, BUT—
OH, NOW I HAVE IT—YOU PARKED THAT TAFT TWELVE HERE A WHILE BACK!

OH, THE HOURS HERE ARE GOOD—AND I GET TWENTY A WEEK!
WE-ELL—THIS SPRINGDALE JOB PAYS FORTY—BUT I MUST HAVE A MAN OUT THERE TODAY!

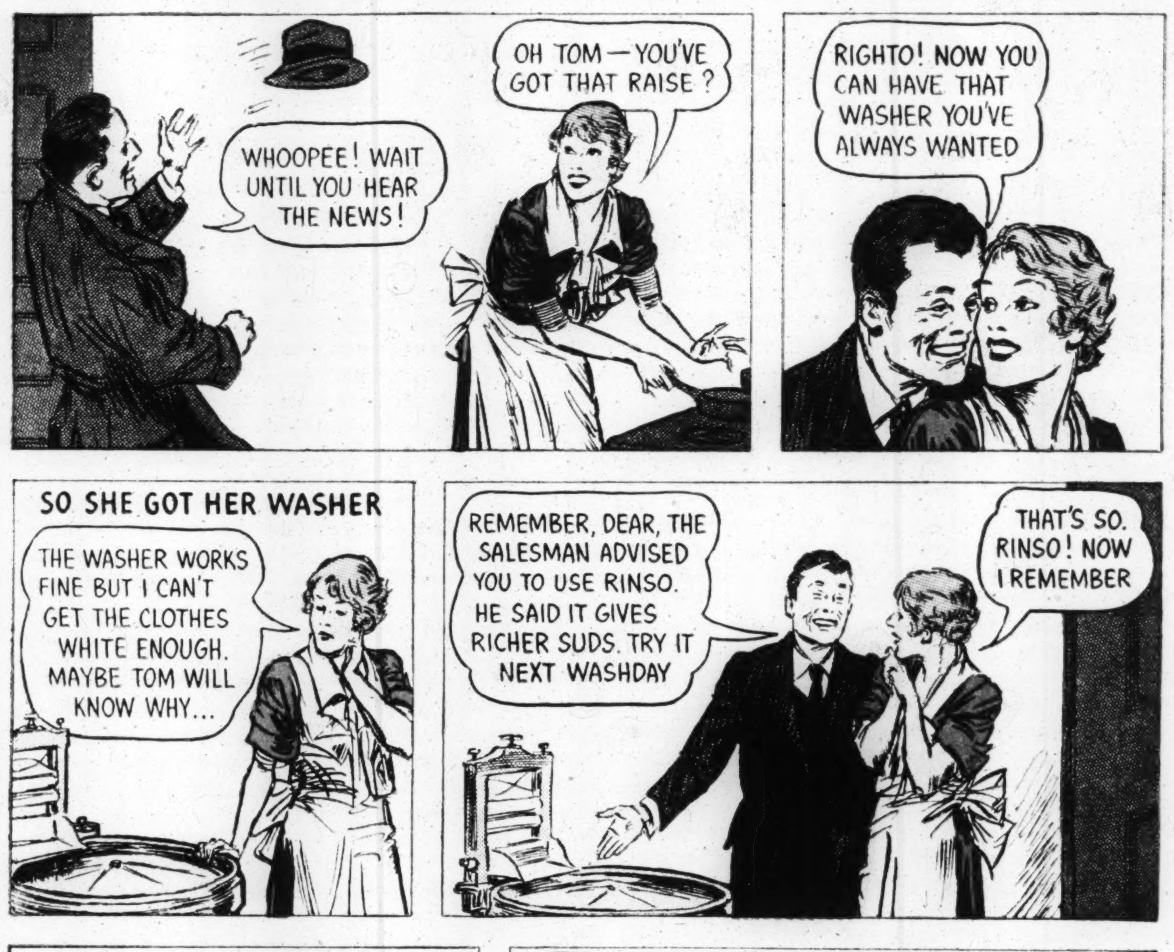
HER HUSBAND CAME TO THE RESCUE



WHOOPEE! WAIT UNTIL YOU HEAR THE NEWS!
OH TOM — YOU'VE GOT THAT RAISE?
RIGHTO! NOW YOU CAN HAVE THAT WASHER YOU'VE ALWAYS WANTED
SO SHE GOT HER WASHER
REMEMBER, DEAR, THE SALESMAN ADVISED YOU TO USE RINSO. HE SAID IT GIVES RICHER SUDS. TRY IT NEXT WASHDAY
THAT'S SO. RINSO! NOW I REMEMBER
NEXT WASHDAY
THE SALESMAN WAS RIGHT ABOUT RINSO! MY CLOTHES CAME FROM THE WASHER 4 OR 5 SHADES WHITER TODAY — AND THE COLORED CLOTHES ARE BRIGHTER, TOO
NRA CODE
Rinso

NO WASHING machine? Then all the more reason to use Rinso. A little gives rich suds—even in hardest water. Soaks clothes 4 or 5 shades whiter. They last 2 or 3 times longer because they're not scrubbed threadbare. Recommended by makers of 34 famous washers. Wonderful for dishwashing and all cleaning. Kind to your hands. Keeps them smooth and white. Tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute.

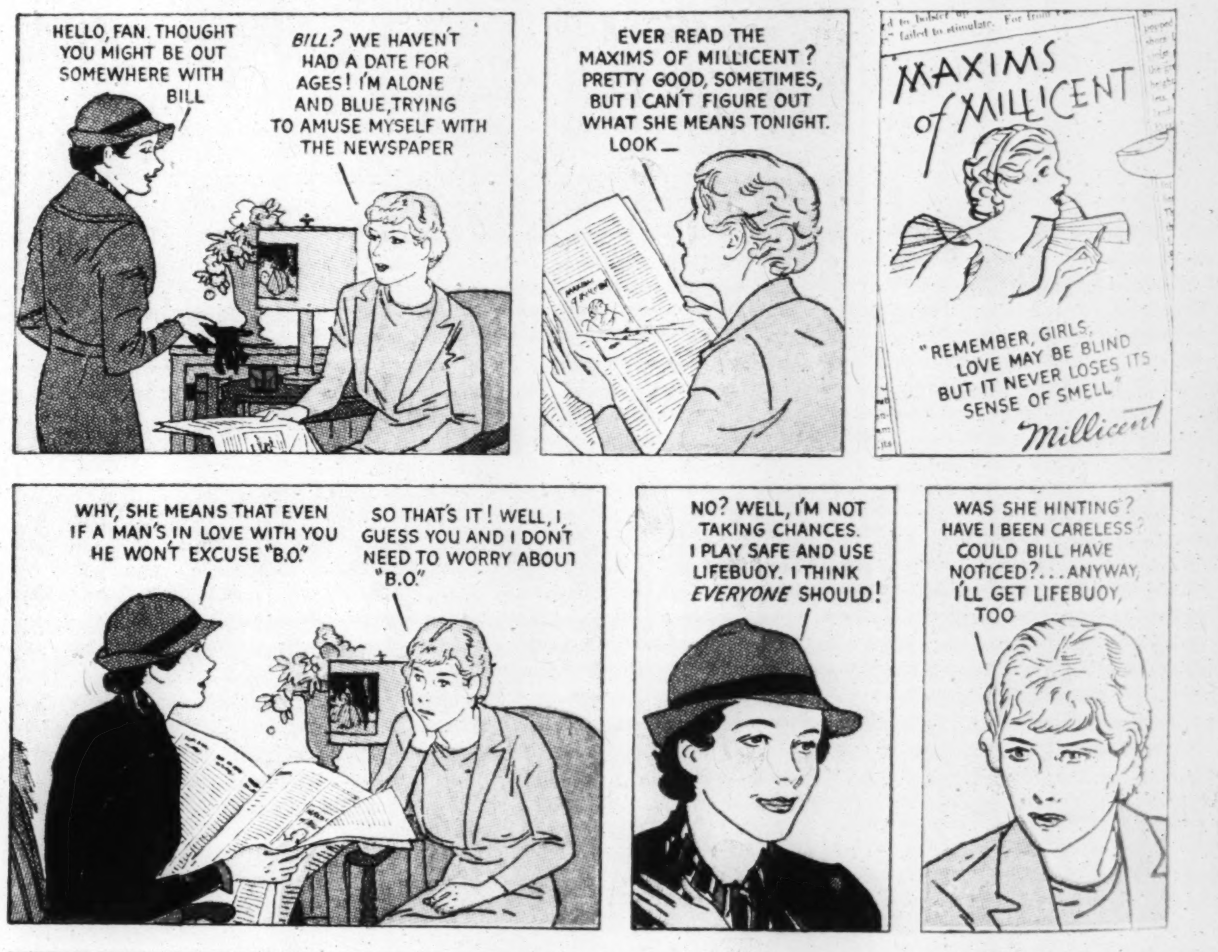
A DISCOVERY ABOUT LOVE



HELLO, FAN. THOUGHT YOU MIGHT BE OUT SOMEWHERE WITH BILL
BILL? WE HAVEN'T HAD A DATE FOR AGES! I'M ALONE AND BLUE, TRYING TO AMUSE MYSELF WITH THE NEWSPAPER
EVER READ THE MAXIMS OF MILLICENT? PRETTY GOOD, SOMETIMES, BUT I CAN'T FIGURE OUT WHAT SHE MEANS TONIGHT. LOOK —
MAXIMS of MILLICENT
"REMEMBER, GIRLS, LOVE MAY BE BLIND BUT IT NEVER LOSES ITS SENSE OF SMELL" Millicent
WHY, SHE MEANS THAT EVEN IF A MAN'S IN LOVE WITH YOU HE WON'T EXCUSE "B.O."
SO THAT'S IT! WELL, I GUESS YOU AND I DON'T NEED TO WORRY ABOUT "B.O."
NO? WELL, I'M NOT TAKING CHANCES. I PLAY SAFE AND USE LIFEBUOY. I THINK EVERYONE SHOULD!
WAS SHE HINTING? HAVE I BEEN CARELESS? COULD BILL HAVE NOTICED?... ANYWAY, I'LL GET LIFEBUOY, TOO
"B.O." GONE — Bill devoted!
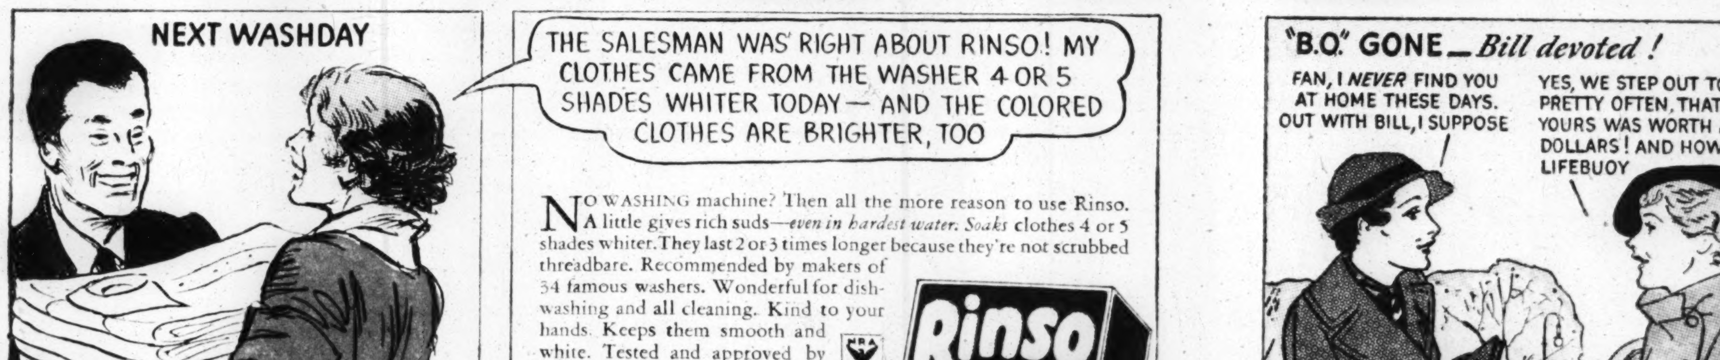
FAN, I NEVER FIND YOU AT HOME THESE DAYS. OUT WITH BILL, I SUPPOSE
YES, WE STEP OUT TOGETHER PRETTY OFTEN. THAT HINT OF YOURS WAS WORTH A MILLION DOLLARS! AND HOW I ENJOY LIFEBUOY
YOUR LOVELY COMPLEXION DOESN'T COME OUT OF A BOX
OH, YES, IT DOES BILL — A LIFEBUOY BOX
It agrees with my skin —say millions
LIFEBUOY HEALTH SOAP

NO wonder complexions thrive on Lifebuoy's deep-cleansing lather. Tests made on skins of hundreds of women show it is more than 20 per cent milder than many so-called "beauty soaps."

Even on cool days we perspire a quart. Guard against "B. O." (body odor). Bathe regularly with Lifebuoy. Lathers abundantly in hardest water, purifies pores. Its own clean scent rinses away.

Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau



DARN THIS RAZOR! I JUST CAN'T GET A GOOD, CLEAN SHAVE WITH IT
DON'T BLAME THE RAZOR. I GET A DANDY SHAVE WITH THE SAME KIND. BLAME THAT QUICK-DRYING LATHER
LIFEBUOY SHAVING CREAM LATHER, BIG BOY. IT'S EXTRA-MOIST —SOAKS BEARDS SOFT. TRY IT
WHAT A LATHER! AND WHAT A SHAVE — FAST, CLEAN AND FEELS GREAT. LIFEBUOY FOR ME EVERY TIME
THAT'S WHAT EVERYBODY SAYS, ONCE THEY'VE TRIED IT

This new lather holds 52% more moisture

Men, you have to expect rough, spotty shaves with light, quick-drying lather. But Lifebuoy Shaving Cream lather is extra-moist. It soaks wiry whiskers soft—so the razor can whisk them off in a jiffy—for faster, cleaner, easier shaves. Soothes tender skin, too. Try it.

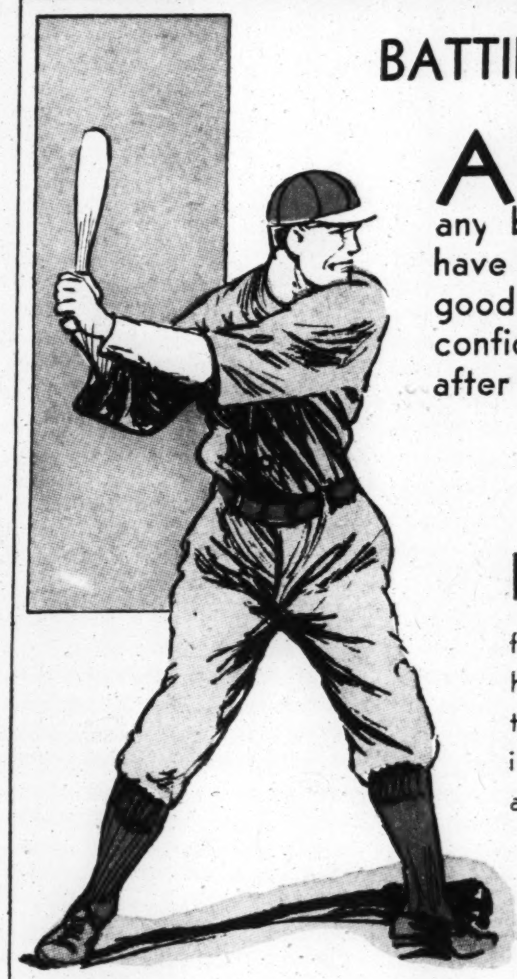
Baseball . . . . By NED BRANT

BATTING

A STEADY, consistent batter has a fine chance to make any baseball team. He must have courage, correct form, a good eye, determination and confidence. Confidence comes after learning to bat.



THE beginner should stand with feet apart, parallel with the side of the batter's box. Later he may place his feet together and take a step as he swings at the ball. Stand well back from the plate.

ALONG CAME RUTH
YOU HAVE THE PHYSIQUE AND THE STAMINA.. BUT YOU'LL NEVER MAKE AN ATHLETE UNTIL YOU GET RID OF THAT TEMPER!
ASK HIM HOW ANYONE CAN KEEP HIS TEMPER WHEN PEOPLE LIKE HIM GO AROUND UNMUZZLED?
MR COFFEE NERVES
WHAT'S THE MATTER, DICK? YOU ACT AS IF THE WHOLE WORLD WAS WRONG
OH, I WAS KICKED OFF THE TEAM TODAY! COACH SAID I'D NEVER MAKE AN ATHLETE BECAUSE I HAVE A BAD TEMPER
WHO WANTS TO BE AN ATHLETE, ANYWAY? WHY DON'T YOU QUIT SCHOOL?
MR COFFEE NERVES
RUTH — IF YOU'D MARRY ME, I'D LEAVE COLLEGE TOMORROW AND GO TO WORK!
SAY- WHO IS SHE TO BE SO PARTICULAR? WHEN SHE REFUSES TO MARRY YOU THE LUCK IS ALL ON YOUR SIDE!
I THINK A LOT OF YOU DICK.. BUT THE VERY THING THAT KEEPS YOU FROM BEING A GOOD ATHLETE, MIGHT KEEP YOU FROM BEING A GOOD HUSBAND
MR COFFEE NERVES
MY FATHER NEARLY RUINED MY MOTHER'S LIFE WITH HIS GROUCHY DISPOSITION. OF COURSE, THERE WAS SOME EXCUSE FOR HIM. HE DIDN'T SLEEP WELL .. HE HAD INDIGESTION AND HEADACHES ALL THE TIME!
GOOD GRIEF, RUTH DON'T YOU REALIZE THAT I HAVE 'EM TOO?
THERE'S A WOMAN FOR YOU! WHEN HER FATHER HAD 'EM SHE WAS SORRY FOR HIM WHEN YOU HAVE 'EM SHE'S GLAD OF IT!
COFFEE NERVES
THEN MAYBE YOU HAVE COFFEE-NERVES THE SAME AS FATHER HAD!
SHUCKS! COFFEE NEVER HURT ME! HAVEN'T I ALWAYS DRUNK PLENTY OF IT?
COFFEE-NERVES? NONSENSE! DON'T LET HER TELL YOU THAT!
MR COFFEE NERVES
LISTEN, DICK. FATHER QUIT COFFEE AND SWITCHED TO POSTUM AND HIS TROUBLES LEFT HIM. WHY DON'T YOU TRY POSTUM FOR 30 DAYS?
WELL, IF IT HELPED YOUR DAD.. IT MIGHT HELP ME! I BELIEVE I WILL TRY IT!
CURSES! I'VE LOST ANOTHER VICTIM! CONFOUND THAT MEDDLING CO-ED!
LATER
THE COACH TOLD ME, DICK! AND SINCE YOU SWITCHED TO POSTUM I'VE BEEN THINKING THAT YOU MIGHT MAKE AS GOOD A HUSBAND AS YOU ARE AN ATHLETE!

"I NEVER supposed coffee could have such an effect on me! I thought it was only kids who should never drink coffee!"

"Oh, no! The caffein in coffee disagrees with lots of grown-ups, too! They find that it upsets their nerves, gives them indigestion or keeps them awake nights!"

If you suspect that coffee disagrees with you . . try Postum for 30 days. Postum contains no caffein. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. It's easy to make, and costs less than half a cent a cup. Postum is a delicious drink, too . . . and may prove a real help. A product of General Foods.

ROYAL Quick Setting GELATIN DESSERT
LIME FLAVOR

just Smell the difference!

The next time you make a gelatin dessert, smell the vapor that rises when you add the hot water.

And Royal tastes as good as it smells! If the package says "Raspberry"—it tastes like raspberries, ripe and luscious. If it's "Lime," you get the unmistakable tangy flavor of real limes.

Seven pure fruit flavors . . . Lime, Raspberry, Strawberry, Cherry, Pineapple, Lemon and Orange. Also the new Royal Gelatin Aspic (unsweetened) for jellied meats and salads.

Try Royal Pudding, too. It's made with healthful arrowroot. Two flavors: Chocolate and Vanilla.
